NIBLACK FINDS GRAHAM BANK OUTLOOK GOOD

Asserts Books Show No Irregularity or Fraud.

The eyes of the 27,000 depositors who have more than $4,000,000 in the closed Graham & Sons' bank are turned upon William C. Niblack. He is the man who eventually must tell [illegible] the answer to the question, "How much will we get back?" Acting for the receivers, the Chicago Title and Trust company, he ended his day yesterday in a hopeful mood. He had found no irregularities, he said—no evidence of crookedness or stealing.

He said he had found the securities honest ones; that the worst he could say of them was that many were "slow."

He admitted that in this day and time "honest" bank failures are rare, but he believes this one of them.

REFUSES TO GUESS RESULTS.

He declined to estimate the number of cents that will be paid on the dollar. He said it would be foolish at this time to attempt it. Rumors have put the reimbursement likely at from 60 to 70 cents.

The unanswered question, "Why was the bank closed?" was [illegible] yesterday. The Continental and Commercial National bank had [illegible] For two years, long before Andrew J. Graham died, the management of the bank had been trying to get a detailed statement of the affairs of the bank—of its resources and liabilities.

George M. Reynolds, president, had asked time and time again for it. Finally he brought pressure. It has been reported that the Graham bank owed Mr. Reynolds' [illegible]. This is said to have been an old loan, made 'way back when the star of Andy Graham shone bright and high.

STATEMENT FORCES ISSUE.

The statement of the bank, under the last bit of pressure, came in. The officials of the Continental and Commercial National looked it over. In a few minutes the thing that had troubled them for years had been decided upon.

They agreed that something must be done. The load was too heavy. The Grahams came to their office next day. They received the judgment of the bankers. That day checks for [illegible],000 were refused payment by the Continental and Commercial.

It meant the end.

IN TROUBLE FOR YEARS.

"The Graham & Sons bank has been in trouble for fifteen years," said Mr. Niblack, after he had closed the doors last night with the statement that the time locks had been turned and nothing in the bank would be accessible until Monday morning.

"I can say more than this," he added. "It is probable that the troubles of the bank killed Andy Graham. If the affairs of the bank would stand investigation why did he refuse to qualify for the clearing house association more than ten years ago?

"It will take four or five days to get the accounts of the bank straightened out. Many checks are coming back with payment stopped. Also there are dormant accounts which must be set right. On the first of the week we will start a complete inventory of the bank's business for the court."

This is the eighteenth bank that Mr. [illegible]

PROTEST DANE'S ATTACK ON U. S. AT STOCKHOLM

Envoy Egan Complains of Socialist Member of Cabinet.

LONDON, June 30.—The American minister at Copenhagen, Dr. Maurice Egan, has presented a protest to the Danish foreign office against the anti-American utterances of M. Stauning, Socialist member of the Danish cabinet, at the peace deliberations recently held at Stockholm, according to reliable information reaching London.

M. Stauning has been received in audience by the king, presumably in connection with the question of his retention of his cabinet position.

Early in June the Conservatives demanded that M. Stauning withdraw from the cabinet, but Premier Zahle refused to accede to the demand at that time. It was then asserted that M. Stauning's participation in the Stockholm conference was inconsistent with the determination of the Scandinavian government to observe strict neutrality.

[illegible] by Conservatives.

The Socialist members of the parliamentary caucus unanimously approved M. Stauning's activities, but the Conservatives still continue their strong opposition.

Minister Egan, in his protest, maintained that the United States government was the last in the world to desire to interfere with the freedom of speech, but that M. Stauning's position as a responsible government member [illegible] protest.

The non-Socialist parties and newspapers criticise M. Stauning's activities as inconsistent with Danish neutrality. [illegible] by the Berlin [illegible], in which he was quoted as [illegible] America's participation in the war as a capitalistic venture which made peace more remote instead of advancing it.

Nation's Good Faith Impugned.

This, together with the steady campaign which the principal Socialist organ in Denmark had been waging for some time against the good faith of the United States, ascribing to President Wilson and the American government sordid motives, forced the American minister to act.

M. Stauning, in the course of a speech, defended his action in attending the Stockholm conferences, pointing out that he had entered the cabinet in his capacity as chairman of the Socialist party at the request of the other parties and reserved the right to act as his party saw fit.

He was ready to leave the cabinet, he said, if his presence was incompatible with the work at Stockholm and announced that he would submit the question of his resignation to a party caucus of the Socialist members of parliament.

Blames "Capitalists."

Simultaneously, in a statement to the newspaper Social Demokraten, he made a somewhat lame attempt to explain away his unfriendly references to the United States, declaring that he had been incorrectly quoted by the Tageblatt. He had attributed responsibility for the war to the economic interests of the various belligerents, or to capitalism, and in the special case of America's entry he expressed [illegible] the capitalistic interests [illegible] played a leading rôle and th[illegible] in the United States had no [illegible] in peace, but only in the [illegible] the war.

Denmark [illegible] Regret.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Denmark this afternoon expressed her regret to the United States that this government had misinterpreted the remarks of the Socialist cabinet member, Stauning, about which Minister Egan at Copenhagen had protested.

MICHIGAN MEN IN TRAINING GET DIPLOMAS HERE

Twenty-two members of the class of 1917 at the University of Michigan who are at Fort Sheridan were graduated at the University club last night. An address was given by John M. Zane, a Chicago attorney, following which the diplomas were presented by Dean H. M. Bates, Prof. H. C. Sallsbury and Dean John R. Effinger. The seniors at the Great Lakes Training station obtained leaves to attend commencement at Ann Arbor last Thursday.

Kenosha Bans Liquor Sale to Police or Firemen

Kenosha, Wis., June 30.—Kenosha police and firemen have been put on the same plane as men in the uniform of the United States army. A resolution adopted by the common council here provides for the revocation of the license of any saloonman who sells liquor to either.

MISSING GARY GIRL FOUND DEAD NEAR HER HOME

Mary Boguslawsky, the Gary 5 year old, who disappeared more than a week ago, was found yesterday, dead, in a pasture not far from her home. She had been assaulted. She had been dead several days.

Her father, a mill hand, had offered $100 of his savings for her return in the belief that the child was kidnaped. Boy Scouts, police, and militiamen joined in the search. The body was found by a painter cutting across lots on his way to work.

John Bada and Mike Lorginis are being held, but the police have no direct evidence implicating them.

TEACHER DROWNS WITH 3 CHARGES

New York, June 30.—Miss Edith Putney, a high school teacher, and three schoolgirls were drowned in a pond near Leonardo, N. J., this afternoon as the teacher struggled to get her three charges back to a crude raft that had tipped them into the water.

Miss Putney dived, got hold of Catherine Halloran, and swam back to the raft with her. As they tried to get aboard, the thing sharply tipped, throwing the girls still on it into the water.

They clutched Miss Putney. Burdened with the weight of the three, she strove to get back to the raft, which had moved away, but was dragged down.

Man Shot on His Way Home from Barber Shop

Frank Mirabelli cut across lots from a barber shop to his home at 9640 Commercial avenue just before 11 o'clock last night. As he neared his home there was a fusillade of shots and the sound of running feet. Mirabelli stumbled into the living room of his home, before his wife and five children, and dropped dead. South Chicago police are seeking Frank Albano, a track laborer, who lives at 9642 Commercial avenue. His wife disappeared six months ago and he had steadfastly held that Mirabelli knew of her whereabouts. John Mirabelli, a brother of the dead man, said that recently Albano demanded money from Frank Mirabelli and made threats to "get him." Albano is missing.

Summer Reaches Kansas; Hottest June 30 Recorded

Topeka, Kas., June 30.—Hot winds and a blazing sun combined today to shatter Kansas heat records for June 30. The maximum temperature of 102 degrees, registered here at 4 o'clock this afternoon, was the highest for this date in thirty years, according to the government bureau. The highest temperature was reported by Marysville, where the mercury climbed to the 104 degree mark.

THE WAR

ABROAD.

Berlin reports inflicting stinging defeat on French in Verdun sector. Paris admits violent onslaught and loss of first line trenches, but declares the Germans were driven out except on slopes of Dead Man's Hill with heavy losses.

London reports important advance on a four mile line to a depth of over a mile on the Lens sector. Berlin brands fighting in this sector as minor attacks.

Berlin reports Russian heavy artillery fire which may, it hints, presage an attack to aid allies in west.

GRANDSON OF MARSHALL FIELD HERE TO ENLIST

Ronald Tree, son of the late Arthur Tree and grandson of Judge Lambert Tree and of Marshall Field, has arrived in Chicago from England to enlist in the American aviation forces or to seek a place in the diplomatic corps. He has passed his entire life in England, but by the terms of the will of his paternal grandfather he must become an American citizen. Young Tree's mother is Lady Beatty, wife of the commander of the British grand fleet.

De Koven Bowen of 30 Scott street, grandson of the late John De Koven and one of the sons of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, expects to leave soon for Annapolis, where he will begin training for the naval officers' reserve corps.

RUSSIANS SEIZE REBEL TROOPS

PETROGRAD, June 30.—By order of M. Kerensky, minister of war, after all peaceful efforts had been exhausted, the Twelfth and Thirteenth divisions of sharpshooters, which had refused to obey orders, were surrounded by detachments of cavalry Thursday in the village of Joukoff, which was twice shelled by shrapnel. Later the cavalry charged, and 500 of the sharpshooters surrendered and were disarmed.

Deserters have clashed with workmen at Narva, on the south coast of the Gulf of Finland, and twenty persons have been killed, according to the Russkia Volia. It is further stated that the town is terrorized and has appealed to Petrograd for help.

Fifteen Autos Stolen in Chicago in a Day

K. GOULD TO WED ITALIAN ARTIST; A HALF SECRET

Doesn't Know Others of His Family, Miss Lucci Admits.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—Nothing that Miss Annunziata Camilla Maria Lucci said this evening in her apartment at 27 East Sixty-second street threw much light on the beginning of her romance with Kingdon Gould, eldest son of George J. Gould, a romance which became public today through the taking out of a marriage license and the announcement that the wedding would be celebrated in St. Patrick's cathedral.

Beyond the fact that she had met Mr. Gould "several years ago," and that he had been her escort to the opera, the theater, and on many other occasions, that they "always speak Italian to each other," and that they enjoy together many outdoor sports, such as riding and shooting, Miss Lucci said little that solved the mystery.

Says His Family Doesn't Know.

On the contrary, she made it deeper by admitting that she did not know any other members of the Gould family and did not expect to meet them before or after the wedding. She admitted also that the Gould family knew nothing about her intended marriage.

"You must ask Mr. Gould," she answered to most questions of this kind, and added that "Mr. Gould" was then on his way to Lakewood.

Attired in a [illegible] sport costume with a sailor blouse of soft white [illegible] stuff, trimmed with pink, Miss Lucci received a reporter in a room which might be described as a studio-den.

The walls were [illegible] with pictures, mostly photographs and reprints from [illegible]

[illegible]

"When and where did you first meet Mr. Kingdon Gould?"

Her invariable reply again:

"I will not tell you. Ask Mr. Gould. Let him tell you if he wishes."

But the next instant the eyes softened and Miss Lucci smiled as she said:

"I authorise you to say everything nice about Mr. Gould."

"Won't you tell us something about yourself?" Miss Lucci was asked.

"I am an art student," Miss Lucci replied. (She speaks with a marked Italian accent.)

"I was born in Italy. My parents are dead. I have no sisters or brothers. Our home was in Arezzo, but as a child I was brought up in a Catholic convent in Pisa. I am a Roman Catholic, but Mr. Gould is an Episcopalian. It is not true that Mr. Gould will become a Catholic. He has no such intention.

In America Eight Years.

"I came to this country about eight years ago—alone."

"Did you come to study art?"

"No," Miss Lucci hesitated. "I did not. I shall not tell you why I came or anything about that."

Kingdon Gould arrived at Lakewood on a Jersey Central train about 6 o'clock and hurried to Georgian court in a taxi.

"I have no statement to make," he said. "I will not say how or where I met Miss Lucci. It is my own affair and I do not intend to say anything about it."

"We will be married in the rectory of St. Patrick's on Monday, by Mgr. Ferranti—you can print that," Miss Lucci continued.

Eldest Son of Family.

Kingdon Gould is the eldest son of George J. Gould. His mother was Edith Kingdon. Since his college days at Columbia he has been interested in his father's many business enterprises. Mr. Gould took up engineering at the School of Mines at Columbia and after leaving went to Cripple Creek, Colo., in 1909, to work in the mines.

While at Columbia he was the center of an anti-hazing agitation that resulted in its abolition there.

Young Gould in his college days was an athlete of no mean ability. He rivaled his younger brother, Jay Gould, on the courts, while at polo he showed more than ordinary ability.

Lawyers Raise Fees for Actions in Court

Lawyers of Lake county, Ind., got together yesterday and boosted the high cost of going to court 25 per cent, voting themselves that increase in fees. Hereafter, according to action taken by the Lake County Bar association, a minimum fee of $50 will be charged for filing complaints in either the Circuit or Superior court of the county.

"Law is a luxury and you've got to sell it at luxury prices," said Attorney D. J. Moran of Hammond in support of the measure. A heated debate preceded the measure's passage.

TANK FALLS ON LAKE STEAMER AT MILWAUKEE

Many Hurt on Outing of Chicago Students.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Milwaukee, Wis., June 30.—[Special.]—Thirteen excursionists were killed, eight dangerously wounded, and others less seriously hurt this afternoon when a 25,000 gallon tank toppled from a steel tower 100 feet high and crashed on to crowded decks of the whaleback Christopher Columbus, on which were teachers and pupils of the Northwestern university, University of Chicago and other summer schools.

More than 400 passengers, the majority of whom, it is believed, were members of the school outing party, were aboard.

CHICAGOANS IN MAJORITY.

Most of the passengers were either Chicagoans or temporary residents here while attending school. A majority were gathered forward on the upper three decks at the point of impact.

All were intent on speculation as to where the mass of falling steel would strike, and, fascinated by the impending disaster, they stood frozen with terror. In an instant the vessel was a scene of tragedy, the survivors looking dumbly on.

DELUGE HITS DECKS.

Thousands of gallons of water, loosed by the bursting tank, flooded every deck. Staterooms were awash, saloons running with water, and debris and confusion reigned.

Many passengers, seeing the rush of water, with visions of a repetition of the Eastland disaster, leaped into the river. One young woman's body was found almost nude, her clothing torn from her in the crash.

Rescuing parties were met by harrowing sights. One woman was taken out of the wreckage almost dead. One of her legs had been torn off. Later the leg was found [illegible].

Another rescue party picked up a floating arm. Two young girls met death together. Their bodies were so badly mangled as to be beyond recognition. The body of a man was taken out of the water; a leg had been torn off. This grewsome member, too, was found.

PASTOR CONSOLES.

In the midst of the desolation there was a note of sympathy. The Rev. William P. O'Connor, formerly assistant pastor of St. Rose's church, passed about among the dead and wounded uttering requiems and consolation.

Screams of the wounded hurried the relief workers. Men and women sought their kin; failing to find them they wrung their hands in despair. But with all the confusion the passengers were landed, the dead removed to morgues, and the wounded rushed to hospitals for treatment in a short time.

Late into the night rescue parties worked dragging the bottom of the river for possible victims.

WHERE IT OCCURRED.

The accident occurred in the Milwaukee river, on the east bank, just north of the East River street bascule bridge, and at the point where the river enters a basin formed by the junction of the Milwaukee and Menominee rivers, the Milwaukee river flowing east into the lake.

The cause, as deduced from statements of both passengers and officers of the Columbus, was the failure of the tugboats to keep the steamer clear of the east bank. The bow of the steamer swung into one of the steel supports of the tank tower.

The ship started frantically to back away from the falling mass of metal. It was too late. Portions of the decks were torn away and for a time it was feared many passengers might have been carried to the bottom of the river with the weight of wood and metal.

Immediately after the mishap the river was [illegible] craft of all sorts engaged in rescue [illegible]. Men and women who were swimming for their lives, in an attempt to get away from the ship which they feared might be sinking, were picked up by rescue boats.

THIRD TRIP THIS YEAR.

It was the third trip of the whaleback of the excursion season just opened. While the capacity of the vessel is said to be in excess of 4,000 when fully loaded, it was agreed both in Milwaukee and in Chicago at the headquarters of the Goodrich Transportation company that no more than 400 persons were aboard.

As is customary with the Columbus, it arrived in the Milwaukee [illegible] around [illegible] and [illegible]

This broken umbrella handle engraved with the name "Gertrude" belonged to a young woman believed to have been killed. One of the men passengers tried to drag her to safety, but, paralyzed by fright, she refused to move. In the struggle he jerked the umbrella handle off and found it in his hand after the steel tower struck the boat close to where he had dashed out of its course.

to a block of the business center of the Columbus made ready for the return trip.

The steamer habitually docks with the stern below the Grand avenue bridge in the Milwaukee river. It is necessary, because of the great length of the vessel, to negotiate the narrow channel of the river with the aid of two tugs, one aft and one forward.

Lines were cast off and the tugs started their screaming course down stream, shipping back and forth in the water as the whims of the unwieldy vessel dictated.

The business and manufacturing districts of Milwaukee are divided by three rivers, the Milwaukee river entering from the north, the Menominee from the west, and the Kinnickinnic from the south. The junction of the three is a short distance inland from the lake and a few blocks south of the Grand avenue bridge.

BIG LINER BALKS.

The Milwaukee river, in which the whaleback was being towed, turns east into the lake at an abrupt right angle. It is here the tugs habitually cast off, leaving the steamer free to pursue its course alone into the lake on the return trip to Chicago.

To effect this maneuver the stern of the vessel is drawn west in the basin so the bow is headed for the lake. But something went wrong. Capt. Moody shouted orders to the tug captains to pull the steamer clear. They laughed and said everything was all right. James Brady, the quartermaster, was in the wheelhouse. He saw the nose of the Columbus poking toward the east bank. He leaped for the wheel.

Then an inexplicable thing occurred. The Columbus, regarded as one of the best behaved boats of the Chicago fleet, always quick to respond to the lightest touch of the navigator, refused to obey the rudder.

WAVING FAREWELLS.

The vessel was just about to pass through the East Water street bridge, the bascules of which stood upright. The windows of the factory buildings which form a continuous wall along both sides of the river, were filled with the faces of workmen and girls, waving a farewell to the excursionists. The promenade and upper decks of the Columbus were alive with merrymakers returning the farewell salutes.

In the wheelhouse Quartermaster Brady tugged frantically at the wheel. On the bridge the captain was hoarsely shouting orders to bring the vessel about. The passengers did not hear. With deadly momentum the huge hull bore down on the east bank of the river.

Passengers grew silent, waiting for the result of this peculiar maneuver. The waving handkerchiefs in the windows were abruptly halted.

SHIPS STOP WITH JOLT.

Abutting the river is the plant of the Yahr & Lange Drug company. Towering above the steamer and the river was the steel tower, powerfully anchored into the banks. On the top was the steel tank and water supply apparatus.

The ship struck. The prow was driven into the bank and bent one of the steel supports. The Columbus stopped with a jolt.

"Back her," yelled Capt. Moody. "For God's sake, back her out."

The bridge telegraph crackled and slowly the vessel responded to its engines. Slowly the steel tower began to give way. The steel tank swayed to and fro. Thousands on shore stood astounded.

Once the tank nodded gently in the direction of the vessel and its company of passengers; then gently receded. Twice it nodded, far above them, and then, as if debating on which way to fall, settled back in position again.

Then the passengers leaped back from the deck rails.

"Look out, it's coming," yelled a voice.

CAPTAIN FRANTIC.

The last nod of the tank seemed affirmative. With a crash that was heard over an area of many city blocks the mass of metal plunged, swaying, tumbling, and twisting ludicrously until it hit the pilot and the upper decks like a muffled clap of thunder.

For a moment there was dead silence. Then came the hoarse voice of Capt. Moody.

"O, God!" he cried frantically, "and I begged 'em to pull me clear; they wouldn't do it."

How he escaped none knew. The bridge, the wheelhouse, and the two upper decks were a mass of wreckage.

MANY LEAP INTO RIVER.

Without stopping to reckon further effect many of the passengers leaped into the river and swam ashore. Some struck out for the west bank and others made up and down stream in an endeavor to climb up the rip-rapping which forms a sheer declivity on both sides. Boats put out to take these to safety.

The desperate endeavors of the officers of the vessel to back out of danger came near being successful.

Had the steamer remained as it struck the bank the steel mass would have struck squarely amidships where most of the passengers were clustered waving their adieus. But when the engines responded the Columbus backed slowly out and the blow fell on the pilot house, carrying away most of that structure and also portions of the two upper decks.

Then the whole mass of wreckage, the tank, railings, woodwork, and the debris of the decks, fell into the water and sank.

SAVE UNCONSCIOUS TRIO.

The first ones to notice the plight of the passengers were employés of a provision company.

They put out in a steam launch and picked up three dead bodies and three persons who had been knocked unconscious as they were thrown into the river by the falling tower.

An emergency call was sent to the police department and to every hospital in the city to rush ambulances to the scene of the accident.

Fire Chief Clancy and Chief of Police Janssen ordered every available man under their command to assist in the work of rescue. Fireboat 15 was called into service to transport the bodies to the shore as they were dug from the wreckage by the firemen, who worked like beavers with their prongs and axes.

The first ones to reach the boat were the members of a fire truck company. The men were placed on board a fireboat and taken out of the stream to the damaged steamer.

Two men and three women were taken to the morgue by the first ambulances to reach the scene.

The Columbus backed across the river and tied up. Then the officers, aided by policemen, agents of the coroner's office, and volunteers, began clearing away the wreckage and taking the dead and injured ashore.

The dead were removed to morgues and the injured immediately taken to emergency hospitals. Those who leaped overboard and were chilled by their experiences were taken to the police station and given a change of clothing.

EFFORT TO SAVE GIRL IN VAIN.

Charles Floto of 923 East Sixtieth street, Chicago, one of the teachers, told of his attempt to rescue a girl.

"We all saw the tank coming," he said. "But I think most of the passengers expected it would fall into the water, short of the steamer. We expected to see a great splash of water and nothing more.

"Suddenly I decided it was dangerous to remain at the bow. I saw a young girl standing there with a gold headed parasol. I seized hold of this and tried to pull her out of the danger zone. But she stood fast. It seemed as if she was frozen to the spot by fear.

"I was a little frightened myself and jerked on the parasol handle. The next thing I knew I was fifty feet aft and the crash had come. I looked around for the girl. She had remained in the path of the tank. In my hand I held a gold handle of a parasol. On the end was engraved the one word 'Gertrude.'

PLAN ON U. S. ACTION.

Department of justice officials detailed in Milwaukee telegraphed to Washington late tonight for instructions as to what to do concerning the accident.

P. J. Barry, in charge of the local office, stated that he expected orders from Washington instructing him to take charge of the government investigation.

SURVIVORS TELL WHAT THEY SAW; DOCTOR'S STORY

Dr. Jacobson Finds the Medical Equipment Insufficient.

About 200 passengers of the Christopher Columbus, including some with minor injuries, arrived in Chicago last night on a special train, which left Milwaukee at 6:50.

As early as 8 o'clock anxious relatives had heard about the accident and were waiting in the union station. By the time the train pulled in at 9 o'clock there was a considerable number, and there was a scene of confusion as the returning excursionists alighted and were greeted.

Chicago Doctor Aboard.

A Chicago physician, Dr. A. F. Jacobson of 1156 West Sixty-ninth street, a supervising health officer of the Chicago board of health, was the only physician on board to render medical aid.

"There seemed to be no adequate medical apparatus on board," said Dr. Jacobson. "I called upon the assistant purser for bandages, tourniquets, and other materials. All I got was the bandages, and I had to do the best I could with just those. I improvised splints and made tourniquets from towels."

The doctor and his wife were seated amidships on the top deck.

The Doctor's Account.

"It was about ten minutes after the boat had pulled out of the Goodrich dock at the foot of Sycamore street," said the doctor, "that we noticed a good deal of whistling. This was about 4:30. It appears that an incoming freighter was interfering with the maneuvers of the Christopher Columbus. Smaller craft took up the whistling, and then, in a spirit of jollity, the passengers on board began to whistle.

"The orchestra near the dining room was tuning up, and the big boat swung around. There came the impact into the steel tower, and the great tank toppled and fell. The crash shook the boat and sent splintered wood and glass all over the decks. In a second the water which had been in the tank began to pour out. Everybody thought the boat was sinking, and there was a rush aft. The excitement increased when a couple of struggling men were seen in the water.

Lifeboat Manned.

After a while the excitement cooled down. A lifeboat was manned and lowered to rescue the men in the water. A motorboat pulled up to help.

"One of the musicians came rushing up with a big harp in his hand. 'Here's John's harp—it cost $400,' he shouted. 'We can't find him.' He took great care of the harp. Volunteers began to clear the débris and pull bodies out. With Mrs. Jacobson helping, I began to do what I could for the injured.

"It was impossible to tell before the débris had been entirely removed and the river dragged just how many were killed. I counted eight bodies."

Was in Engine Room.

Iver L. Quales, 1951 Fowler street, was another of the passengers on the train.

"As we left Milwaukee I went into the engine room," he said. "About ten minutes after we were under way I noticed a man looking out of the gangway. All of a sudden he darted toward the engine room. I heard him exclaim: 'Pull it down strong. For God's sake, quick!'

"It was just then that the whole boat appeared to shiver. I then ran toward the gangway. I saw one man swimming in the river. The entire river appeared to be full of wood and other débris. The man who had given the alarm ran toward the rear of the boat, all the time shouting: 'Hurry, men, for God's sake hurry!'

"I saw one man throw a life preserver to the man struggling in the water. He grabbed it and was pulled toward the boat.

Women Fainting.

"I was frantic myself. I rushed forward toward the steps leading to the dining room. The decks were filling with water. Women were fainting. The crew were rushing to and fro. Every person forward was drenched with water. I tried to go forward on the dining room deck, but they had a rope stretched across. I saw what seemed to be dozens of people all huddled together, lying on the floor. The sights were sickening. One woman was almost beheaded. We first thought another one was a bundle of clothes.

"Groans and shouts rent the air. A lifeboat was lowered and the crew began pulling persons out of the stream. After working about a half hour the boat was again docked. We were unloaded and were told to go to the St. Paul ticket office and we would be furnished transportation back to Chicago.

Fireboat Didn't Help.

"It seems strange to me that a fireboat that was within 300 feet from us made no effort to aid in the rescue. Hundreds of passengers saw this and made the same comment. Our crew cannot be given too much credit. They performed like real heroes. It was fortunate that there were but few children aboard."

HISTORY OF "COLUMBUS"

The Christopher Columbus was brought to Chicago in 1893, in connection with the World's Columbian exposition. Because of its whale back type it was regarded as a novelty, and was one of the principal attractions of the World's Fair. The Columbus made its first trip twenty-four years ago this month, carrying 2,000 passengers. It has been in service on Lake Michigan ever since, and is still regarded as the largest excursion boat on the lake.

At the close of the world's fair the Christopher Columbus was purchased by the Goodrich Transit company. For three months every year it has been used for daily excursions from Chicago to Milwaukee. It has a gross tonnage of 1,511 tons, is 362 feet long, and has a beam of forty-two feet.

Its first commander was Capt. Robert Smith of Duluth, who brought the steamship into Milwaukee and Chicago many times without the use of tugs.

Shortly after the Eastland disaster in 1915 the Columbus was taken out into the lake and tested with sand bags, representing passengers, for stability. It was found that 3,500 passengers could stand on one side of the boat without danger of overturning.

About a year ago the fore cabins of the boat were grazed against a bridge while the steamship was entering Milwaukee. The accident, which came near wrecking the cabin as it was yesterday, was attributed to the carelessness of the bridge tender.

War Department Cuts Excess of Staff Officers

Washington, D. C., June 30—[Special.]—The headquarters, departments, divisions, and brigades of the army will not be allowed two extra staff officers each, the war department has decided. Another proposal recently discussed widely in army circles to make one lineal list for all officers of the mobile army has also been rejected.

Pinched on Taxi Bill.

W. E. Osborn, who said he lived at the Auditorium hotel and later the Fort Dearborn hotel, was locked up last night on a charge of refusing to pay a taxicab bill of $3.50. No person of his name was registered at either hotel.

MAYOR OF GARY IS ANGERED BY HOYNE'S TALK

Gary, Ind., June 30.—Attacks made here Friday night by State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne of Chicago on conditions in Gary, East Chicago, and Lake county today brought a reply from Mayor R. O. Johnson.

"I consider that State's Attorney Hoyne did the woman's suffrage cause of Indiana and Illinois an irreparable injury by his remarks," said Mayor Johnson. "Mr. Hoyne's ego appeared to be the paramount issue in his discussion. I regard him as an extremist. His slurs upon the police departments of Gary and Indiana generally were utterly uncalled for.

"After hearing the gentleman I can understand why friction exists between his department and other departments in Chicago. He gives the woman of Chicago no credit for the use of their suffrage."

U. OF C. STUDENTS ARE INJURED IN STEAMER CRASH

Several of Those Hurt Only in School a Few Days.

Many of the excursionists on the whaleback were students in the summer school of the University of Chicago.

Miss Fannie Fay Jones of Santa Anna, Tex., and Misses Lara Nix of San Angelo, Tex., and Sallie Mann, also of Santa Anna, had been in Chicago three weeks attending the university. They are reported to be the daughters of wealthy ranch owners in Texas. They reside at the Green hotel, 5731 Cottage Grove avenue.

Mrs. Hannah McGriff, 551 Hyde Park boulevard, had been in Milwaukee for three weeks visiting with her sister. She lives alone at the Hyde Park boulevard address. Neighbors said her husband was a mine owner, but when he died it developed that his wealth had been greatly overrated, and so Mrs. McGriff opened a rooming house for university students.

Students in Hospital.

Miss Emma Taylor and Miss Bess Goddard of Somerset, Ky., both students in Chicago university, are now at the Emergency hospital in Milwaukee. They are rooming at 6040 Woodlawn avenue. They are teachers of English in Somerset and doing work in education in the university summer school.

Mrs. L. F. Copper lived at 5755 Blackstone avenue. She was killed. Her body was identified by her husband. Mr. Copper has been superintendent of schools in Lacygne, Kas., for the last four years and has been taking a course in education in the summer school.

Art Student [illegible]

Miss Sykes resides at the Three Arts club, 1300 North Dearborn street, and was taking a summer music course from a teacher in the Fine Arts building. She arrived from Aberdeen, Miss., less than two weeks ago, according to club officers, and was not well known. Several other residents of the club, it was said, had intended to take the trip on the Columbus, but they had not registered before starting and their names were not known.

To Sue City to Lift Ban on War Film

Injunction proceedings against the city of Chicago to restrain it from interfering with the exhibition of "The Little American," banned by Maj. Funkhouser because of its anti-German tendencies, will be begun tomorrow or Tuesday, Miss Goldstein of the Artcraft company announced yesterday.

"This picture is pro-American and every American citizen should see it," he said. "We will not stop until we get permission to show it."

WHISKY DOOMED; LIGHTER DRINKS EXEMPT IN BIL

Congress Yields to Ple of Wilson for Aid on Food Measure.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.] —Manufacture of distilled spirits for th period of the war is doomed. Manufa ture of beer and light wines has had i congressional sentence to death staye by the president of the United States.

Leaders of all factions in the prohib tion issue, which threatened to entang the food administration bill in a perilou mesh, admit that the president, in plea ing a respite of prohibition for beer an wine, has cleared the way for argume and final passage of the food bill on i merits.

The legislative committee of the ant saloon league tonight addressed a lett to the president declaring they wou yield to his request, through a spir of patriotism, not to delay the food b by conducting a fight for prohibiti of beer and wine, but assuring him th would resume the fight as a separa measure.

Time for Action Now.

Senator Lewis of Illinois, addressi the senate on the food bill today, adv cated confidence in the president a empowering him with full authority ne essary to win the war.

"Is the United States a government are we a collection of children, cryi for what we want and too weak to g what we need?" Senator Lewis aske "If this is a government of men, th let us do things instead of talking thing The only thing to do now and at on is for congress to put into the hands the commander of the war—the pre dent of the United States—every pow necessary for him to win the war of t people.

We ca charge the president with the respo bility and at the same time withh from him the authority necessary him to execute the responsibility.

Should Punish Guilty.

"The army needs food for blood— people need food for life. Those would take it from them would be ing to starve them. "As we are giving the preside power to control the food, let him trol the drink also. Let congress from administering either. At le a food measure be a food measu drink measure. Then let the measure be a drink measure, not measure. Let there be no further ments of political strategy.

U. S. OFFICIALS DENY EFFORT TO FIX COAL PRICES

Baker and Daniels Say Committee Has Not Power to Rule.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.] —Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels, both of them members of the council of national defense, and the former the chairman of it, threw monkeywrenches today into the machinery which brought about the voluntary reduction in bituminous coal prices by the operators of the country several days ago at the behest of the committee on coal production of the defense council.

Secretary Baker, in a letter to W. S. Gifford, director of the council of national defense, stated that he did not want the public to be misled into the belief that the council had either undertaken to fix the price of coal or to sanction what had been done by the operators and the coal production committee, which is headed by Francis S. Peabody fo Chicago. He declared that neither the council of national defense nor the coal production committee has any legal power to fix prices.

Secretary Daniels was emphatic in his declaration that he did not propose to pay $3 a ton for bituminous coal, the price agreed upon to the government by the operators.

Statement from Baker.

After reciting the history of the coal operators' conference and its agreement with the Peabody committee to fix a minimum price of $3.50 a ton for the public and $3 to the government, Secretary Baker says:

"The color which has been given to this meeting and this resolution in the newspapers may mislead the public into believing that the council of national defense has either undertaken to fix the price of coal, or to sanction its being fixed by the coal production committee, or by that committee in conjunction with the coal operators.

"I, therefore, as president of the council of national defense, write this to say that the council of national defense has no legal power, and claims no legal power, either to fix the price of coal, or to fix a maximum price for coal or any other product. The coal production committee is a subordinate committee of the council of national defense, purely advisory in its character, formed for the purpose of advising the council regarding steps which might be recommended leading to a stimulation of production and distribution of coal.

No Power Over Prices.

"No power even has been attempted to be delegated to it to consider or deal with the question of price, and any action taken by that committee, or sanctioned by that committee, dealing with prices, either fixed or maximum, for coal, is clearly beyond the legal power of the coal production committee and of the council of national defense, from which the committee derives whatever authority it has.

"The federal trade commission has been directed by the president to ascertain for his information the costs involved in coal production. The information which I have from that and other sources, I think, justifies me in believing that the price of $3 suggested, or agreed on, as a maximum, is an exorbitant, unjust, and oppressive price."

View Held by Daniels.

"I am from Missouri; I must be shown," declared Secretary of the Navy Daniels today in denying that he contemplated paying $3 a ton for coal "or anything like that."

"I am not going to pay any price until we know what it costs to produce," he asserted. "We are now making an investigation to see what it costs to produce a ton of coal. Were we to pay $4 at the mine it probably would cost $5 at the ships. I have ordered them to furnish the coal at a price to be fixed in the future."

Raise in Decatur Mines.

Decatur, Ill., June 30.—Decatur coal operators again raised the price of coal here today. This makes the price $4 delivered or $3.40 at the mines. J. [illegible] Cor[illegible] of the Decatur Coal company stated today that further increases are contemplated.

FRENCH WARSHIP HITS MINE; SUNK; 38 ON BOARD LOST

Commander Refuses to Quit Ship—Washed to Safety.

PARIS, June 30.—An official announcement was made last night that the armored cruised Kleber had struck a mine off Point St. Mathieu on Wednesday and sunk. Three officers and thirty-five men were lost. The Kleber had come from Dakar, Africa, and was on its way to Brest.

The sinking of the Kleber was attended by dramatic scenes and marked by exceptional heroism by the commander and the individual members of the crew.

The Kleber sighted a mine and was attempting to destroy it by gunfire when another appeared, which the vessel hit before it could turn aside.

Commander Washed to Safety.

When it became evident that the Kleber was doomed the commander gave the order for every one to save himself. He prepared to go down with the ship, and a plucky bugler insisted on standing on the bridge beside the captain.

The crew scrambled into the boats and went overboard as the vessel settled until the captain was almost immersed in the water. The sailors vainly urged the captain to come into their boat, but he declined to do so, the bugler remaining with his chief.

A freakish wave finally came to the commander's rescue. It tore him and the bugler from their posts and hurled them into the sea. They were rescued by a destroyer which had rushed to the assistance of the cruiser. The other officers of the Kleber showed great coolness and remained at their posts until the last moment.

Russian Schooner Sunk.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30. —[Special.]—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the first lady of the land, has enlisted.

Today she took up arms against the twin demons, food waste and high prices, and announced that she will on Monday become the first active member of the nation's food administration by signing the first of thousands of pledge cards designating housewives as coresponsible with Herbert C. SPAIN PUTS BAR ON SUBMARINES

MADRID, June 30.—King Alfonso has signed a decree dealing with submarines, with a view to avoiding a repetition of incidents such as that of Cadiz, where a German submarine took refuge and later was escorted out of the port by Spanish torpedo boats. The decree follows:

"Article 1—The submarines of all the belligerent powers are forbidden to navigate within Spanish territorial waters or to enter Spanish ports.

"Article 2—All such submarines which enter the Spanish zone for whatever reason will be interned until the end of the war.

"Article 3—The submarines of neutral nations which enter Spanish territorial waters must navigate on the surface, with their colors visibly displayed."

Flies Cause of 62 Deaths from Intestinal Trouble

Oran, Mo., June 30.—The spread of intestinal trouble among residents of Scott and Dunklin counties, resulting thus far in sixty-two deaths, most of them children, is attributed to flies by Dr. F. W. WOMEN OPPOSE OVERTIME WORK IN U. S. PLANTS

Resolutions asking President Wilson to "forbid excessive overtime in government establishments" will be placed before the Chicago Federation of Labor for action this afternoon by the National Women's Trade Union league. The memorial reads in part as follows:

"Whereas, government establishments, notably the bureau of engraving and printing, have been operating with excessive overtime, amounting to twelve hours a day and seven days a week, for several hundreds of employés, among them many women; and,

"Whereas, such practices tend to break down industrial standards throughout the country; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Chicago Federation of Labor hereby requests the president to forbid excessive overtime in government establishments and require the heads of all such establishments to add new shifts of workers where necessary to attain this purpose."

The resolutions are signed by Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the league. They are similar to those adopted at the recent Women's Trade Union league convention.

Eliminate Waste

This is the new national message gone forth to all of us in war time. Our government demands conservation of our resources and energies, urges us to avoid excesses and shun useless expenditure—not alone for economic reasons, but because the government knows that a wasteful nation or people is careless, inefficient, and not in co-operation with the state. Waste clogs up the wheels of industry, piles up labor, and hinders the smooth working of the national machine.

Carl Sulzer's Message to the people of Chicago, a message addressed to you individually, has always been to eliminate waste—bodily waste—refuse food.

The human body is like the national machine. It has the same tendency to store up useless materials, injurious, non-productive substances that vitiate, weaken and depress, that use up your strength and vitality, that cut down your energy, that prevent your physical faculties from getting one hundred per cent results. To insure the elimination of this waste eat

Sulzer Bran Bread

Sulzer's Bran Bread, made of whole grained, hard berried, spring wheat, not only contains all the necessary elements to run the human machine properly, but it also includes a factor of elimination, so generally missing in other foods. The Husk of the whole wheat grain affords a roughage, a cleansing purgative that acts upon the digestive system and intestines like a broom or sweeper, carrying away all waste deposits and giving the muscular walls a grip that helps them do their work better, more quickly and thoroughly. It is the best natural laxative known.

You owe it to yourself to use this natural means of waste elimination—Sulzer's Bran Bread. Try it today. Your whole system will be benefited, you will have more vitality, more vigor and general good health.

COURT FUNDS IN GRAHAM BANK COVERED BY BOND

Public Moneys Caught in Various Recent Failures.

When it was learned that the Graham bank had closed with $143,000 intrusted to its keeping by August W. Miller, clerk of the Circuit court, those around the county building and city hall said, "Once again." More than once in the past bank failures have caught court funds.

When the La Salle Trust and Savings bank failed in June, 1914, two of the depositors were John A. Cervenka, clerk of the Probate court, and Richard J. McGrath, former clerk of the Superior court. In each instance about 25 per cent of the loss has been recovered.

The La Salle bank failure nipped $17,242.98 deposited by Cervenka and $29,476.47 by McGrath. In the case of Mr. Miller he has taken steps to protect the money. Behind him is a statutory bond for $50,000 signed by E. J. Magerstadt, former sheriff, 4930 Greenwood avenue, and Joseph E. Bidwell, 3823 Washington boulevard.

Mrs. Graham's Bond.

Besides this, before putting the money in the bank he insisted on, and got, a personal bond from Mrs. Andrew Graham for $250,000. It is claimed that Mrs. Graham's estate is worth $2,000,000. Charles Lederer, attorney for Miller, said yesterday the county need have no uneasiness over its money.

Cervenka has made a stern fight to get the county to deliver to him a receipt in full, in spite of the fact that he had reimbursed only to the extent of $4,435.74. After the county pressed it upon him that this amount did not settle the bill of $17,242.98 by refusing to pay his salary and that of his chief clerk, Joseph Holek, he again made protest. The county board gained jurisdiction because Cervenka's deposits consisted of gross fees collected for services as clerk, and should have been turned over to the county treasurer monthly.

Superior Court Case.

The deposit of Richard McGrath, as clerk of the Superior court, was different, as it was composed of trust funds or money deposited with the court during litigation. His receiver's dividend was $7,369.13 in payment of the deposit of $29,476.47. His case has been taken to the state Supreme court, and only the other day a decision was rendered holding him responsible.

The McGrath case was carried up to the higher court after he failed to deliver to litigants $557.50 which had been placed in his charge pending the outcome of a suit.

The Supreme court decision said:

"The considerations of public policy which require the public officers who receive public money to be held to a strict measure of responsibility therefor apply just as forcibly to private funds officially received by them, for private funds are just as sacred as public property."

Fired Test Board; U. S. Buys Lewis Machine Guns

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—It became known today that since the discharge of the board of army officers headed by Brig. Gen. F. H. French, which conducted competitive tests of machine guns, an order for 4,000 Lewis machine guns has been awarded to the Savage Arms company by the war department.

The order was based on the findings of the test board. These guns will be chambered for United States ammunition, but an additional order for several hundred Lewis machine guns chambered for British ammunition also has been placed.

2 Escape Death When Car Turns Double Flipflop

Kenosha, Wis., June 30.—[Special.]—Buried under the debris of a wrecked automobile, which turned over twice in its trip down a ravine after being struck by another automobile, which never stopped, Miss Martha Mendenhall, daughter of J. W. Mendenhall, and Franks Wolfe Jr., son of F. E. Wolfe, had a miraculous escape from death here last night. Wolfe was terribly bruised and cut. The victims are among the best known people in Kenosha society.

BANKING SITUATION SOUND

Authorities Declare Graham Failure Has Not Disturbed Other Institutions.

BY EUGENE HECTOR.

[Financial Editor of The Tribune.]

THE failure of A. J. Graham & Sons' bank is not regarded by Chicago bankers as reflecting an unsound situation.

"Andy" Graham was trusted by reputable and disreputable people on the west side. While he was alive he was able to secure from those who owed him money payment of their loans. To the sons, however, who succeeded to the business, many of these borrowers would give no consideration and their loans continued unpaid.

Developments up to last night did not indicate dishonesty in the affairs of the institution, though the record of bank failures has generally shown a misappropriation of funds.

The bank did business through the Continental and Commercial National, which cleared its checks until last Friday, when a statement of the private bank showed it unable to pay its obligations.

It appears that no one within five years has had a statement of the Graham bank indicating its condition. When such a statement was finally rendered, the institution was closed.

The bank underwrote an issue of bonds of the Morrison Hotel company. It is said, however, that the Graham bank came out with a profit on this particular underwriting.

The banks in outlying regions of Chicago are generally considered as in good position. A number of state institutions have been organized on the basis of a previous private real estate business.

Inquiry of members of the clearing house committee resulted in statements that the local banking situation is sound. A member of the clearing house committee said yesterday:

"Andy Graham was typical of private banking methods. No one knew just what the condition of the bank was. The state had no supervision over him and the clearing house committee left the matter to the Continental and Commercial National, which took care of the checks of Graham & Sons' bank. It finally developed that the bank was insolvent and as soon as this condition became known to the Continental and Commercial National the Graham bank was closed."

The Graham bank is regarded as an example of the results of unsupervised banking institutions. The importance of the failure is considered entirely local and without significance as to the general banking situation.

DEVELOPMENTS

Chief Disclosures and Incidents of Day in Graham Bank Failure.

DEVELOPMENTS of the day in the untangling of the financial troubles of the Graham & Sons private bank yesterday are:

William C. Niblack, receiver, finds cash assets in vaults of bank totaling $140,000.

Judge Carpenter sets examination of the Graham brothers and their mother for 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Referee in Bankruptcy Frank L. Wean named to hear examination.

Motion to include estate of A. J. Graham and Mrs. Graham's property in proceedings denied.

Petition for second receivership in federal court, brought by Attorney Henry Blum, denied.

Petition for third receivership, brought by August W. Miller in Circuit court, withdrawn.

Revealed that Mrs. A. J. Graham is on the bond of Miller, clerk of the Circuit court, who has $143,000 in the bank, for $250,000.

Discovered that west park board's $50,000 in the bank is secured by bonding company.

Depositors notified that they must file their claims through the court.

Attorneys for Grahams ask State's Attorney Hoyne for a conference.

Hoyne declines to say if failure will go to grand jury, remarking: "We must wait developments."

Records at the court house show that it has not been the habit of the Grahams to render a sworn statement of their banking properties each year for assessment. For the year 1916, the assessment was fixed at $80,000 with a penalty of $40,000 added for failure to assess. This was increased to $150,000 for 1917, with $75,000 penalty added for the same reason.

CITY'S FINANCES UNTOUCHED BY GRAHAM FAILURE

City Controller Eugene R. Pike said yesterday that the city had no funds in Graham & Sons' bank. He said that two years ago the firemen's pension fund had $25,000 or $30,000 on deposit in the bank and that after a conference with Charles H. Sergel, then city treasurer, the money was transferred to the First Trust and Savings bank.

"It has been erroneously stated that the reason the city had no funds in Graham's bank was because Graham was a Democrat while the administration is Republican," said Mr. Pike. "We do business with 101 banks and this office has never considered the political beliefs of the heads of those institutions.

"Graham & Sons operated a private bank. All of the city's funds are deposited only in national and state banks."

MRS. GRAHAM LONG OWNER OF GRAHAM BANK

That Mrs. Minnie F. Graham, widow of Andrew J. Graham, is and has been the chief owner of Graham & Sons' bank since some date prior to Jan. 15, 1910, more than five years before Mr. Graham died, was revealed yesterday. This situation was disclosed by an examination of Mr. Graham's will, filed in Probate court May 29, 1916.

This will leaves all of his property to Mrs. Graham, real and personal alike. Then it calls attention to the fact that he had conveyed to her his entire interest in the bank at an earlier date. The will explains that his reason for calling attention to this fact is to ratify and reaffirm it.

Search of the records failed to show this conveyance and it is believed that it was never recorded. This fact has raised some question as to its validity in view of recent developments. A number of instruments were filed by Mrs. Graham, as executrix, during the year of the probating of the will. None of these contains any reference to the bank property.

Held to Grand Jury as Dr. Blunt's Successor

Dr. J. Shank, alleged to have supplied "patients" of Dr. Arthur L. Blunt with habit forming drugs while Dr. Blunt was in jail following his recent arrest as a drug trafficker, waived examination when arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason.

RECEIVER FINDS GRAHAM BANK OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Declares Books Show No Irregularities, but Slow Assets.

Niblack has taken charge of as receiver. Comparing what he found in the Graham bank with other banks, he said:

"This is more like the old time failures. Recently in about every instance of a bank failing we have found comparatively little except the notes of the bankers. Here everything seems to be all right. Notes, bonds, securities of all kinds appear to be everything that is claimed for them. On Monday we will look into the bonds carefully."

Asked about a printed report that Ryan, Condon & Livingston, attorneys for the Grahams, are also acting as attorneys for the receivers, a matter that had created considerable comment, he explained:

"It is an error to say that they are acting for both sides. I talked over the advisability of retaining them with Judge Carpenter yesterday. Ryan, Condon & Livingston had settled the estate of Andrew Graham and are more familiar with the situation than any one else. It is a complicated affair, and they will be valuable because of the information they have. Judge Carpenter saw the point and agreed.

"The attorneys for the Grahams are Winston, Payne, Strawn & Shaw.

"When the bank was opened yesterday morning the Graham boys had no thought that it would be closed before night. Action was precipitated by several unexpected things which came suddenly."

Mr. Niblack then said that not a thing wrong had been found with the books. Asked about a statement by State's Attorney Hoyne that the bank used a loose leaf ledger and that the files under "G" were missing, he looked surprised and said that if such was the case he had not discovered it.

$353,500 Due Mrs. Graham.

Among the liabilities of the bank was found the "special account of Mrs. Minnie F. Graham." This account shows $353,500 due her from the bank. Mr. Niblack said that this was apparently not a part of the reported $400,000 which she poured into the bank—money from Andrew Graham's life insurance policies—in a previous effort to save it.

"It was Mr. Graham's account, transferred to his widow," said Mr. Niblack.

Usually, in a bank failure, the receiver continued, nothing but trouble is found. He added: "This bank apparently has real assets. About one-third is in real estate. Necessarily, it will be slow to realize upon, but it ought to be good."

Jury Action Unlikely.

Grand jury investigation into the affairs of the bank, hinted at strongly by State's Attorney Hoyne immediately after the closing of the institution, seemed less likely yesterday.

"I can say nothing before I have a conference with attorneys representing the Graham boys," he said. "Also I shall talk with the receiver."

Attorney John S. Black of the firm of Winston, Payne, Strawn & Shaw communicated with Mr. Hoyne's office yesterday and asked for a conference with the prosecutor. He announced that his firm is representing the Grahams.

"I shall ask Mr. Black to see me on Monday and will arrange also for a talk with Attorney Condon and Attorney Andrew J. Ryan, who settled the estate of Andrew Graham and who have been retained by the receiver," said Mr. Hoyne. "Any action I will take depends somewhat on these conferences."

Decision Delayed.

Mr. Hoyne said that it would probably be Tuesday or Wednesday before he could make any definite statement in regard to any grand jury investigation.

The west park board's deposit of $50,000 in the Graham bank is completely protected under a surety bond of two and a half times its total, William Ganschow, treasurer of the board, said yesterday.

"It is protected by the American Surety company," said Mr. Ganschow. "This $50,000 has been on deposit in the Graham bank since December, 1912. This money, as well as a considerable portion of other funds of the board, really belongs in the northwest side banks."

Profit on Bonds.

A statement that the bank had suffered through the handling of Hotel Morrison bonds, a rumor that has persisted, brought a reply yesterday that the Grahams had not only got out "clean" but that they had profited $60,000 by the deal.

The question of the taxable value of the Graham bank, as rendered, was brought up yesterday and investigation of the books in the offices of the tax department in the county building showed that it has not been the habit of the Grahams to render a sworn statement. Instead they have permitted the bank to be placed upon the unrendered roll and to accept the resulting penalty. The figures for the last two years are:

FOR 1916.

Assessment	$ 80,000
Penalty	40,000
Total	$120,000

FOR 1917.

Assessment	$150,000
Penalty	75,000
Totals	$225,000

Police continued to guard the front door of the bank all day yesterday—but the door was open. Any one who possessed a key to a safe deposit box might enter by showing the key to the policeman at the door.

Many anxious ones came to the bank yesterday asking what they were to do about their Liberty bonds. Those who had instructed the bank to deduct the payments when due from their accounts were told that two payments had been made on the bonds, the last on June 28.

Depositors Hopeful.

Depositors who crowded about the bank doors expressed faith in its ability to pay a large per cent of the money on deposit.

One of the incidents of the day was the withdrawal of the motion of a receiver before Judge Frederick A. Smith in the Circuit court. The motion had been entered by counsel for August W. Miller, clerk of the court, who had asked action for the protection of the funds deposited by him in the bank.

A row over the closing of the bank and the attempts of various creditors to obtain redress developed in Judge Carpenter's branch of the federal court when the judge refused to permit the appointment of a second receiver.

This second petition was filed by Attorney H. S. Blum of the law firm of Blum, Wolfsohn & Blum. Judge Carpenter told Blum that he did not propose to tangle the affairs of the settlement by the appointment of agents whose interests might conflict.

"Plenty of Time."

"We have plenty of time to go about this," he said.

Discord within the ranks of the creditors and receiver's counsel developed when objection was made to the appointment of the law firm of Ryan, Condon & Livingston as attorneys for Receiver Niblack. It was declared that this firm has represented the Graham estate and therefore would be prejudiced.

Michael Gesas, attorney for the creditors, upon whose motion the receiver was appointed, was given permission by Judge Carpenter to make an examination of the bank's books, now held by Mr. Niblack, so he may be able to question witnesses intelligibly on Monday when the examination is begun before Referee Wean. Gesas represents the interests of the American Laundry Machinery company, having a depositor's claim of $6,000.

Subpoenas Issued.

Subpoenas were issued yesterday for Ralph R., Frank J., and John B. Graham and their mother, Mrs. Minnie Graham, widow of the late Andrew J. Graham, founder of the bank. They will be present in Referee Wean's court at 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Still another storm arose when the question of the examination before Referee Wean on Monday arose. The referee indicated he might not follow Judge Carpenter's suggestion in the matter of conducting the hearing. The judge told Attorney Francis J. Houlihan, of counsel for one of the petitioning creditors, to tell Referee Wean that it was the court's desire to have the counsel for the petitioning creditors conduct the examination. Mr. Gesas, as counsel for another group of creditors, already had obtained subpenas for witnesses, and James G. Condon, of counsel for the receiver, said he wanted to conduct the examination.

Referee Is Stirred.

"It looks like everybody wanted to do this investigating and that everybody wanted to rush ahead with it with no consideration for the referee," said Mr. Wean. "Is the referee to have nothing to do with it at all?

"I do not purpose, if I am to act as referee, to have the matter all muddled up. It will proceed in orderly fashion or I shall wash my hands of the affair."

"I held no conference with Mr. Houlihan," said Judge Carpenter later, "and I han," said Judge Carpenter, "and I didn't know any of counsel were waiting in the courtroom to make any protests against Messrs. Condon and Ryan acting as counsel for the receiver. I merely called Mr. Houlihan to tell him what he might say to the referee. Furthermore, I did not intend that the idea should be conveyed to Mr. Wean that he was to follow my suggestions. He runs his own court, and I run mine. He may do as he sees fit."

BALANCE SHEET

Receiver of Graham Bank Issues Statement of Assets and Liabilities.

WILLIAM C. NIBLACK, in charge of the closed Graham & Sons bank for the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver, gave out a statement of liabilities and assets yesterday as follows:

This statement, Mr. Niblack explains, is incomplete, but it takes in the chief items and all those that are vitally important. The bank's statement of resources and liabilities with some minor items included show that they balance, at the close of business June 29, the last full day of operation, at $5,450,000.

Mr. Niblack says that the missing items in the above table "would make a long list of small matters which have no important effect on the bank's standing one way or the other."

COMMERCE BANK TO PAY DEPOSITS IN FULL MONDAY

City Controller Eugene R. Pike was notified yesterday by the Bank of Commerce and Savings, 30 North Michigan avenue, which closed its doors several days ago, that it would pay off its depositors in full Monday. This city has $25,000 on deposit in the institution.

Gives $30,000 for School Building.

Bloomington, Ind., June 30.—[Special.]—A gift of $30,000 has just been made by Mrs. Hanna Reed of Fort Branch, Ind., to the Presbyterian board of education, the money to be used to erect a building for the Presbyterian student pastor of Indiana university.

AGED, NEEDY, AND SICK KEEP VIGIL AT CLOSED BANK

Depositors of Wrecked Graham Institution Watch at Doors.

And still they come.

An old white haired woman, Mrs. Maggie McKenna, of 2941 West Lake street, arrived at the Graham bank about 3:30 yesterday afternoon and could not understand why the policeman at the door would not let her in. She had just come from the hospital, where she had undergone an operation on her eyes which left her about half blind.

No news of the trouble had reached her till she arrived at the doors. She was nearly 60 years old and had managed to save $1,800.

"Not this bank," she said; "not this bank failed. I only come to get $5. All I want is $5 to keep me. I been in the hospital and not working for a long time. I spent all I had on the doctors. Just $5—let me have just $5," she pleaded.

Lacked Even Bread Money.

Mrs. Alvena Owens of 110 South Peoria street, the mother of four children, said she came to get enough to pay the rent. Three hundred and thirty-[illegible] dollars was the amount of her small savings. "We didn't have a cent to even buy bread last night," she said.

With two little curly headed girls clinging to her skirts, Mrs. J. Sheridan of 937 West Congress street was back again at the bank doors at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. She had saved $1,000 for her children.

Threatens Reporter.

Mrs. Anna Lutz passed restlessly up and down before the bank. She listened in on the conversations of the various groups and watched each individual like a hawk.

One of the newspaper men was surprised when she came up to him and, in a voice cracked with hysteria, said:

"If you don't get me my $600 I'll kill you."

It took a long time to convince her that the man she spoke to was not Mr. Ralph Graham.

Mrs. Augusta Smith of 12 North Halsted street waited around all afternoon to see if she could not draw out her $200. For years, she said, she had been partially blind.

"I want to draw my money out so that I can have something to take care of me when the light goes altogether," she said.

Jeffery Six touring car climbing steep grade.

PERFORMANCE!

Good looks, stream lines, Morris-chair comfort—all these are "car essentials."

But you want something more—Performance!

When the Jeffery Six owner presses the starter-button for his summer tour he knows he has a car he can depend on. He knows that no matter what the roads, mud, sand, corduroy, mountain trail or smooth macadam, that his Jeffery Six has the grit and stamina to carry him there and back at the head of the procession.

If you want to see for yourself how much you can safely expect of a real automobile, we suggest a Jeffery Six demonstration. A trial ride will show you new conceptions of speed. Without taking you away from your business more than an hour we'll lead you to "hard going" right inside the city limits of Chicago that is a match for anything you'll encounter in a month's tour. And after you see how this Jeffery Six meets conditions as they are, you will realize why the Jeffery is so immensely popular.

The Jeffery Six motor develops more power than any car at its price. It will go faster and further than any car in its class.

PERSHING GIVES WARM GREETING TO FOLLOWERS

French Port Turns Out in Full to Welcome the Americans.

BY W. S. FORREST.
[UNITED PRESS CORRESPONDENT.]

A FRENCH PORT, June 30.—For the first time in history two American generals on a belligerent mission have met, saluted, and clasped hands on French soil.

It was the meeting of Maj. Gen. John J. Pershing and Maj. Gen. William L. Sibert here, where the American expeditionary army is waiting to get into action, safe after a journey over perilous waters.

"Black Jack" Pershing arrived to meet with his men two days after every last soldier had been disembarked, luggage and all, from the great American transports.

Happiest Day in France.

"This is the happiest of the busy days I have spent in France," the commander in chief said. "Today I have seen our troops safe on French soil from transports safeguarded in their passage by the resourceful vigilance of our navy. Now our task lies clear. We hope to make this force worthy in skill and determination to fight side by side with our brothers in arms of the French army."

Gen. Pershing was accompanied by Gen. Pelletier, the French army officer detailed to his staff. The party inspected the American camp. Then the American army joined hands with the American navy in a luncheon with Admiral Gleaves, commanding the navy conveying squadron to the transport flotilla, and his staff.

Cheer Marching Troops.

Gen. Pershing visited Admiral Gleaves aboard the flagship of the convoy fleet in the evening following his arrival. The admiral was probably the busiest man in the port. He was constantly receiving and transmitting the most important orders and information to Washington and to American officers already ashore, as well as to commanders of the vessels in his fleet.

Thousands of the American troops, glad to get a chance to stretch their legs, paraded through the town their first evening ashore headed by a band. The entire town turned out to greet them. Cheers and tears mingled as they swung by waving back to the French men and women waving flags and fairly carried away with their enthusiasm.

One little barber hustled out of his shop to watch the troops march by.

"They'll finish the war soon," he said as he waved a greeting to the sturdy Americans.

German Prisoner Boasts.

The Americans hurried to "get acquainted" just as soon as the detachments were dismissed ashore. One bronzed Clevelander—a recruit—accosted a German prisoner working in the streets. The enemy prisoners had been watching the landing with far seeing eyes. The Cleveland boy spoke a few brief phrases to him in German.

"You're an American," the German responded. "You're not coming here to fight Greasers now. You'll find this different," and he went on up the street.

A big husky American Negro, one of the stevedores on the transport fleet and an enlisted worker, thought he had found a friend when he espied the black face of a French colonial. He went up immediately, his face parted in a smile of greeting and spouting away about how "glad he was to seen another nigger."

But the French colonial, who spoke only French, didn't understand the dusky and voluble person who had accosted him. He muttered a few phrases in French, looked a little frightened and tried to slip by.

"That's the ignorantest nigger I ever saw in my life," disgustedly remarked the American Negro to a soldier passing by.

OPEN WARFARE RENEWED UPON RUSSIAN LINE

PETROGRAD, June 29.—[Delayed.]—Renewed activity of the Germans indicated in the reports from the front in the last few days presumably is the result of a revival of the Russian fighting spirit and a joint conviction that a separate peace is impossible.

The correspondent at Minsk of the Birzpevicya telegraphs that the Germans, who during the period of fraternization almost completely laid bare their battle front, are now feverishly fortifying their trenches and are creating a new defensive line twenty miles behind the first in preparation for a retreat.

Fraternization, the correspondent says, has entirely ceased and soldiers immediately fire upon parlementaires. The Germans have been obliged to return to their former system of propaganda, dropping from airplanes the pamphlets containing abuse of Russia and her allies.

From the Riga front comes a similar report. The Germans there are said to be fortifying their lines and to have been obliged to ask for reinforcements. The Germans at Mitau are reported to be awaiting the arrival of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Quartermaster General von Ludendorff.

First Writer at War Front to Be Killed Is Frenchman

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 30.—Serge Basset, a distinguished French war correspondent attached to the British armies, was killed yesterday by rifle fire while watching the fighting about the Lens salient.

Although several correspondents have been wounded, Serge Basset is the first journalist to be killed in the field during the present war.

Basset had been awarded the Legion of Honor for literary and dramatic work. He will be buried tomorrow with military honors.

8,000 AUSTRIANS KILLED IN FUTILE ORTIGARA CLASH

ROME, June 30.—At least 8,000 Austrians succumbed in the fruitless enemy offensive around Mount Ortigara between June 10 and 25, according to war office estimates today.

The battles for this dominating point set a new mark in ferocity. The Austrians attacked in successive waves with every known device of killing—big guns, little guns, machine guns, liquid fire, flame projectors, asphyxiating gas, mines, and bayonets. The ground was literally churned into powder and soaked with the blood of the fighters.

Today neither side held Ortigara. The barrage waves of both the Italian and Austrian forces converged over its summit, making it impossible for any human being to live through the rain of shells.

Buys First Fir Lumber for New Wooden Ship Fleet

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Purchase of the first installment of a consignment of fir lumber to build thirty wooden ships, obtained by the emergency fleet corporation at $30 a thousand, was announced today by Chairman Denman of the shipping board. The purchase was made at $5 a thousand below the price agreed on by fir producers and the defense council's lumber committee. The Coos Bay concern's price, it was said today, was made voluntarily.

America Makes Protest on Danish Utterance

LONDON, June 30.—Reliable information reached London today to the effect that Dr. Maurice Egan, American minister at Copenhagen, has delivered a protest to the Danish foreign office against anti-American utterances of M. Stauning, Socialist member of the Danish cabinet, at the Stockholm peace conference.

CUT 'FRILLS' ON RAILROADS TO AID SERVICE

Washington, D. C., June 30.—War portions in dining cars and elimination of nearly 1,000 passenger trains already marks the progress up to today of the movement to place the country's railroads on a war efficiency basis.

Reductions in the numbers of de luxe trains, special and excursion trains, and a heavy curtailment of parlor, club, dining, sleeper and observation car service also have been inaugurated.

The first effects of these measures, according to the railroads' war board today, was seen in 23.3 per cent more bituminous coal moved last month than in May, 1916. The railroads are also loading freight cars with 10 per cent more than their registered capacity.

The Lackawanna railroad is serving "war portions" in all its diners. A war portion is about one-half or two-thirds of the regular portion and the price is apportioned on the same scale.

VON HINDENBURG OFFERS RUSSIA AN ARMISTICE

COPENHAGEN, June 30.—It is reported from German sources that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, chief of the general staff, in a wireless message has again offered an armistice to Russia.

This time his wish is to suspend hostilities during the election of delegates to the Russian constitutional convention.

The report is not confirmed officially, but it is in accord with preliminary intimations last week that Von Hindenburg's new offer was contemplated.

German Flyer, Conqueror of 30 Foes, Killed in Air

COPENHAGEN, June 30.—Lieut. Allmanroeder, a German aviator who was one of the brightest stars of Lieut. Baron von Richthofen's battle squadron, has been killed in aerial combat. Lieut. Allmanroeder had a record of thirty victories, although he only passed the pilot examination last January.

BRITISH FORGING ON; FRENCH STOP GERMAN MASSES

Haig's Losses Reported Small; Teutons Cut Up, Paris Says.

BY ED L. KEEN.
[UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, June 30.—While Germany is throwing vast masses of men over the bloody slopes of the Verdun battlefield, Field Marshal Haig tonight is gaining ground by leaps and bounds around Lens—and without massed attacks.

At Verdun the French were decimating the attackers, according to reports. Around Lens the British forces were succeeding with what front dispatches tonight termed an astonishingly small casualty list.

Haig Slowly Forges Ahead.

The two offenses—both major in scope—illustrated the difference in strategy of the two sides. With Haig it was a continuation of the "biting" process.

The British front on the three sides of Lens is now about ten miles long, with the Germans driven from the dominating positions. It is Gen. Haig's plan to shove his troops forward by localized attacks—first a smash at one spot, then a blow struck violently at another objective perhaps several miles distant.

But around Hill 304 and Dead Man's Hill the Germans are continuing their favorite mass plan of attack. Serried close waves of gray coated soldiers are sent forward to overwhelm the French.

The killing has been tremendous in the destructive French barrage fire. But the Germans only gained a small section of land on the west side of Dead Man's Hill.

Germans Claim Success.

The Berlin version was that a trench line from Bethincourt to Esnes had been taken; a third of a mile of French positions on Dead Man's Hill occupied, and 825 prisoners taken, with heavy losses to the French.

Of the other German offensive blow—designed to relieve pressure on Laon—the Germans claimed to have entered French rear trenches southeast of Corbeny over nearly a mile front, blowing up dugouts, and taking many prisoners.

Describes Battle at Lens.

Perry Robinson describing in the Daily News the bombardment of German defenses before Lens, says:

"It was a stupendous spectacle. A thousand guns broke the stillness all at once and above the deafening roar of guns and bursting shells the air shrieked and wailed as it was torn by projectiles overhead.

"Fumes of bursting shells arose almost like a solid bank in which the bursting shrapnel grew redder as a cloud thickened and here and there dazzling white flares and signal lights arose out of the darkness against the sky.

"Then began the rain, at first slowly, then in sheets, followed by a tropical downpour, through which twin thunders of guns and sky went on and lightning flash and shell burst flickered inextricably through the veil of water. It was an extraordinary sight."

EXCESS PROFITS MUST GIVE MUCH WAR REVENUES

Nearly Three Quarters of a Billion Asked by Senate Bill.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—The senate finance committee today completed its draft of the big war revenue bill and the bill probably will be reported to the senate on Monday by Chairman Simmons. The committee has had the measure before it since May 22.

As altered by the committee, it is estimated that the bill will raise a total of $1,652,170,000, as compared to $1,800,000,000 estimated to be raised under the house bill. The committee determined today that it would not add any bond issue provision to the bill. If a bond issue is required congress will be in session again, it was held, in time to provide it.

Increase Excess Profits Tax.

Many radical changes have been made in the house measure by the committee, particularly in connection with the excess profits tax, it being estimated that the senate excess profits tax will raise $305,000,000 more than the house bill.

The committee has stricken out the increases in customs duties, estimated to raise $200,000,000. It also has eliminated the house taxes on insurance, automobile tires and tubes, musical instruments, motion picture films, jewelry, chewing gum, and admissions to clubs.

Under the committee bill the estimated increases in revenue from first class mail matter have been reduced from $70,000,000 to $50,000,000, from second class mail matter from $19,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Insert Tax on Edibles.

The senate committee has inserted in the bill excise taxes on sugar, tea, coffee, and cocoa, which, it is estimated, will raise $86,000,000 in revenue.

The senate bill has placed a tax of 5 per cent on the net profits of newspapers and magazines and provides an increase of a quarter of a cent a pound on second class mail matter, doing away with the zone system, and increases in the second class mail matter carried in the house bill. It has also provided that parcel post packages shall pay a tax as well as express packages.

It has eliminated the house tax on electric lights, gas, and domestic power, though it has retained the taxes on telephone and telegraph service. It has cut in two the taxes on passenger service on railroads. It has reduced the estimated additional revenues on soft drinks, sirups, etc., from $20,000,000 to $10,000,000.

A final meeting of the committee is to be held Monday to check up on the bill. At that time Senator La Follette will offer his substitute for the entire bill, but this will be voted down.

DEMON DEMS WIN HOUSE BALL GAME GARD PINCH HITS

Annual Ball Game Nets 43 Runs, 45 Errors, and $3,000 Cash.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—In the presence of President Wilson, members of the cabinet, and other high officials, the house of representatives Democratic baseball team today defeated the Republican team, 22 to 21, in a benefit baseball game for the Red Cross.

The game lasted three hours and twenty-three minutes and netted about $3,000 and many thousands of laughs. Only forty-five errors were made, leaving the old record of fifty-six undisturbed, but leaders of both sides pointed out that not a ball was caught by an outfielder, a showing never duplicated in the many house baseball contests.

Gard Starts Two Batting Rallies.

The Democrats came from behind. Representative Gard of Ohio started a batting rally in the sixth inning, with the score 12 to 6 in the Republicans' favor, and with Representative Mudd of Maryland, an old college pitcher, mowing down Democratic batters regularly. Gard supplanted Bankhead of Alabama at bat and initiated such a swatfest that when the side was out the Democrats had a three run lead.

Mudd cleared the bases with two on in the last half of the sixth, and, despite the fact that Representative McClintic of Oklahoma, Democrat, tackled Representative Farr of Pennsylvania, Republican, in an effort to keep him from scoring, the Republicans kept running around the bases until at the beginning of the ninth the Democrats again were four runs behind.

Win Out in Ninth.

Again in the ninth Gard made a hit which scored two runs and gave the Democrats so much courage that they accumulated six runs, just enough to win.

Prince Kalanianaole, Hawaiian delegate to the United States, played one inning, and slid home amid much applause and dust. Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Americans, umpired.

Bulgaria Fears Enemy Drive.

BERNE, June 30.—Fear that Gen. Sarrail, commanding the allied expeditionary forces in Macedonia, may be preparing a general offensive, has led Bulgarian army chiefs to ask the German general Von Mackensen to preside at a general war council, according to dispatches received here today from Bulgaria.

PRACTICAL AMERICA—AND THE FRANKLIN CAR

AMERICANS are at heart a practical people. There is something in them that responds to Thrift; something that makes them ashamed of extravagance and waste.

They may get off the track occasionally, but they always come back to the main road of efficiency and common sense.

$300,000,000 Wasted in Gasoline and Tires Every Year

The average American is busy. Outside his business he lets others do his thinking. He thinks with his crowd.

He did this on motor cars. He bought dead weight and rigidity, ponderous machinery and big wheel-base.

He lugged around radiators and plumbing, a water-cooling system of 177 parts.

He paid the price in upkeep and depreciation, tire destruction, gasoline waste.

It cost him in a year about $600,000,000 and did not give him the comfort of the flexible, easy riding Franklin, with its world's record of economy in cost of operation.

There is no middle ground in this thrift question.

A car has it—or it has not.

Like easy riding comfort—if thrift is there it proves itself.

Take the tire question, for instance.

If the owner of a heavy machine uses his car as freely as the Franklin owner uses his scientific-light-weight car, in three years he will buy four sets of tires to the Franklin's two—and the tires alone will cost him nearly three times what they cost the Franklin owner.

There never was a more complete demonstration of a principle than the way every thrift-record in the fine car class has been established by the Franklin Car.

Efficiency Standards Established for Motor Cars

Gasoline! Franklin National Economy Test, May 1, 1914—94 Franklin cars in all parts of the country averaged 32.8 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

And again May 1, 1915—137 Franklin Cars averaged 32.1 miles to the gallon.

And again in the Yale University Fuel Economy Test, where Professor Lockwood and Arthur B. Browne, M. E., established the fact that the Franklin Car uses less gasoline per mile than any other car with six or more cylinders.

Oil! In the New York to Chicago Oil Test the Franklin Car ran 1046 miles on one gallon of oil.

Power! Efficiency Test by the Worcester Polytechnic Institute demonstrated that the Franklin delivered 84.4 per cent. of its engine power at the rear wheels.

Tires! The National Tire Average of Franklin owners for five years is 10,203 miles.

Investment Value! If you find a used Franklin for sale, you will pay twenty per cent. more for it than for any other fine car in proportion to its first cost and the use it has had.

American Motor Cars Carry More People than the Railroads

The more this country gets down to stern realities the bigger place there is for the Franklin Car.

There is nothing new in the Thrift of the Franklin—only more people are recognizing it.

The Franklin owner has nothing to change, nothing to explain or excuse.

He is using his car more instead of less, because it is primarily a car of utility, owned and operated on a Thrift basis.

It must be gratifying to him that he saw these things before the call to the National Thrift.

WAR ACTIONS ON VARIOUS FRONTS OFFICIALLY TOLD

Berlin Claims a Crushing Defeat for the French; Other Theaters.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, June 30.—North of St. Quentin an enemy surprise attack on one of our small posts in the region of Gricourt was repulsed.

On the left bank of the Meuse the activity of both artilleries was great between Avocourt Wood and Le Mort Homme. All the enemy attempts were driven back by our counter attacks. We took about twenty prisoners, including three officers.

DAY STATEMENT.

Northwest of Cerny (Aisne front) the Germans renewed their efforts, making two strong attacks, in which jets of liquid flame were used, on Bovelle. After a spirited combat they gained a foothold in a salient completely leveled by the bombardment.

The artillery fighting continued with extreme violence in the whole region between Avocourt and Dead Man's Hill (Verdun front). Late yesterday we made a counter attack west of Hill 304, where we regained part of the trenches occupied by the enemy on the preceding day.

At the same moment the Germans launched a most powerful attack west of Dead Man's hill on a front of more than two kilometers. Our men resisted with the greatest valor the furious assaults of picked troops and almost annihilated the enemy.

He succeeded in penetrating our first line over the whole length of the front attacked, but was driven out at almost all points by our energetic counter attack, except on the slopes west of Dead Man's hill, where he is maintaining himself. We took eighty prisoners belonging to four different regiments.

In the Champagne, a strong enemy surprise attack west of Navarin farm was repulsed completely.

BRITISH.

LONDON, June 30.—Our troops again made progress during the day south of Lens and captured a further portion of the enemy's trench system in this area, with a few prisoners.

A hostile raiding party was repulsed this morning southeast of Gouzeaucourt.

AVIATION.

Several encounters took place in the air yesterday between our airplanes and large formations of hostile machines. As a result five German airplanes were brought down and four others were driven down out of control. One other enemy machine was shot down by fire from the ground. One of our airplanes is missing.

DAY STATEMENT.

Additional information now available confirms the success of our recent operations in the neighborhood of Lens.

Besides the captures of prisoners and machine guns already reported, an important advance has been made on a total front of about four miles to a depth of over a mile.

As a result of our attacks a series of strongly organized defensive systems on both banks of the river Souchez, covering the town of Lens, has been captured.

Our troops have gained the whole of their objectives on each occasion with slight loss, while inflicting considerable casualties on the enemy. Positions of great strength and tactical and strategic importance thus passed into our hands.

A hostile raiding party was repulsed during the night northwest of Gouzeaucourt.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, June 30.—Last night an enemy attack against one of our advanced posts near the Ferryman's house was repelled. The German artillery was active in the region of Steenstraete and Het Sas.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, June 30.—Army group of Crown Prince Rupprecht—The artillery fighting was within moderate limits, owing to the rainy weather, and there was heavy firing at only a few places.

In the afternoon a British company supported by airplanes flying at low altitude broke into our trenches southeast of Armentieres. It was at once driven out by a counter attack.

Enemy detachments reconnoitering at night were driven back on several occasions.

Our own thrusts on the Yser and northwest of St. Quentin resulted in the capture of several Belgian and French prisoners.

Army group of the German crown prince—After effective preparatory fire Bavarian troops carried out a powerful reconnaissance southeast of Corbeny. Assaulting troops forced their way into the rear of the French lines over a front of 1,200 meters, and in spite of a solid defense blew up some dugouts. They returned with a large number of prisoners.

In the evening Westphalian regiments extended their gain of the previous day east of Cerny. By a surprise assault they captured several enemy trench lines south of La Bovelle farm. The number of prisoners was increased appreciably.

Simultaneously the French attacked twice with strong forces near Cerny. They were repulsed in hand to hand fighting.

The gain achieved on the western bank of the Meuse Thursday has been extended on the eastern slope of Hill 304. A Posen regiment stormed about 500 meters of French positions, and storming detachments of Brandenburgers and Berliners took possession of enemy trenches in the ground stretching from Bethincourt toward Esnes. Here Thursday and Friday 825 prisoners were brought in. The enemy offered stubborn resistance, and his losses were heavy.

He increased them still further by making futile counter attacks on the southeastern fringe of Avocourt wood and against the southwestern slope of Hill 304.

Army group of Duke Albrecht—There is nothing important to report.

RUSSIAN FRONT

GERMAN.

BERLIN, June 30.—Army group of Prince Leopold—Owing to the increasing pressure of other entente powers the Russian fighting activity in eastern Galicia begins to give the impression that attacks are intended.

A strong Russian destructive fire has been maintained since yesterday against our positions from the Lemberg-Brody line to the heights south of Brzezany.

Near Koniuchy Russian forces made a night attack, but were driven back with heavy losses by our annihilating fire.

The firing activity also increased considerably north and northwest of Lutsk.

AUSTRIAN.

VIENNA, June 30.—The enemy artillery fire, which has been increasing during the last few days, has assumed great intensity since yesterday afternoon in the neighborhood of Brzezany and Koniuchy.

Where the situation made it necessary, our artillery replied with a vigorous and destructive fire.

An enemy infantry attack launched near Koniuchy broke down under our curtain of fire.

RUSSIAN.

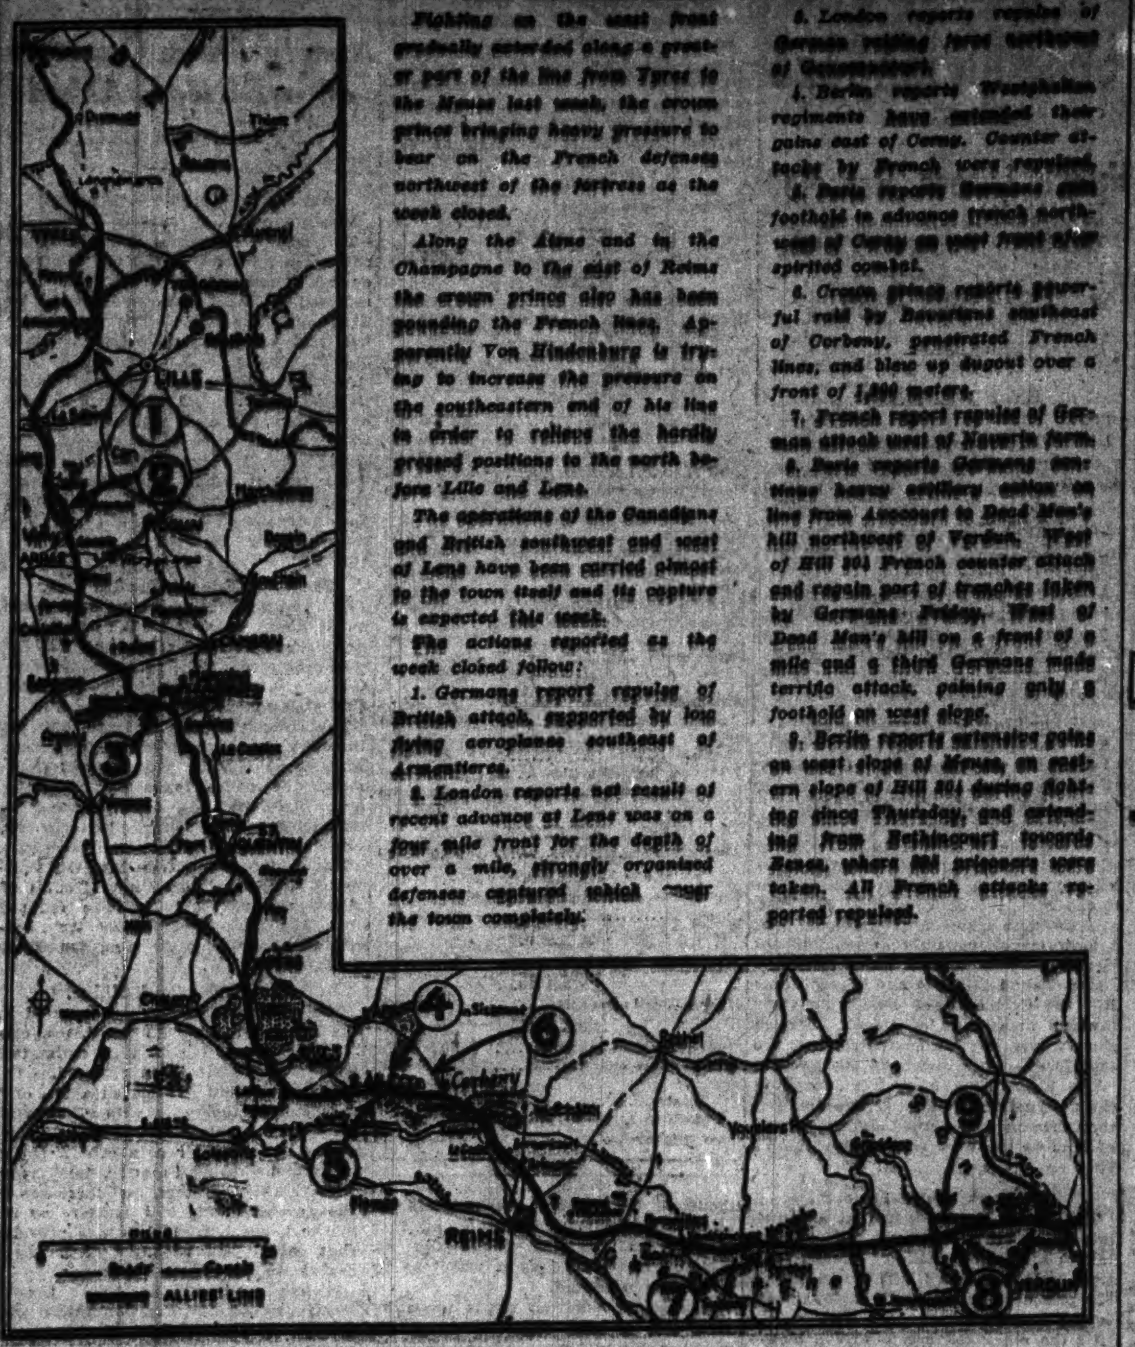
OPERATIONS ALONG THE WESTERN FRONT



Fighting on the west front gradually extended along a greater part of the line from Ypres to the Meuse last week, the crown prince bringing heavy pressure to bear on the French defenses northwest of the fortress as the week closed.

Along the Aisne and in the Champagne to the east of Reims the crown prince also has been pounding the French lines. Apparently Von Hindenburg is trying to increase the pressure on the southeastern end of his line in order to relieve the hardly pressed positions to the north before Lille and Lens.

The operations of the Canadians and British southwest and west of Lens have been carried almost to the town itself and its capture is expected this week.

The actions reported as the week closed follow:

1. Germans report repulse of British attack, supported by low flying aeroplanes southeast of Armentieres.

2. London reports net result of recent advance at Lens was on a four mile front for the depth of over a mile, strongly organized defenses captured which cover the town completely.

3. London reports repulse of German raiding force northwest of Gouzeaucourt.

4. Berlin reports Westphalian regiments have extended their gains east of Cerny. Counter attacks by French were repulsed.

5. Paris reports Germans gain foothold in advance trench northwest of Cerny on west front after spirited combat.

6. Crown prince reports powerful raid by Bavarians southeast of Corbeny, penetrated French lines, and blew up dugout over a front of 1,200 meters.

7. French report repulse of German attack west of Navarin farm.

8. Paris reports Germans continue heavy artillery action on line from Avocourt to Dead Man's hill northwest of Verdun. West of Hill 304 French counter attack and regain part of trenches taken by Germans Friday. West of Dead Man's hill on a front of a mile and a third Germans made terrific attack, gaining only a foothold on west slope.

9. Berlin reports extensive gains on west slope of Meuse, on eastern slope of Hill 304 during fighting since Thursday, and extending from Bethincourt towards Esnes, where 825 prisoners were taken. All French attacks reported repulsed.

150 NAMES AND FORTY FACES NET FORGER $250,000

Boston Police Hold 'Master'; Chicago Lawyers Out $12,000.

Forty faces
150 aliases
ten months
} = $250,000

It's a problem in criminology and mathematics that the Pinkertons have compiled to summarize the record of Washington Leroy Campbell, held by the Boston police on complaint of the agency to answer to forgery and swindling complaints from more than 200 cities.

Campbell is styled by the Pinkertons as the "Forger King." Lawyers, supposedly men of the world and sufficiently "wise" to evade the "con" man, have been his principal victims. Four Chicago attorneys, whose names are suppressed, matched wits with Campbell and then charged between $12,000 and $15,000 to the "experience" account of their loss ledgers.

Ten Busy Months.

Campbell has been out of jail about ten months. In that time he has used 150 aliases, grown beards and mustaches enough, and dyed his hair times enough to change his facial appearance forty times, and collected an aggregate of more than $250,000.

George B. Spicer, a lawyer in the Tennessee state penitentiary, is the master conceptionist of Campbell's latest plan.

Briefly, his plan was as follows:

He would rent an office, print letterheads, and paint on the door the name of a mythical partnership. His next step would be to go to another town, 100 miles or more from the first, and consult a lawyer. He would tell the lawyer of the partnership, say that he was dissatisfied, and ask what steps could be taken to dissolve it. He would authorize the lawyer to employ additional counsel in the town where the partnership existed. To the lawyer he would be, for example, Brown, of Brown & Jones.

The Plot Thickens.

He would hurry back to the town and await the appearance of the additional counsel engaged by his lawyer. When that lawyer appeared Brown would represent himself as Jones. He would agree heartily to plans for dissolution and finally to a financial settlement. He would pay by check, the check made out to Brown's lawyer.

The final step usually took place at a conference between Brown and his original lawyer. He would be present when the check made by Jones arrived. He would go with the lawyer to a bank, pay him his fee from the proceeds of the check, pocket the rest, and disappear.

In no one of the 150 operations in which lawyers were swindled was the amount less than $1,000. The highest was for $4,000. The average was $1,500.

Forty-four of the names used by Campbell are known to the Chicago Pinkerton offices.

"When we found him," read a telegraphed report from George A. Leith, superintendent of the Boston Pinkerton agency, "Campbell had in his possession 117 checks made out in amounts from $1,000 to $4,000 against lawyers of prominence in ninety-two different cities of the United States.

"A leading Boston hotel had been victimized and while looking for the forger who gave them a bad check we ran across Campbell. He will probably be brought to Chicago to answer one of the four warrants against him there."

A Long Record.

Campbell's record is a long one. In 1907 he specialized in girls with business ambitions. He advertised for business partners, preferably young women, opened joint bank accounts with them, and then withdrew the money and decamped. This netted him about $15,000 until Mrs. Rachael P. Stone, who then lived at 224 Wisconsin avenue, trapped him. He served a year in the bridewell.

Leroy then took to marrying. Half a dozen wives, in as many different cities were found by the Pinkertons in their chase. In 1912 he was put in jail for four years in Tennessee, where he met Spicer and had the lawyer field explained to him.

Campbell was released in June, 1916. Since then he has "put over" the $250,000 in bad checks.

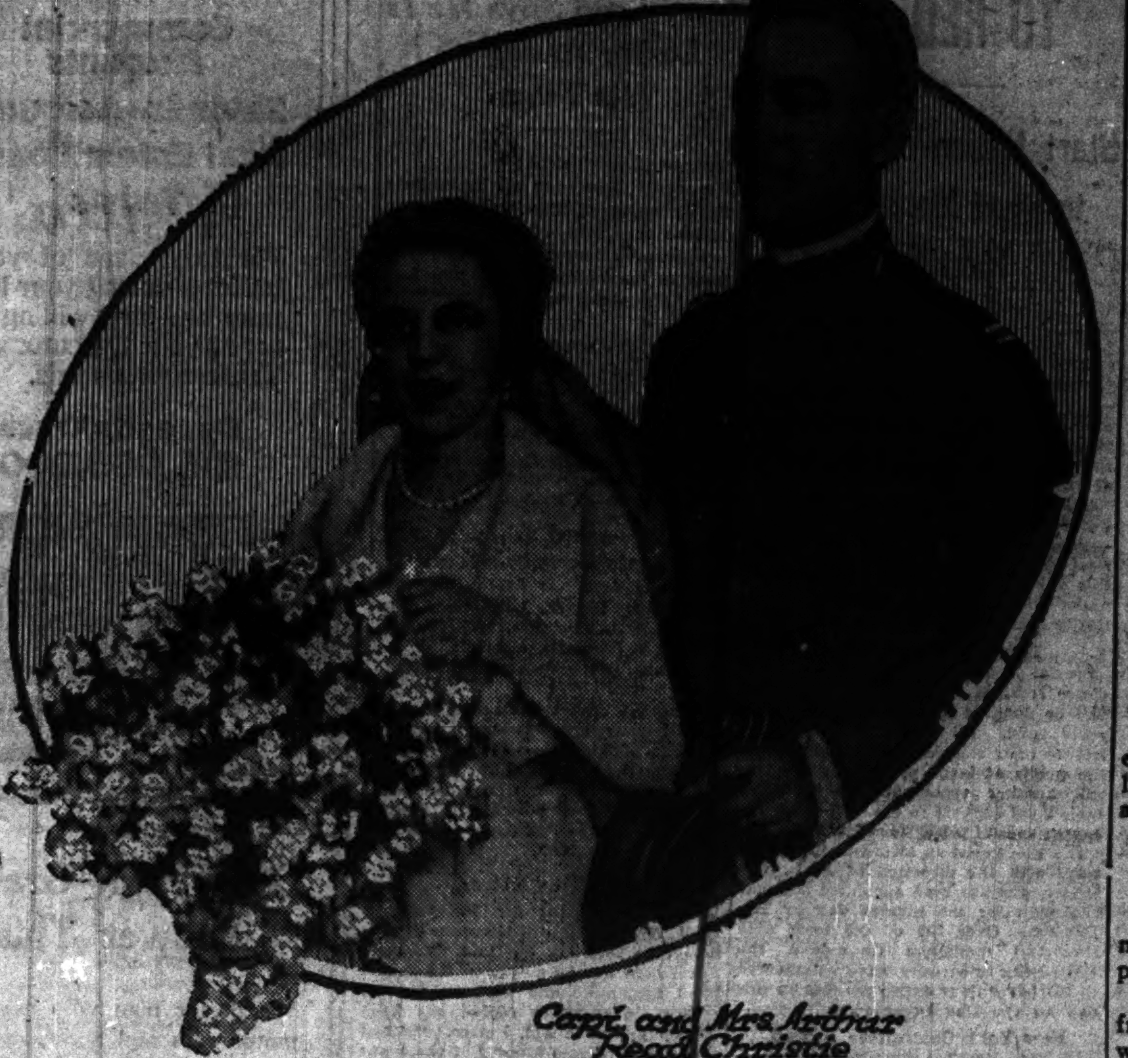
MILITARY WEDDING

Society Attends Nuptials at St. Chrysostom's Church.



Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Read Christie

SOCIETY KNITS AS SABERS CLASH AT CHURCH WEDDING

Capt. A. R. Christie Weds Miss Mary Louise Russell.

BY MARGERY CURREY.

"Draw sabers!"

The command startled a churchful of guests at the wedding yesterday afternoon in the pretty little north side St. Chrysostom's church, which is the setting for so many weddings of the fashionable set, when Miss Mary Louise Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Russell of 19 East Goethe street, was married to Capt. Arthur Read Christie, U. S. A., with full military ceremonial.

The command of Capt. Hanney, a member of the bridal party, given just as the final words of the ceremony were pronounced, was followed by the swift drawing of swords from their sheaths by the eight soldier groomsmen, who stood four on each side of the aisle. At a second command four pairs of sabers clashed together, forming a pointed arch under which the bridal couple and the wedding party came down the aisle.

Knitting Needles Fly.

And while the sabers were clashing, so were the knitting needles. Several women were busy making gray wool scarfs. Apparently it's as proper to knit in church as on the front porch.

The observances of the wedding, both at the church and at the reception at the bride's home which followed, were simple. The bridal gown was made of white satin cut in straight lines, with a court train and a tulle veil falling to the end of the train, where a cluster of orange blossoms rested. White garden flowers made the bridal bouquet.

Miss Doris Russell, sister of the bride, wore a net and lace gown cut in girlish lines. The other attendants were Mrs. John W. Root and Miss Aerielle Frost. Their gowns were of blue, as it is the infantry color, the branch of the service to which Capt. Christie belonged before he entered the aviation corps.

Service Uniforms.

Little Susan Henrotin and Sara Brewster were flower girls and carried baskets of daisies. The groomsmen were in service uniforms of khaki. Capt. Joseph C. Morrow was best man and the ushers were Capt. Hanney, Capt. Roy Brown, Capt. Ray Hill, Lieut. Paul Root Davison, Lieut. Harrison Flickinger, Joseph Kelleher, John McIlvaine, and Knight Cowles.

One of the distinctive wedding presents was a flag made by hand by the grandmother of the bride at the time of the civil war and sent her by her uncle, John Russell, of Boston. Other presents were a silver tea service presented by the "enlisted personnel from the aviation school squadron," and a silver flower basket from other army friends of the groom.

At the reception the bride cut the cake with the saber of her husband, a characteristic of the war wedding. The chancel of the church was hung with two immense American flags.

Capt. Christie, who is in charge of the aviation signal corps in Chicago, expects to go to Dayton, O., this week to the aviation school there. Plans for the honeymoon, which must be short, were not divulged.

SHIP BOARD GETS GERMAN CRAFT, SEIZED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Eighty-seven of the German merchant ships seized in American ports at the beginning of the war were turned over by President Wilson to the shipping board today for operation. The other fourteen already are in possession of the navy department.

The total tonnage of the eighty-seven ships exceeds 500,000. Several have gone to the war department for transports, but it has not been decidedly definitely whether they are to remain under control of the department or will revert to the shipping board. The president's order nominally puts all under the board's control.

Virtually all of the ships soon will be repaired and in service.

REA AMAZED AND DISCOURAGED BY RATE DECISION

Pennsylvania Head Says Country Will Suffer with Carriers.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 30.—President Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad company today issued a statement in which he expressed himself as "amazed at the reasoning and discouraged by the conclusions" of the interstate commerce commission in its railroad decision. The statement says:

"I am amazed at the reasoning and discouraged at the conclusions in the rate decision. The eastern railroads are the terminals for the whole country and absolutely require the 15 per cent increase immediately. The Pennsylvania system is indicative of conditions on the railroads in eastern territory and its operations verify the estimates made for the commission.

Decrease in Operating Revenue.

"The five months ending with May show an increase of about 9 per cent in gross earnings, but a decrease of about 27 per cent in net operating income, or nearly $10,500,000 compared with 1916. Costs of labor and materials are still rising, especially fuel coal, which will be increased by several millions over what was estimated in the rate case.

"Notwithstanding all the railroads are doing in coöperation with the government (and no other interests are doing more), the country will realize that there probably will be more congestion next fall and winter than it has heretofore experienced. We are bending every effort to meet that situation, but instead of putting the railroads in a position where they can give substantial assistance by additional facilities and equipment, their credit will be seriously limited by this decision, and the country at large must of necessity suffer.

Small Returns Estimated.

"The commission estimates a return of only 4.89 per cent for the year ending June 30, 1917, on the road and equipment provided for public use by the eastern railroads, and yet declines to grant a reasonable increase in rates. What credit or progress can be based on any such inadequate return?

"The experience and the weak condition of the railroads for five years prior to 1916, with practically no new mileage constructed and insufficient terminal facilities, is utterly ignored.

"I dislike to criticise any governmental decision, but the people should know why it is impossible to provide adequate facilities and service, which are imperatively required for this growing country, and should understand how unjustly the eastern railroads are being treated."

WESTERN PRESIDENTS SILENT.

Heads of western roads, with the exception of Marvin Hugitt, chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago and Northwestern, refused to comment on the rate decision.

"I have nothing to say at the moment except that the decision comes as a disappointment," said Mr. Hugitt.

Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central, E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe, and A. F. Banks, head of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern, were asked their opinion on the ruling and all declined to comment.

BREAK-UPS

Widow, Whisky, and Beer Figure in Divorces.

ROSE ROWAN, 25 North Morgan street, told Judge Thomson yesterday that her husband, John R. Rowan, had been friendly with a widow named Annie Brown, at 1152 Washington boulevard. Private Detective Harry L. Cullet confirmed Mrs. Rowan's testimony. Judge Thomson granted a decree.

Mary Wahl, 1311 Irving Park boulevard, said Ernest Wahl drank whisky in the morning and beer in the evening, getting intoxicated on an average of three times a week. Judge Thomson granted Mrs. Wahl a divorce.

Laura F. Grondahl was awarded a $1,400 life insurance policy and $200 alimony by Judge Thomson. She was also awarded a decree from Alfred G. Grondahl, 911 North Richmond street, an employé of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, on infidelity charges.

New suits filed:

Kathleen B. Hewitt charges Harvey J. with extreme cruelty.

Mary Voight says Mathias poured boiling water over her bare foot.

Michael McGuire states Katherine broke a plate over his head.

Herman M. Knauth charges Alice with infidelity and names J. C. O'Connell.

DENY BRAZIL IS AIDING U. S. NAVY

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—There were emphatic denials at the state and navy departments today, although officials refused to permit the use of their names, of reports that the Brazilian navy was coöperating with the American fleet in South American waters. At the navy department it was stated that the American fleet is patrolling the Atlantic ocean from Newfoundland "to the south pole, if necessary, to get a German raider," and the department was not informed whether Brazilian warships were even patrolling off their own coasts or were at their base.

Naval officials declared the reports of Brazilian navy coöperation to be "patently untrue," as Brazil has not yet recognized a state of war with Germany.

ALLIES GAINING UPPER HAND NOW, PREMIER CLAIMS

Lloyd George Says World Must Be Made Safe for Freedom.

DUNDEE, June 30.—"We have driven the great army of Germany underground," Premier Lloyd George said in a speech here today. "When a great army is driven to these tactics it is the beginning of the end; it means that we are pounding a sense of inferiority into every pore of the German military mind.

"It is good for the war, is even better for after the war. As long as the Prussians have an idea of superiority in their minds Europe will not be a decent place for people to live in peace. It will be easier after this."

The Prussian, said Mr. Lloyd George, has many virtues, but a sense of humility has never been among them. The premier added that the Prussian is now being taught the virtue of humility with a fierce and relentless lash.

Must Meet Sacrifice.

Speaking of the sacrifices the people had been called on to make in the war, Mr. Lloyd George said there had been no privations in this country thus far and that while there were privations in Germany and Austria, those countries were still fighting.

Food must be brought within the reach of the people. Present prices were largely dependent on prices over which the government had no control, in America and elsewhere, but steps such as were within its power had been taken to keep the prices of food within bounds. The government would even go to the extent of resorting to the exchequer in order to see at any rate that the price of bread was within the compass of the bulk of the people.

Victory Slow but Sure.

"We are fighting for the rights of men and women and we shall win," he continued. "I always knew the struggle would be a prolonged one and made plans on that presumption, but with continuous persistence and unfaltering will we shall win."

Mrs. Dorothy Haskell, through her attorney, H. L. Richard, filed suit in the Superior court yesterday for $10,000 damages against W. W. Tarr, F. G. Stover, and the Boston Dentists. Attorney Richard said the action was caused by a careless operation performed on the petitioner by the dentists.

IDAHO, LATEST U. S. SEA GIANT, TAKES TO WATER

Camden, N. J., June 30.—Another monster fighting machine for the navy took to the water here today from the yards of the New York Shipbuilding company when the superdreadnaught Idaho, sister to the Pennsylvania, flagship of the Atlantic fleet, was successfully launched.

Henrietta Aurelia Simmons, granddaughter of Gov. Alexander of Idaho, was sponsor for the big ship, and because of war conditions the general public was not admitted to the ceremony, which was witnessed by a small group of navy, congressional, and company officials.

The Idaho will carry twelve fourteen-inch fifty caliber rifles, mounted in trios in four turrets, two fore and two aft.

Geared turbine engines will furnish the 32,000 horse power necessary to hurl its 600 feet of length and 33,000 tons of bulk through the water at a rate of more than twenty-one knots an hour.

There will be twenty-two five-inch fifty-one caliber rifles; four three-inch anti-aircraft guns; and a great battery of powerful searchlights.

Below the water line two twenty-one inch torpedo tubes supplement the terrific broadside weight of the ship's guns.

Smallpox Victim Found in City; Negroes Exposed

Health department inspectors yesterday discovered a Negro woman, a victim of smallpox, at 2448 South Dearborn street, and six others of her race who have been exposed. Another case where a number of persons had been exposed was found at 609 West Madison street. Vaccinations were ordered in both places.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner, has strongly advised all persons to be vaccinated, as there may be other cases of the disease yet undiscovered by the department.

THEATERS PLAN TO GIVE ONE DAY TO RED CROSS

Start Nation-Wide Move to Swell Mercy Fund Next Fall.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—One of the most gigantic undertakings ever attempted in the way of theatrical benefits is now being planned by the war council of the American Red Cross, of which Henry P. Davison is chairman.

A national Red Cross theatrical day will be designated some time in the fall—probably in October, when the theatrical season will be in full swing. On this day it is planned to stage a huge nation-wide theatrical benefit in practically every theater in the country.

Receipts to Red Cross.

Special performances will be run. The entire receipts of the various theaters will be donated to the Red Cross war relief fund. All the actors will contribute their salaries for the day. And the public at large probably will have still another opportunity to evidence their loyal support to the Red Cross by paying special prices for tickets.

The movement is already well under way, with the direction of A. L. Erlanger, who has been appointed national chairman for the theater day by Mr. Davison. Over 250 of the most able theatrical managers throughout the United States already have volunteered to turn over their entire receipts on this day to the Red Cross fund.

New York Committee Named.

In New York a committee has been appointed including Marc Klaw, David Belasco, Lee Shubert, George M. Cohan, Sam Harris, Henry W. Savage, Oliver Morosco, Charles Dillingham, Arthur Hammerstein, Florenz Ziegfeld, Marcus Loew, E. F. Albee, Martin Beck, Alf. Hayman, A. H. Woods, Comstock, Elliott & Gest, Zelwyn & Co., John D. Williams, and Sam Scribner.

Outside of New York other committees are being formed, composed of theatrical leaders in their respective territories. These committees and local Red Cross authorities will coöperate. Among the managers outside of New York who have already volunteered their services are Harry Powers and his staff of Chicago.

BIG BILL ONE OF THESE MARTYRS, ORGAN'S WAIL

Republican Says He Is Living Ahead of His Time.

Ladies and gentlemen!

We have with us again the Republican—weekly organ of the city hall—which this week introduces us to William Hale Thompson, the "most prominent public official in the United States, who has openly proclaimed himself pro-American."

To show the reason "Big Bill" is persecuted the editor begins his article with a short poem, one stanza of which reads:

The man is thought a knave or fool,
Or bigot plotting crime,
Who, for the advancement of his race,
Dares live before his time!

Compared to Lincoln.

And then the mayor, "whole hearted, strong, and true," is again compared with Lincoln, and the editor expresses gratification that President Wilson, who has been consistently attacked by the Republican for the war, is reading the paper.

Among the advertisers noted in yesterday's issue are Frederick Lundin, president of an automatic door company; the G. A. R. laundry, owned by Albert H. Severinghaus, now a member of the school board, and Henry Utpatel, lawyer and master in chancery and former alderman.

Attack on Fetzer.

The correspondent for the Seventh Ward William Hale Thompson Republican club bemoans the fact that Ald. Fetzer deserted the mayor on the school board appointees and laments, to wit:

"We are sorry to record our keen disappointment in Ald. Fetzer. He had a chance to redeem himself at the council meeting last Friday and failed miserably, leaving his friends and the fellows who elected him without a defense for his strange conduct. If he wants to get out of public life he ought to resign."

Sergeant Leon Henry Le Levre, formerly a sergeant in the Belgian army, yesterday joined the Third engineer corps, Company D. Sergt. Le Levre was wounded eighteen times in the fighting in France. He arrived in this country on June 14.

The Great Question and Its Answer

How shall we provide for our soldier boys on their return from war?

Hundreds of thousands of young men, largely drawn from mercantile, industrial, and professional pursuits in the great cities, are being sent to war. In a year or perhaps two or even three years from now they will return; to what?

They will have lost pace with their former pursuits, become accustomed to rough life in the open, perhaps be more or less incapacitated.

What provision will be made for these men or their families?

It is going to be the greatest problem of the war, to this nation and perhaps to you personally.

Its answer; an answer so remarkable, practical, and complete that private information of it having reached the government officials of a great foreign nation, full and complete advance details were asked by them, with the statement that it is the most far reaching, practical, and best solution of this problem ever devised by human brain; is about to be made public.

Perhaps your boys are going to war.
Perhaps your husband or brother is going to war.
Perhaps you yourself will go to war. What after?

This remarkable answer will appear in full and complete detail, exclusively in

STATE LAWYERS BAN LEGAL AID TO DRAFT DODGERS

Governor Seeking Independent Men for Exemption Board.

Young men who have hopes of avoiding conscription through the aid of attorneys saw their plans rudely dashed yesterday when the board of governors of the Illinois State Bar association decided it would be held unethical for lawyers to be employed in the behalf of persons appearing before the exemption boards.

The resolution adopted by the board of governors provides not only that legal counsel before a board of exemption will be unethical but also that attorneys may not appear in the behalf of persons already in the military establishment who may be seeking to hold higher office than they now hold. Thus soldiers seeking commissions will find it necessary to do it on their own hook.

May Appear as Friends.

It will not be considered unethical, however, for attorneys to give gratuitous advice to their friends in any matter relating to the military establishment and they may appear solely in the capacity of friend.

In connection with the impending sittings of the exemption boards Chief Clerk Dennis J. Egan of the board of election commissioners yesterday sent out notices to the members of the eighty-six draft exemption boards. They will be given the oath of office on Tuesday.

Exemption Appeal Boards.

In the meantime Gov. Lowden is looking for twenty-five good men and true to serve on the draft exemption appeal boards. There will be three of these boards in Chicago and two downstate. Because of the difficulty in obtaining exemption boards acceptable to the administration, it is the intention of Gov. Lowden to be more than usually careful in the selection of men for the appeal boards. Each will consist of a lawyer, a doctor, a farmer, a representative of labor, and a representative of the business interests.

HOYNE FILES AN OUSTER AGAINST NEW TRUSTEES

State's Attorney Hoyne yesterday filed ouster proceedings in the Circuit court against eight Thompson school trustees and the attorney, business manager, and secretary of the new board. Judge Charles M. Walker granted Henry A. Berger, assistant state's attorney, leave to file informations in the nature of quo warranto proceedings. The informations are returnable July 6 before Judge Walker.

Mr. Hoyne's move was not anticipated yesterday and he proceeded without giving notice to Samuel A. Ettelson, corporation counsel. The old school board is made the complainant against the new, while Lewis E. Larson is complainant against Albert H. Miller and Percy B. Coffin, secretary and business manager respectively of the new board; and Angus Roy Shannon holds a like position with regard to Charles R. Francis, attorney for the new board.

The new appointees' possession of the school board is termed illegal and unwarranted and it is charged they are usurping the functions of office rightly belonging to the old board. The following board members are made defendants:

Edwin S. Davis, president; Albert H. Severinghaus, vice president; Richard Gannon, Anthony Czarnecki, Dr. Sadie Bay Adair, Mrs. E. G. Snodgrass, Hart Hanson, and George B. Arnold. Charles Peterson is not included in the ouster as he is also a member of the old board.

Mr. Hoyne's three original suits against Messrs. Coffin, Miller, and Francis were withdrawn several days ago to avoid a technical issue raised by the corporation counsel. This time, said Mr. Berger, there will be no technicalities and the subject will be taken up for a decision on its merits solely.

ROBT. RUEPING GETS NEW TRIAL OF DIVORCE CASE

Judge Frederick Smith in the Circuit court yesterday granted Robert Rueping, diamond broker at 29 West Madison street, a new trial of the suit by which Mrs. Maude Madson Rueping, 4121 North Lincoln avenue, was granted a divorce from him.

At the hearing Mrs. Rueping said he beat her when his meals were not properly prepared.

Rueping in a cross bill charged his wife with infidelity and alleged she attempted to shoot him twice. The jury found him guilty of cruelty and her not guilty of attempting to take his life.

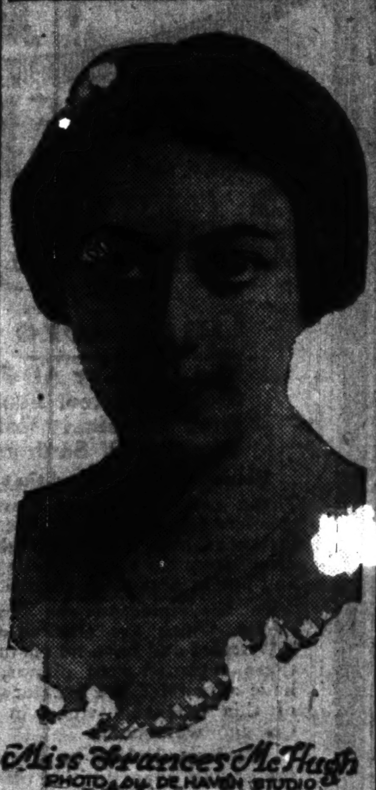
KNEE WORTH $24,800

Jury Gives Injured Orphan Nearly $10,000 More than She Asked.



Miss Frances McHugh

DAUGHTER OF JURIST JOINS GOTHAM MISSING

New York, June 30.—One more was added to the list of 500 girls who have vanished from the streets of New York since Jan. 1, when the disappearance of Miss Thelma Pomeroy, daughter of Judge C. W. Pomeroy of Kalispell, Mont., was reported.

Profiting by the proved carelessness of the New York police, who failed to discover the murderer of Ruth Cruger and spread the report that she had gone away voluntarily, the girl's friends reported the case to the Newark police, who sent out the general alarm tonight.

Roy Soule, editor of Hardware Age, and a friend of the Pomeroys, notified the police and wired the girl's father. The Pomeroys are wealthy, but the girl preferred an independent career. She lived in Washington Square and worked as a stenographer. She disappeared Tuesday after sending a telegram from the Jersey Central station at Jersey City saying she would "be right home."

Judge Pomeroy is on his way east to join the search for his daughter.

JURORS RAISE GIRL'S VALUE OF KNEE TO $24,800

Orphan Given Verdict for Accident at a Loop Crossing.

How about $15,000 as the price of a knee? Not enough!

The jurors in Judge Tuthill's court yesterday looked at Miss Frances McHugh and her crutches and increased her own valuation of her perfectly good knee. They gave her a verdict for $24,800, which was nearly $10,000 more than she was demanding from the Frank Parmalee company for injuries in being run over by one of the company's wagons.

Struck by Skidding Wagon.

Miss McHugh was crossing the street at La Salle and Lake, when she was struck by the skidding wagon. Dr. Ladvit Johnson and other experts said her knee would never be well. Besides she had other injuries, it was shown, that kept her home and deprived her of a position as stenographer.

Pedestrians who had seen the accident on April 15, 1915, experts of nervous ailments, and surgeons were put on the stand by Miss McHugh's attorney, James L. Bynum, while the defense had as witnesses more experts and engineers, and photographers.

Julius Praie, the driver, said Miss McHugh ran into his wagon and that his speed was one mile an hour instead of from twelve to fifteen miles, as charged.

Victim an Orphan.

Miss McHugh, who is an orphan, lives at 4014 West Polk street. When told of the verdict, she said:

"O, those good jurors; they did their best to repay me for all my torture."

The defense is planning to appeal it was said.

So Mad He Offers $50 for Capture of Fowl Thief

Somebody stole eleven prize chickens from Archibald Brown, 5137 South Wood street, Friday night. He is so incensed that he offers a reward of $50 for information leading to the arrest of the thief. NATION TO DRAFT 50,000 MEN FOR REGULAR ARMY

Move Is Forced When They Fail to Enlist for U. S. Service.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—The war department will be compelled to draft about 50,000 men to fill the regular army to authorized war strength. This was decided today when returns from the country at the close of recruiting week showed that the regular army still requires 57,275 men to fill the ranks.

Today's recruits are not expected to reach more than 2,000, and volunteer enlistments will cease at midnight in so far as credit to the states is concerned in making up the quotas for the new army under the selective draft law.

Asks Names for Boards.

Emphasizing the gravity of the task, the war department today called upon state governors for nominations to the upper tribunals that will single out the men for America's new armies.

On each board the farmer, the industrial employer, and the laboring man each will have "a friend at court." In a letter to each governor Secretary Baker drew attention to the double responsibility that rests upon the boards—to raise armies and at the same time avoid injuring vital industrial agencies of the nation.

Comprise Many Classes.

Every board will be composed of one member in close touch with the agricultural situation of each district; another with wide knowledge of industrial conditions, and one in touch with the laboring man—preferably a representative of organized labor. In addition there will be one physician and one lawyer.

"They must be men possessing mentality, experience, and information that will enable them to solve the very difficult economical problems to be encountered," Baker told the governors. "They must insure the interests of the nation against the urging of private claims."

U. S. COMMISSIONS FOR CHICAGOANS

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Fourteen men from Chicago were given commissions in the officers' reserve corps by the war department today. They are:

Theodore L. Laist, 5323 Sheridan road, major engineers.

William B. Causey, office of president, Chicago Great Western, captain engineers.

William Michener, 5427 Blackstone avenue, second lieutenant engineers.

Clayton McKinley Deam, 830 North Dearborn street, second lieutenant engineers.

Walter D. Charles, 57 East Elm street, captain quartermaster corps.

DANIELS GIVES NAVAL POLICY OF U. S. IN WAR

Declares the Submarine Is Vital Problem of the Moment.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—[Special.]—Naval policies in the war with Germany were authoritatively outlined for the first time by Secretary of the Navy Daniels in an interview he gave me today.

Despite the lack of preparedness of the American navy to deal with the submarine menace, although the United States went into the war two years after the president first called upon Germany to abandon its submarine campaign, Secretary Daniels is satisfied with what the navy has done and is doing.

"The policy," he said, "is simply to do at any given moment the thing most effective to win the war for our allies and ourselves."

Classed with Stiletto.

Mr. Daniels was asked at the outset whether he still has faith that the German submarine can be put out of commission as an effective instrument of warfare.

"Yes," Mr. Daniels replied. "I do not think there is any doubt on that point. It will be a useless thing because we have got to make it so in this war. Furthermore, it will be put in the same category with the stiletto after the war and absolutely ruled out of warfare by civilized nations. Remember that this war is not going to end until those same civilized nations are sure of themselves in declaring that the barbarities which have developed in the last three years have ended for all time.

Two Things to Do.

"But for the present we are concerned chiefly with the problem of making the submarine useless to the enemy. There are two main things to do. They must be done simultaneously, each with daily increasing energy, until the danger of starving out our allies is at an end. These two things are the increasing of the number of ships in which supplies can be carried, and the development of every offensive agency we now have against the submarine and the discovery of what will prove to be the offensive.

"Either indifference to this very real menace or getting into a panic because of it would be fatal. There is no indifference, and will not be, but the world was dangerously close to a feeling of panic in April when the submarine reached the maximum of its destruction. I mean, of course, the maximum up to the present.

Torpedo Boat Effective.

"So far the torpedo boat destroyer has been the most effective weapon against the submarine. We have our own destroyers there, as everybody now knows, working with those of the British and French navies. There will be more, and there cannot be too many. It may be only a coincidence, but the rate of destruction of cargo ships fell off very materially about the time the American destroyers added their strength to the patrol.

"The great value of the destroyer is not dicated by the fact that most of the merchantmen that have gone down have been destroyed by gunfire from submarines working on the surface. Destruction by torpedo has been relatively small. If the combined fleet of destroyers of the various navies is made sufficiently large to compel the submarine to stay under water and fire nothing but torpedoes the U boat activity will be very materially curtailed. The number of attacks before returning to the base would then be fixed by the small number of torpedoes that could be carried.

"But so long as the surface of the sea is a safe place for the U boat and it can come up to use its guns, its destructive power against freight ships is such that no building program for new tonnage, as yet planned, can offset it.

Net Has Been Useful.

"Effective as it is, however, the destroyer is not the last word in the offensive that we must have. Neither is the net, although that, too, has been useful.

"Of course a question that is asked as frequently as any other is, 'Why not destroy the menace at its origin by capturing the submarine bases,' but that is much easier said than done. It is all very well to say, 'Damn the torpedoes,' but a navy cannot invite annihilation by going into mined harbors, and ships can do little or nothing against coast fortifications equipped with 14 inch guns. Experience at Gallipoli emphasizes this fact."

Naturally, the reference to mined harbors and coast fortifications suggested Kiel, and the probability that it was at least a dream of every man in the British and American fleets that some day the German navy might be smashed in its lair.

Nothing Impossible.

"There is more than one way to kill a cat," replied Mr. Daniels. "No place is impregnable. Nothing is impossible.

"But let us come back to the matter of submarines. It is possible—or rather, probable—that the real offensive will be a combination of the agencies I have mentioned, plus something yet to be perfected and tested. I cannot say that it has not yet been discovered. Perhaps it has been. It may be one of the many inventions which the various governments are now working on. Practically the entire inventive genius of America is engaged on this problem."

Policy Summarized.

The secretary was asked if he could summarize the American naval policy for the period of the war.

"Why, yes," Mr. Daniels replied. "The policy is simply to do at any given moment the thing most effective to win the war for our allies and ourselves. As to the specific things we have done so far and are still doing in accordance with that policy, I can mention four. We have armed and manned with navy gun crews about 200 merchant ships and are increasing the number daily. We have sent our destroyers to the other side to help the British fleet in the war on the submarines and will send more. We are taking over the cruiser patrol of the Atlantic coast on this side of the ocean from Brazil to Newfoundland.

"We have trained our naval gunners in the most difficult markmanship in the world until they have become as efficient in training a small gun on a distant, hardly visible and constantly moving periscope as they are in shooting the big turret guns at a target as big as a battleship. And a big work for the navy that is in the future will be the convoying of our troops.

Destroyers Sent Abroad.

"The next service undertaken by the navy was the sending of our destroyers over to the other side for actual participation in the hostilities at sea. This was done in spite of the theory that the place of the destroyers was with the battleship, that every dreadnaught should have at least destroyers to act as her eyes and scouts and screen her with their smoke. But a great many former theories have had to be revised in this war, so we sent the type of craft that, under normal conditions, would have been the last to go and our allies were greatly elated by our decision.

"Of course, I cannot say how many destroyers were sent, but there were enough to be effective, and more will go later. Sixty new destroyers for the American navy are now under construction. The time allowed for their completion has been cut from the customary eighteen months to one year. We hope to have them on time within the shorter period.

"As to the fourth thing I mentioned, the coast patrol, that is as thorough as we can make it and is under the command of one of our ablest officers, Capt. Henry B. Wilson, who is soon to be made an admiral."

HOME FOLKS

18,000 Poor in Chicago Want to Spend a Few Days in the Country.

A CAMPAIGN for $18,000 to send 18,000 poor persons of Chicago to the country this summer was begun yesterday by the United Charities. The vacations last from a week to two months. The slogan of the campaign is: "Ten dollars will send ten children for ten days."

Arrangements with the railroads and boat companies for free transportation and with farmers and societies to furnish free board and care has made it possible to send the children at a cost of only $1 each for the entire vacation. Last year the United Charities assisted in arranging outings for 25,000 persons.

Contributions have been slow for THE TRIBUNE hospital at Algonquin, and the need for money is great. Many sick mothers and their children who need the care are living in dark tenement rooms because the money to send them to Algonquin is not at hand. A check of $10 was received from G. S. U., Contributions previously acknowledged bring the total to $21.50.

The following contributions to the ice fund were received:

ACCUSED AS SPY, MAN FORCED TO QUIT SHERIDAN

Twelve Others Notified of Unfitness to Be Officers.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., June 30.—After he had made a persistent effort to stir up discontent in his company, a member of the Illinois regiment of the reserve officers' training camp today was accused of disloyalty and directed to ask for his immediate discharge.

"This is one form of spy propaganda," said the regular army captain, who is instructor for the company. "I told the man in plain English of the charge against him and gave him a chance to request his own discharge or face a hearing before a board of officers."

The accused man accepted the opportunity of avoiding the publicity that might follow a hearing and wrote out the request for permission to leave camp. It will be acted upon at once.

Twelve Deemed Unfit.

In another Illinois company twelve men were called before their instructor, Capt. Raymond Sheldon, who expressed regret, but said he had watched them closely for seven weeks and had been convinced they were not material he could recommend for appointments in the army.

Most of them requested their own discharges in order to be spared the almost certain finding of a board that they were unfit.

This procedure is to become almost general now throughout the camp. Probably 150 men will have been discharged for physical defects by Tuesday and the board then will be free to consider recommendations for discharge for other reasons. The elimination of the unsuitable material will be hastened in order that the work of the last month of the camp may be centered on the best material in sight.

Artillerymen Busy.

The six batteries got away from their tiresome drill without cannon this morning and in three hours threw up three different forms of gun emplacements overlooking a ravine running into Lake Michigan.

The field pieces, limbers, and caissons of some of the batteries of the First Illinois field artillery began to arrive this afternoon. The camp site is barely started, and it will be several days before the regiment will be mobilized here; but in the meantime the students can use the equipment.

The Red Cross benefit dance was such a pronounced success that a plan is afoot to hold a series of Saturday afternoon dances.

Palo Alto Gets Guard Camp.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Palo Alto, Cal., was substituted today for American Lake, Wash., by the war department as the site of the Twentieth division encampment for the national guard.

ARMY APPEALS TO THE CHURCHES TO AID RECRUITING

Draft Reduction Promised for Districts Volunteering.

THE REGULARS
ARE IN FRANCE.
JOIN THEM NOW!

"Ministers, urge your young men to join the regulars, today from the pulpit!"

This is the plea of Capt. Franklin R. Kenney, head of the recruiting forces in the Chicago district. The Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, who is Capt. Kenney's chief aid, is also trying to impress this plea upon the ministers of the Chicago district.

"This plea, coming from the pulpit, will help materially in filling the rolls of the district," said Capt. Kenney. "Every minister, pastor, and priest should help.

Will Reduce Draft.

"Cook county will feel the benefits of having a large enlistment, for they are at the present time in advance of the other counties of the district, and when the time for selection comes Cook county will have the lightest selection of any county in the state."

The Seventh Reserve engineers were recruited up to their full capacity yesterday by Capt. Kenney. William Edens of the Central Trust company, who was appointed honorary recruiting officer by Capt. Kenney, announced last night that the remaining men of the regiment would leave Monday night to join the regiment in Atlanta. The recruiting of the regiment was closed yesterday according to telegraphic orders from Col. John Stephen Sewell.

Marine Engineers Wanted.

A call for marine engineers was issued by the United States shipping board yesterday. The government is opening free schools where men who have had any experience at all as engineers, either stationary or marine, may receive such instruction as will prepare them for the examination given by the United States steamship inspectors for marine engineers.

The school for Chicago and vicinity will be located at the Armour Institute of Technology and will open Monday.

Exceeds First Quota.

Chicago has exceeded the original quota of volunteers for the army designated to it at the beginning of the war by over 4,000 recruits, Capt. Kenney asserted.

"Up until this week we have been perfectly satisfied with recruiting in Chicago, but it seems that the city has fallen down this week and only 1,000 of the 10,000 recruits asked during army recruiting work have been obtained," he added.

Chicago again went into the lead in navy recruiting last week, obtaining 128 men. Omaha enlisted 96, Minneapolis 92, St. Louis 90, Kansas City 73, Cincinnati 64, Detroit 62, Peoria, 57, Indianapolis 54, Lexington 28, Milwaukee 40, and Des Moines 33.

In the marine corps over 160 recruits were enlisted.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

That the issue of Monday, June 2 stated the White Sox would that day play two games, whereas but one was scheduled, is the subject of numerous letters.

Mr. Comiskey's advertisement of Monday announced two games for that day. this advertisement was called to the attention of the Sporting Editor after the early editions had been run off. Assuming that Mr. Comiskey knew what he was advertising, and that a baseball reporter had fallen down in not learning that two games were scheduled, the editor announced the double-header as an item of news. Succeeding, later, in getting a White Sox representative on the phone, in order to obtain formal confirmation of the announcement, the editor learned that the advertisement was a mistake, and that but one game would be played. Meanwhile, the announcement had gone through the Home Edition: it was eliminated for the Final Edition.

A picture of Miss Louise Prussing was printed in Friday's issue in connection with Miss Currey's account of Thursday's festivities at Great Lakes Naval Training Station; but the name Helen Prussing was, by photographer's error, used in identification.

LOCAL RED CROSS TO OPEN CANTEEN FOR SOLDIERS

The Chicago Red Cross is organizing a canteen to serve food and coffee to soldiers detraining here or passing through the city on their way to training camps. The new organization is patterned after those already established in France and is called the "refreshment corps."

The first canteen in the United States was organized two months ago at Washington, D. C., by Mrs. Lars Anderson, wife of the former United States minister to Belgium and ambassador to Japan during the Taft administration.

Numbers of young women have enrolled as volunteer aids and the work is carried out under strict military discipline.

When a trainload of troops is expected in the capital word is sent by the war department to Mrs. Anderson, the commanding officer, who sends a hurry call asking the girl volunteers to meet at her home. A large motor truck with a kitchen trailer is used to rush coffee, sandwiches and pies to the soldiers.

"Frat" to Furnish Relief Corps.

St. Louis, Mo., June 30.—Members of the Sigma Chi fraternity who fight on foreign battle fields will have a relief corps of their own. The fraternity, in convention here, has appointed a war relief committee to assist members who go abroad.

Retired Banker Provides Modern "Neal Way" for Drinking Men FREE to "Soldier Boys"

ASSURES AN EFFICIENT PATRIOTISM

Ex-Senator J. E. Bruce, the former banker, who for the past seven years has devoted his entire time and invested his private fortune in establishing splendid Neal Institutes in 60 principal cities for the treatment of Drink or Drug Users by the humane, scientific and modern methods of the "NEAL WAY," says:

While the demands made upon us for charity by those "Robbed by Drink"—WORTHY persons and families who are never denied benefits of "NEAL WAY"—compel us to leave other worthy charitable work to others, we want to contribute "our mite" to our country's just cause in these "perilous days" for all.

Having been informed that hundreds of patriotic men have been "REJECTED" on account of the INEFFICIENCY caused by using Drink or Drugs and knowing that former good health and efficiency has been restored to tens of thousands by the modern "NEAL WAY" methods of treatment, I authorize the following:

The head NEAL INSTITUTE, No. 811-T East 49th Street, Chicago (Oakland 439)—or near Country Club, Springfield, Illinois, or No. 716-T, The Paseo, Kansas City, Mo., will furnish the "Neal Way" Treatment (at home in ordinary cases) Free of Charge to all such "Rejected" men who Re-enlist and all other worthy men who make VOLUNTARY application to enlist in the Army or Navy of the U. S. on or before August 1st, 1917.

While this free offer is made for the purpose of encouraging and showing our appreciation of that patriotic sentiment which prompts voluntary enlistment, we assure the "Regular" members of the Army or Navy and those hereafter "drafted" our actual cost price upon their application for the benefits of the "NEAL WAY."

The secret of the world-wide success of the modern "Neal Way" is that it removes the cause of desire and "craving" for stimulation by cleansing the system of its "stored-up" poisons. It also creates a loathing for the "stuff" and soon restores the former good health and efficiency and NORMAL conditions.

Newspapers and all individuals are invited and urged to give this free offer general publicity with a view of having same called to the attention of U. S. Army and Recruiting Officers—in fact to EVERYBODY who is or ought to be interested.

Remember: The "NEAL WAY" is also FREE to any alcoholic patient who is not pleased with our methods and satisfied himself that he is perfectly cured at the end of from three to seven days' treatment—or any drug user at the end of from two to three weeks. For full information call, write, wire or 'phone as above.

Increase in Automobiles Reason for Decrease in Saloons.

Enter the automobile—arch foe of rum! Chicago will have 341 less saloons in the next six months, and one of the chief reasons for the decline, according to a letter sent Ald. John Richert, chairman of the council finance committee, by Charles J. Forsberg, city collector, is the increase in the number of motors in town. Another reason, he says, is the "dry" legislation before congress and the attack on liquor in the last general assembly.

There were 7,006 saloon licenses issued in the last six months, as compared to 6,122 issued thus far for the next half year period. The First ward tops the list with a loss of thirty saloons and sixteen other wards have lost ten or more saloons.

Motors Force Economy.

"The increased use of automobiles," says Mr. Forsberg, "may be given as a cause of the decrease in saloon patronage and a consequent decrease in the number of saloons. Automobile owners, the great majority of which are of the middle class, out of which saloon patronage is drawn, must of necessity economize in certain directions to enable them to meet expenses incident to the upkeep of their machines.

"It is quite natural that indulgence in such luxuries as the saloon be discontinued. Retrenchment by the automobile owner along these lines assumes great proportions and the monetary loss to saloonkeepers must undoubtedly be felt."

Mr. Forsberg holds no hope for a saloon "comeback." He says it is his belief that the losses in the next license period will greatly exceed those of the present. Introduction of "dry" legislation, he adds, has made brewers conservative and unwilling to assume saloon leasing and license obligations. Withdrawals of brewers' credit has made it impossible, according to the city collector, for many small saloonkeepers to renew their licenses.

License Losses by Wards.

Following is a statement of license losses in the various wards:

Ward.	Number.	Ward.	Number.
First	30	Nineteenth	20
Second	11	Twentieth	12
Third	[illegible]	Twenty-first	9
Fourth	11	Twenty-second	14
Fifth	12	Twenty-third	7
Sixth	[illegible]	Twenty-fourth	8
Seventh	[illegible]	Twenty-fifth	4
Eighth	4	Twenty-sixth	8
Ninth	11	Twenty-seventh	13
Tenth	2	Twenty-eighth	11
Eleventh	10	Twenty-ninth	15
Twelfth	2	Thirtieth	15
Thirteenth	7	Thirty-first	1
Fourteenth	19	Thirty-second	13
Fifteenth	10	Thirty-third	5
Sixteenth	11	Thirty-fourth	9
Seventeenth	16	Thirty-fifth	10
Eighteenth	14

The high cost of living has also hit the saloon, in the opinion of the city collector. The increased cost of liquor, he says, has made it impossible for many saloonkeepers to continue in business.

Mayor Approves Budget; No Action on Gas Rate

Mayor Thompson was "too busy" to see newspaper men yesterday forenoon and sent word through his secretary that he had no news. The mayor left the building shortly before 1 o'clock and departed from the city last night to take a rest in the country until tomorrow. He signed the supplemental budget passed by the council Friday, but took no action on the new gas rate ordinance. He has until the next meeting in which to sign or veto the measure.

BONE DRY NOW IN 23 STATES; 11 PARTLY ARID

Reed Bill Barring Shipments of Liquor in Force Today.

Washington, D. C., June 30.—Twenty-three states will be bone dry after midnight tonight, the effective hour of the Reed amendment prohibiting shipment of liquor into any territory where its manufacture or sale is prohibited. Eleven other states are partly affected by the legislation, which has been hailed by temperance advocates as the greatest single step toward abolition of the liquor traffic taken in the nation's history.

The law bars from prohibition areas, whether states or smaller corporations, all mail matter containing advertisements or solicitations for orders for intoxicants, a provision designed to aid in enforcing the anti-shipment feature by suppressing the activities of mail order houses in dry territory.

No Rule on Patent Medicine.

No ruling has been made regarding the status of patent medicines containing alcohol and that question may be among the first to be passed on by the courts under the legislation.

A fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for six months, or both, are prescribed for violators of the anti-advertising section. For a second offense the penalty is made one year's imprisonment.

Following are the states wholly affected by the act:

WIDOW GIVEN $10,000 VERDICT; 19 YEAR FIGHT

After nineteen years of fighting in the courts, Mrs. Sarah Mary Wall, 10716 Cottage Grove avenue, has been awarded a judgment of $10,000 against the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad.

On May 24, 1896, her husband, Edward Wall, employed as a cattle shipper for Morris & Co., was en route to Newport News, Va., with a trainload of cattle. While the train was in the railroad yards at Cincinnati the caboose had been taken off and Wall was required to ride on top of the train. When it went under a low bridge he was struck on the head and killed.

Suit was started in the Superior court of Cook county on March 23, 1898, and since that time has been almost constantly before one court or another. In July, 1913, the case was tried, resulting in a verdict in favor of the widow for $6,000. From this judgment the railroad company then appealed to the Appellate court and the decision was reversed.

Then the case was heard by Judge Tuthill in the Circuit court, who has just awarded a verdict in favor of the widow for $10,000.

'CIRCE' SUES MAN HUSBAND SAID BROKE UP HOME

Mrs. Russem Now Seeks $50,000 of Broker for 'Breach of Contract.'

FAIR AND FORTY-TWO, TOO

Evanston Beauty Now Suing Man Her Husband Says Broke Up Home.

Mrs. Jacquemena Russem.

Mrs. Jacquemena Russem, described as a modern Circe, who several times has upset the romantic and intellectual traditions of her friends in Evanston and elsewhere, sued Francis W. Keeler, with whom she was arrested in the Albany hotel in Denver in 1913, for $50,000 yesterday.

Keeler is a Denver broker, accused by Thomas F. Russem, former husband of the alluring Jacquemena, in a suit for $75,000 of alienation of her affections. Mr. Russem is an Evanston man of wealth and social position. He came into the public eye when he broke with his beautiful wife and sent a private detective 4,000 miles on the trail of Jacquemena, with the result that she was arrested in the Denver hotel.

Still Pulchritudinous at 42.

Though Mrs. Russem is said to be more than 42 years old she retains her beauty. She has been a show girl, it is said, and has been married a number of times in the last twenty years.

She married Mr. Russem in 1906 and settled down to the study of music, art, and other intellectual improvement.

The Russems lived in an Evanston bungalow and entered into the "intellectual set" with zest, he maintaining his interest in Chicago clubs and she being much sought after.

But in August, 1913 Russem caught the idea that Keeler, the broker, was playing an important part in the affairs of the fair Jacquemena and he set the detective on her trail.

Russem took up a temporary residence in Manitou, Colo. Then suddenly came the Albany hotel sensation.

A spicy trial resulted in the acquittal of Keeler and Mrs. Russem. She returned to Chicago and it was rumored that she had brought her magnetic beauty to play again on Russem. But this was short lived. Russem brought suit for divorce and it was granted.

Breach of Contract Charge.

Yesterday Keeler visited Chicago, registering at the Blackstone. Bailiffs called on him and served him with a summons in the suit for $50,000.

Breach of contract and trespass are charged and Mrs. Russem's attorneys declined to admit that the action is one for breach of promise.

Immediately after the summons was served Mr. Keeler sought lodgings elsewhere. Mrs. Russem could not be reached.

Lighten Punishment of Police Captains

The city civil service commission yesterday lightened its punishment of Police Capts. Thomas F. Cronin, Thomas J. Caughlin, and James O'Toole, who were found guilty of neglect of duty last year in connection with the slot machine investigation. Capt. Cronin, who was given a thirty days' suspension and fined ten days' pay, was ordered suspended ten days and fined five days' pay; Capt. Caughlin was ordered fined fifteen days' pay and suspended ten, instead of a fine and suspension of thirty days each, and Capt. O'Toole, suspended thirty days, was ordered suspended seven. Chief of Police Schuettler sent out the order last night.

Woman Sues for $10,000 Damages for Attack

Mrs. Kate Corcoran, 6845 Throop street, through her attorney, D. R. Thomas, filed suit in the Circuit court yesterday for $10,000 damages against Michael Martin, who, she alleges, attacked her and threatened to kill her. The assault is alleged to have taken place on June 25, 1916. Attorney Thomas stated that Martin is now in the bridewell for the attack.

U. S. INDICTS 12; CHARGE HIDING BANKRUPT STOCK

Other Cases Involving Millions Expected to Follow.

The federal grand jury yesterday returned indictments against six men accused of conspiring to conceal $30,000 of the assets of Morrison B. Shumacher, whose haberdashery at 849 Milwaukee avenue went into bankruptcy more than a year ago.

The indictments mark, it is said, the first step in a series of investigations of alleged bankruptcy frauds which have netted $36,000,000, according to the figures of the National Credit Men's association and Association of American Manufacturers.

Those Indicted.

Those indicted in the Schumacher case are Morrison B. and Morris J. Shumacher, Abraham Brown, Joseph Wronski, Samuel Sloane, and Abraham Walachinsky.

The assets, the government asserts, were removed from the establishment of Morrison B. to that of Morris J. at 869 Milwaukee avenue.

I. M. Bach Named.

An indictment was also returned against I. M. Bach, operating the Drexel Jewelry company, the Ogden Jewelry company, and the Reliable Watch company. Bach is accused of selling watches by mail for $3.50 which he represented were worth $35 but, in fact, were worth only $1.60.

Thomas L. Kiedzinski, former special deputy collector of internal revenues, is charged in an indictment with the theft of $1,049.63 in internal revenue stamps, and J. J. Shapiro, who held a similar position, is accused of accepting a number of bribes, ranging in amount from $1 to $25, from liquor dealers whom he is alleged to have found refilling bottles.

It was erroneously reported by the City News bureau that Louis Schwartz, David Golstein, Joseph Harris, and Louis Gutman, members of the firm of Golstein, Harris & Gutman, and Aaron Wolfson and Samuel Adelman, members of the firm of Wolfson & Adelman, were among those indicted. All these were witnesses before the grand jury, giving testimony on which the others were indicted.

Final Report Tomorrow.

The final report of the jury is expected tomorrow morning. It was said that no indictments would be returned against food sharks, but the matter will be referred to the next grand jury. At the same time an appeal will be addressed to congress for legislation making food hoarding and price manipulating punishable by imprisonment.

WRITE A SLOGAN TO KNOCK THE 'I' OUT OF KAISER

Or Knock the Tar Out of Militarism, as One Suggests.

The kaiser probably never will see any of the slogans that are being submitted to THE TRIBUNE for the adornment of Robert Reid's wonderful naval poster at Michigan boulevard and Randolph street, but if he could only read some of them he certainly would sit up and take notice.

That the contest, and the chance of winning one of the $50 prizes, is attracting a great deal of attention is evidenced by the fact that every mail brings an additional big batch of entries. And they come from far and near. Iowa is well represented, Indiana has a few, while other states are falling into line. Slogans have been received from Tennessee, Alabama, and even from as far south as New Orleans.

To compete you must be a male and between the ages of 18 and 25.

Some Samples.

See if you can write one better than these:

George Eades, 5024 West Ohio street—"Come—join the riot in patriotism and help knock the tar out of militarism."

R. C. Brown, 28 E. Jackson boulevard—"We're in to win, will you assist? Our message is, 'Enlist, enlist.'"

Carl B. Gunther, 4581 West Washington boulevard—"A man without a country is like a country without a man. Hear ye, come protect our liberty."

Ben Healy, 1207 West Adams street—"U. S. has been a mother to you. Would you fight for your mother? Enlist now."

And Still More.

G. H. Schussler, 39 South La Salle street—"Join democracy and oust autocracy."

A. B. Sowell, Columbia, Tenn.—"Brave men will fight; cowards never."

Harry A. Swidler, 1444 South Avers avenue—"Get in—help win."

J. E. Loeber, 3383 Monroe street—"You live under the U. S. flag, now fight for it."

SOCIALIST PAPER HELD UP HERE BY POSTAL OFFICIAL

Alleged Anti-Draft Argument Called the Cause.

The liberty issue of the American Socialist, a special edition of the organ of the national Socialist party, has been held up here by the postoffice authorities, John L. Engdahl, the editor, was informed yesterday. While the postal officials refuse to state specifically the reason for their action, it is generally understood that they take exception to an advertisement of a Socialist pamphlet entitled "The Price We Pay," and in general to the whole tone of the paper in opposing the war and the draft.

Officials at the postoffice refuse information on the subject. Editor Engdahl estimates that they are holding up 50,000 copies of the issue which should have been distributed during the middle of the week.

Engdahl's Explanation.

"I was notified by M. J. O'Malley, in charge of the second class mail division, that the postoffice was holding up almost all copies which we had sent down to be mailed," said Engdahl.

"I asked Mr. O'Malley what the reason was and he refused to say, referring me to W. M. Lamar, attorney for the postal department in Washington. We have printed over 100,000 copies thus far and had intended to print over 200,000 in all, but I ordered the presses stopped when I learned what had happened. Ten thousand copies had been mailed before the issue was held up by the government.

Wires Meyer London.

"I have wired Meyer London, the Socialist congressman of New York City, who is a lawyer, and he will represent us in any legal proceedings that may take place. I presume the officials base their action on the espionage law passed June 15, which gives the government the right to suppress any articles which tend to discourage recruiting.

"I want to say that we do not want to violate any law, and if it is found that any article in our paper is against the law, then I am quite willing to bow to the will of the government in this matter. I have ordered the advertisement to which, I think, they have taken exception taken out of our next edition, which goes to press tomorrow."

One Dead in Auto Accident.

Fort Madison, Ia., June 30.—[Special.]—Harry Hood is dead and four others injured as a result of an automobile overturning and rolling down an embankment near here.

GRAND JURY MAY TAKE A HAND IN BARBERS' ROW

Grand jury action in connection with an alleged price boosting conspiracy between the Master Barbers' association and the local barbers' union, declared to have brought about the setting off of a dynamite bomb at the shop of J. W. Barnhart at 112 North Dearborn street, may be taken within the next few days, according to a statement made yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Michels.

He is in possession of evidence in connection with a reign of terror among barber shops of the city attributed to the association and the union.

COPPER GETS JOB FOR HUNGRY MAN IN ONE MINUTE

John Wilkins, his wife Betty, and three little Wilkenses, the eldest 8 years, appeared before Desk Sergt. John O'Hara in the West Thirteenth street police station yesterday.

"I've got to get work. If I don't, we'll starve," said the father desperately. "We haven't had a thing to eat since we left Peru, Ind., yesterday."

Sergt. O'Hara used the telephone. One minute later he said:

"All right, here's your job. Go right over to the Chicago Boxboard company, at Rockwell and Taylor streets—one of the boys'll show you the way. Supt. W. E. Hardie says he'll start you in at $3 a day."

DEFENSE BOARD WARNED AGAINST NEGRO INFLUX

Investigators See Peril Such as Resulted in East St. Louis.

Migration of southern Negroes should be discouraged immediately, before outbreaks of the kind that occurred in East St. Louis are repeated in other northern cities, it is pointed out in a report made to the state council of defense by that body's labor committee.

The committee members are John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; John H. Harrison, a newspaper publisher of Danville, and Dr. Frank Billings. The report was compiled as the result of an investigation made by the committee into the East St. Louis situation several weeks ago.

Resume of Report.

"This influx of Negroes," reads a résumé of the report issued by the council, "seemed to be due entirely, in the committee's opinion, to advertising in southern newspapers and to the activities of labor agents holding out alluring inducements for Negroes to come to East St. Louis.

Conclusions reached by the committee in its report were as follows:

"Capital and labor must pull together during the war.

"Migration of any class from one part of the country to another should be allowed to follow the flow along natural lines.

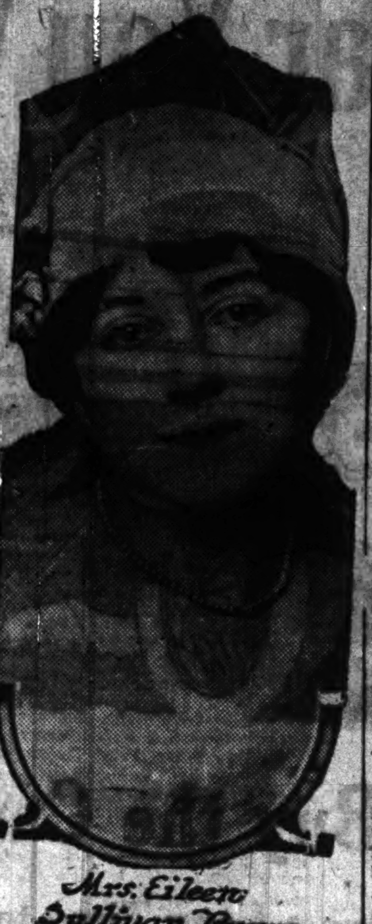
Condem those Guilty.

"Condemnation should be passed on all who undertake to promote any artifi-

"The problem of shifting labor where labor is needed during the war should be handled by the various state councils of defense, acting with the responsible officers of the labor movement, who are daily showing their patriotism in endeavoring to avoid industrial strife."

PROSECUTOR'S BRIDE

They're Somewhere in the U. S. A.



Mrs. Eileen Sullivan Byrne

Assistant State's Attorney John F. Byrne and his bride are "somewhere in the United States" traveling the road to Arcady on their honeymoon. They were married in St. Agnes' church at Thirty-ninth street and Washtenaw avenue. Mrs. Byrne, who was Eileen Agnes Sullivan, was attended by her sister, Coramae Sullivan, and Agatha Marie Fisher. William Landis and Walter Hickey were groomsmen and Walter Barrett and Charles Fisher the ushers. The bride was given away by John J. Sullivan, her brother.

STATE DEFENSE BOARD ACTS ON WAR PROBLEMS

Plan to Regulate Coal, Bread, and Liquor in Emergency.

The state council of defense for Illinois acted at their meeting yesterday to control the coal, bread, and liquor problems of the state. The committee of railroad men and coal operators whose report and recommendations on the coal situation were approved by the council at its last meeting, was retained as an advisory committee to the council committee on food and fuel conservation.

The members of this committee are: C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad; C. G. Burnham, traffic vice president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad; W. J. Jackson, receiver of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad; J. K. Dering, president of the J. K. Dering Coal company; D. W. Buchanan, president of the Old Ben Coal corporation, and Dr. F. C. Honnold, secretary of the Franklin County Operators' association. John A. Spoor and Frank Farrington of Springfield were added to the committee to represent the mine workers.

Will Ask Co-operation.

The committee having in hand the coal situation will confer with the state utilities committee on the adoption of rules for putting into effect the recommendations on coal approved by the council. The coöperation of the interstate commerce commission will also be invited.

Following its action last week of passing a resolution, approved by almost all of the bakers of the city, to have the bakers discontinue the practice of taking back unsold bread, the council will send a letter to each of the 18,000 bakers in the state directing them to put the rule into effect on July 10. It is estimated that this rule will save about 5 per cent of the entire output of bread.

The bakers association will send out a letter to all its members before July 10, reminding them of the rule and urging their coöperation.

The Liquor Problem.

The problem of selling liquor to men in uniform was also dealt with. The council has sent out letters to some 11,000 officials all over the state calling their attention to the law and asking their aid in enforcing it. Mrs. Bowen, who has been investigating in Chicago, reports that some saloon dealers, particularly on the west side, are using the civilian go-between to get around the law.

A "soldier and sailor club" was suggested by Chairman Samuel Insull. This is to be an institution where soldiers and sailors can get a meal, a bath, and other accommodations without any credentials other than the uniform. The establishment of free lunch counters for soldiers and sailors in the main line railroad stations was also suggested. The chairman and the secretary were directed to look into the cost.

The council is going to have the coöperation of the citizens' war board of Chicago in supervising solicitation of any kind of war relief.

RAVINIA STARTS WITH WEATHER MARKED "O. K."

With the weather perfect in all respects Ravinia park opened last night for its ten weeks' season of opera and concert. The illness of Rosina Galli involved a change of program, but nothing in the attitude of the first night audience indicated that the change was unpopular.

Excerpts from two operas were given. Carolina White played the girl of the Naples streets in the second act finale of "The Jewels of the Madonna" and "I Pagliacci" was sung by Edith Mason, Millo Picco, Orville Harrold, and others of the company.

The principal change noted at Ravinia has been the "raking" of the seats; they are now arranged in the manner of any opera-house. A complete view of the stage is obtainable from any seat in the pavilion, the alterations of which represent a radical departure from the old-fashioned manner of seating patrons at Ravinia.

"COUNT," MASTER OF 15 LANGUAGES, HELD AS FORGER

Frederick Arthur Mainhold, who claims to be the son of Count Arthur Alex. Mainhold of Bucharest, Roumania, was booked at the detective bureau last night on six charges of forgery. He was brought back from New York, where he was arrested several days ago. He said his father died recently and left him an estate of approximately $35,000.

Mainhold, who gave his occupation as a dollmaker, stole checks from the Davis Supply company, 400 West Superior street, according to the police, and cashed them in Chicago. He is charged with having passed one check for $900 on the First National bank.

Albert Halperin, 1557 Milwaukee avenue, and Harry Powers, owner of Powers' theater, are among the other complainants. Mainhold says he can speak fifteen languages.

Boy's Leg Broken by Auto.

Harry Goldstein, 16 years old, of 1808 North Leavitt street was run over and his left leg fractured yesterday by an automobile owned and operated by C. C. Miller of 4505 West Twentieth street.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

July 15th—On This Date Paige Prices Will Be Advanced

We have formally announced that the list price of every car in the Paige line will be very substantially increased on July 15th.

We have explained that this step is unavoidable because of the steadily advancing costs of manufacturing materials, labor and all elements entering into the production of a quality product.

In making this advance announcement, we feel that we have done complete justice to the many hundreds of people who have been planning to purchase one of our cars. They now know definitely when the increased prices are scheduled to take effect, and will be guided accordingly.

There is one very important point, though, that we would like to emphasize at this time.

Owing to the scarcity of materials, our production between now and July 15th will necessarily be limited. We are doing all that we possibly can to keep step with public demand, but it is a foregone conclusion that there will not be enough Paiges to go round.

As a last thought in regard to this matter of price, please remember that the Paige has long since demonstrated its independence of all "price fields." American men and women now buy a Paige—not because of the price tag which is attached to it—but because of its well established reputation as a fine mechanical product.

FOURTH IS TO BE MORE THAN EVER 'SAFE AND SANE'

Saving of Explosive for War Use Draws the Line Tighter.

The day of the vindictive firecracker, the treacherous Roman candle, and the erratic skyrocket is at hand, but, with the country at war and the powers that be calling upon the nation to conserve its gunpowder and explosives, with the public educated to a point where they see the foolishness of expressing their patriotism through noise and red fire, there is every indication that Chicago this year, more than ever before, will observe the day in a manner safe and sane.

Last year Chicago got through the day without any deaths caused by fireworks, but ther wer twenty or more persons, many of them children, injured. It is the general hope and belief that the Fourth this year will exced those of all previous years in recent history in the matter of sanity and safety to life.

Big Drop in Deaths.

In the years since THE TRIBUNE began to agitate against the insane Fourth and the terrible loss of life it causes there has been a gradual decrease in the number of fatalities. During the last fourteen years, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association, the record shows 1,892 deaths and 42,909 injuries in the United States, distributed through the years as follows:

Year.	Dead.	Injured.	Total.
1903	466	3,983	4,449
1904	183	3,986	4,169
1905	182	4,994	5,176
1906	158	5,308	5,466
1907	164	4,249	4,413
1908	163	5,460	5,623
1909	215	5,092	5,307
1910	131	2,792	2,923
1911	57	1,546	1,603
1912	41	947	988
1913	32	1,131	1,163
1914	40	1,466	1,506
1915	30	1,135	1,165
1916	30	820	850

Police to Be Strict.

In a proclamation issued yesterday Mayor Thompson says that this Fourth, more than all others, should be observed sanely and safely, thoughtfully and seriously; that the fireworks ordinance should be strictly lived up to. In closing he announces that the police have been instructed to enforce rigidly the law regarding fireworks.

Throughout the country the people are getting into the habit of observing the Fourth by means of patriotic meetings, addresses, parades, picnics, athletic sports, and band concerts. Ten years ago Hinsdale inaugurated the municipal Fourth, with everybody sharing the expense and enjoyment. They have repeated their program yearly. This year they will have sports, music, speeches, and baseball games.

Practically all other suburbs of Chicago have followed in Hinsdale's steps. Riverside has gone them all one better this year. No celebration will be held there, but the money raised for one will be used in sending an ambulance to France.

At Winnetka and Wilmette the celebration will be in the shape of band concerts, parades, and patriotic addresses. Explosives have been barred.

Girl Finds Mother Dead.

Mrs. Theresa Kovack, 7539 Ellis avenue, was found dead in bed by her daughter, Mary Kovack, yesterday afternoon. Heart disease is believed to have caused death.

PROCLAMATION

Mayor Calls for Thoughtful and Serious Observance of Holiday.

Mayor Thompson yesterday issued an independence day proclamation:

Again we stand upon the threshold of the anniversary in which we celebrate our independence as a nation. This July Fourth, above all others, should be observed, not only safely and sanely, but thoughtfully and seriously. Shall we not, instead of giving vent to some ephemeral and superficial expression of patriotic interest, rather think deeply of our relation to the present crisis in world movements?

Shall we not study patriotism with first reference to the integrity of our own firesides, our own nationality, and the sacred altars of our own religion? Shall we not consider anew the meaning and mission of our America?

As mayor of this great metropolis I call the attention of our loyal and law abiding citizenship to the ordinances intended to protect our people from the casualties and even deaths which have often resulted in the use of fireworks and explosives—thus marring rather than fittingly marking this great milestone of our place in the world's history.

I desire respectfully to call attention to an ordinance by the provisions of which it is unlawful for any person to discharge or set off anywhere in the city of Chicago, or to have in his or her possession for such purpose, any toy pistol, toy gun, toy cannon, blank cartridge, or any fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, bombs, rockets, spinwheels, fire balloons, roman candles, detonating canes, or ammunition therefor, or any substance of an explosive nature designed or intended to be used as fireworks, without a permit issued for such purpose by the city of Chicago.

The law provides a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $200 for each violation of this ordinance.

The police are hereby directed to enforce strictly every section of the ordinance.

All departments of the city government, with the exception of fire, electricity, health, and police, are hereby ordered to be closed Wednesday, July 4, 1917.

BABY SON OF U. C. PROFESSOR WANDERS AWAY

Has any one living near the University of Chicago seen a 3 year old blonde boy, dressed in a blue jumper and black shoes, wandering around? If any one has, Harold Mead of the University of Chicago would like to know about it.

His son, Meredith, was playing in the back yard of their home at 5739 Drexel avenue yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock. When the boy's mother went to look for him he was gone.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mead searched the neighborhood for hours last evening, but they failed to find any trace of the boy. The police have been notified.

SEA SUPREMACY BIG ADVANTAGE TO OUR ALLIES

Enemy's Policy on Land Is Modified by Blockade.

BY COL. HENRY J. REILLY.

In the preceding article it was shown that the advantage of interior lines of communication has rested with the enemy during the present war. However, he has been denied use of overseas communication, with the result that his military policy on land has had to be considerably modified, to his disadvantage.

While warships can be built during war, the side which starts with a superior number of ships afloat has a tremendous advantage which the other side can seldom overcome, because while he may build rapidly, the other, by doing the same, can maintain his advantage.

When the war broke out Great Britain's fleet was so superior to that of the enemy that it was generally considered any action between the two could not result in anything other than the complete defeat of the German high sea fleet.

Stopped German Commerce.

As a consequence this fleet remained under the protection of its shore batteries with the result that our allies had only to dispose of the squadron which had been based on Tsingtau, China, and various commerce raiders. Thus from the beginning of the war the German fleet being unable to protect it, German oversea commerce has been nonexistent.

While the steady development of the submarine has materially affected the overseas commerce of ourselves and of our allies, it has in no way opened up this commerce to the enemy. The only way for the enemy to get supplies from overseas has been through neutrals.

However, from time to time Great Britain has increased the stringency of her blockade, which has not only included vessels bound for German ports, but also vessels bound from one neutral to another. Finally the point has been reached where neutrals contiguous to the enemy powers are unable to get little more than their own needs warrant.

Blockade Efficient.

Also this blockade has been used to prevent these neutrals getting supplies they need for their own consumption unless they agree not to sell supplies produced by themselves to the enemy.

While there can be little doubt that the enemy had prepared for three years of warfare, this blockade has been so efficacious as to cause a considerable shortage in food and other supplies. In spite of the utmost enforced economy, it was foreseen, probably in the spring of 1915, that steps would have to be taken to obtain additional supplies or the time would arrive when want of essentials would materially affect the continuance of the war.

The desire to obtain possession of new sources of supply was probably the predominant factor in the decision to conquer Serbia and Montenegro and open up a road to Asia Minor.

No one understands better than the enemy the cardinal military principle of bringing the utmost force to bear on the principal point of the enemy's line rather than going off on some side issue, no matter how attractive it may appear. This for the reason that decisive victory is obtained only by decisively defeating the strongest body of the enemy.

Reduced German Chances.

Had there been no question of the necessity to open up new sources of supply it is probable that the enemy would have again attempted a decisive campaign in France in the fall of 1915 instead of cleaning up the Balkans and not returning to the western theater of war until February, 1916, when they started their attack on Verdun.

Had they been able to do this they would have started their second campaign in France at a time when the new British army was not anything like as numerous nor as ready as it was ten months later, when it started to attack on the Somme, and thereby materially aided in the defense of Verdun.

In other words, the blockade, which the superiority of the British fleet enabled it to establish, materially reduced the chances of German success in a campaign on the western front by compelling the enemy to fight in the Balkans for much needed supplies. This alone justified the large sums spent by the British in building up their immense fleet prior to the war.

Lessons Clearly Shown.

Had their land power in the shape of an army been equally well developed, they and the French could have attacked so vigorously that the enemy never could have spared the troops and guns needed for the Balkan campaign and thus would have been denied the opportunity which he has taken full advantage of to obtain cotton from the province of Adana, cereals from Anatolia, and copper from other provinces of Asia Minor, to say nothing of oil, copper, and various materials used in the manufacture of high explosives from Serbia.

Great Britain, because of her predominant sea power, has been able to deny her enemy overseas supplies, with the result that he has had to deflect his armies from seeking decisive victory in order to obtain them, and this when time was valuable.

On the other hand, lack of land power prevented our allies from taking full advantage of the opportunity offered them, due to the navy's blockade.

The lesson is clear that only full advantage can be taken of opportunities in war when both the sea and land power of a nation are fully developed.

LOWDEN NAMES OFFICERS FOR NEW STATE JOBS

Picks Members of Public Utilities Body; Other Vacancies Filled.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Springfield, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Lowden today appointed the new public utilities commission, three of the five members of the new industrial board, and filled the few important vacancies that remained in the composition of the administrative code system. The law that revolutionizes the methods of transacting the state's business became effective at midnight tonight.

There is some doubt as to when the new officers can take the oath of office and file their bonds. The attorney general's office, it is understood, rules that this cannot be done until after the clock strikes 12 tonight. It will then be Sunday. It is agreed, however, that there will be no hiatus that will cause any difficulty. The long list of old boards and commissions expires tonight and the new régime will be in full force and effect Monday morning. The new public utilities commission follows:

Thomas E. Dempcy, East St. Louis, chairman.
Fred E. Sterling, Rockford.
Walter A. Shaw, Evanston.
Frank H. Funk, Bloomington.
Patrick J. Lucey, Chicago.
Robert V. Prather, Olney, secretary.

Dempcy Working for 3 Months.

Mr. Dempcy was named as the successor to William L. O'Connell some time ago and has been acting as chairman for three months. Fred E. Sterling, chairman of the Republican state committee, was nominated and confirmed to his place a month ago. Walter A. Shaw is the engineer member of the old commission that passes away today.

Frank H. Funk was named to the old commission by Gov. Dunne, when the public utilities act became effective, as representing the Progressive party. He was the Progressive nominee for governor in 1912. He was one of the first to come out for Gov. Lowden in the primary campaign.

Patrick J. Lucey is a Democrat and retired as attorney general in January. He was strongly backed by the regular Democratic state organization, when it became known that Gov. Lowden preferred to name at least one Democrat on the new commission, although not required by the act so to do.

Men Not Reappointed.

Members of the expiring commission who were not reappointed are former Gov. Yates, Republican, and former Judge Owen P. Thompson of Jacksonville, Democrat.

It is understood that former Gov. Yates has the refusal of becoming the active organizing head of the Illinois centennial celebration, to be held all through next year by the centennial commission.

The three members of the industrial board that will enforce the workmen's compensation act are:

Charles S. Andrus, Springfield.
Robert Eadie, Springfield.
Peter Angsten, Chicago.

Mr. Eadie and Mr. Angsten are members of the present industrial board.

Dr. Adler Gets Position.

In the department of public welfare Dr. Herman M. Adler of Chicago is appointed criminologist and Dr. H. Douglas Singer, now head of the psychopathic hospital at Kankakee, is appointed alienist.

In the department of finance W. H. McLain of Springfield, now statistician for the state board of administration, is appointed superintendent of budget, whose duties it will be to prepare the budget for submission to the next legislature under the requirements of the new code.

In the department of registration and education Ernest A. Wreidt of Chicago is appointed assistant director, at the recommendation of Prof. F. W. Shepardson, director of the department.

In the department of public health Dr. George Thomas Palmer is appointed assistant director. He is one of the best known health men in the state.

In the department of public works and buildings three appointments are made:

Chief highway engineer—W. W. Marr, Springfield.
Supervising architect—Edgar D. Martin, Chicago.
Supervising engineer—Fred J. Postel, Chicago.

Factory Inspectors Named.

Deputy factory inspectors are appointed as follows: Arthur F. Klees of Aurora, vice Thomas Lawliss; James Malley of Alton, vice James J. O'Malley; William North of Danville, vice C. O. Nelson; Sidney Glass of Chicago, vice John W. Lannon; Carl Kreton of Chicago, vice George Gabriel; Cornelius Hoffman of Chicago, vice William Watson; John S. McCaslin of Peoria, vice Thomas J. Walsh; Jacob Conraths of Chicago, vice William Steffel; R. R. Dorothy of Morris, vice John Murray; Mrs. Sadie Greenhood of Chicago, vice Miss Elizabeth A. Grady.

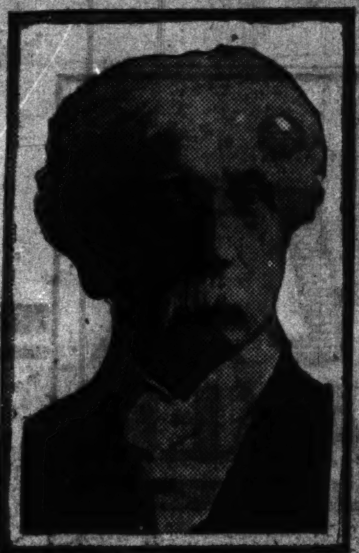
William Winter.

Born July 15, 1836. Died June 30, 1917.



B. A. TESSENDEN LEADING REALTY DEALER, DEAD

Benjamin Arthur Fessenden, who has been prominent as a real estate man in Chicago since 1882, died yesterday at his home in Highland Park. He was born in Boston and in his boyhood knew Henry Thoreau, played with the Hawthorne children, and was a visitor at the Emerson home. He went to the College of the City of New York for two years. He served in clerical positions in turn on the Kansas and Missouri, the Chicago and Alton, and the Burlington railroads. In 1880 he married Laura Dayton of a prominent New York family and two years later came to Chicago and entered the real estate business, eventually succeeding to the business of the late Henry C. Morey. Mr. Fessenden was a Republican and a member of several prominent clubs. He leaves a widow, two daughters, Mrs. Robert Gray Peck and Dorothy Dayton Fessenden, and two sons, Aymar C. Fessenden of Chicago and Ben M. Fessenden of Seattle. Robert Gray Peck Jr. is his grandson.

TRAEGER ASKS EVIDENCE TO ACT ON SUBURB VICE

Sheriff Traeger received the ultimatum of the West Suburban Law and Order Enforcement league to "clean up the western suburbs or be impeached" yesterday.

"Meyer Stein, attorney for the league, came to me early last week," the sheriff said, "and told me he had the evidence on a number of gambling and disorderly houses of the western suburbs. I told him to bring it in and we would act.

"Did he? Not yet. When I get the evidence I'll act. In the meantime, we are doing everything we can to make it hot for law violators in the county."

Russell Promises Not to Hurt Wife.

William J. Russell, acquitted by a jury of the murder of Sergt. Henry C. Collins of the Seventh Illinois infantry, whom he accused of wrecking his marital happiness, signed a peace bond before Judge Honore yesterday not to molest his wife. It was done as a precaution, Russell, before his trial, it is charged, having threatened to kill her. Clifford, the Russell's 6 year old son, was ordered turned over to the Juvenile court.

FAMOUS CRITIC AND DRAMATIST DIES IN THE EAST

William Winter Ends Years of Work in Public Print.

New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., June 30.—William Winter, famous as a dramatic critic, died tonight at his home here as the result of repeated attacks of angina pectoris. He was 81 years old. He retired from the New York Tribune in August of 1909, having been dramatic critic since 1865, when he accepted the position at the invitation of Horace Greeley.

Only a few days before he first became ill Mr. Winter received one of the most notable tributes ever paid to an American man of letters. It was a memorial signed by the president and many men and women whose names stand high in every field of art requesting that he accept, in celebration of the eightieth anniversary of his birth, a testimonial in recognition of the great service he had given to American literature and, more especially, to the American stage.

Mr. Winter came of a long line of sailors, but his mother was of Italian birth, and from her he drew the love of the artistic and quick appreciation of the dramatic that distinguished his literary work. He was born in Gloucester, Mass., July 15, 1836. He spent his early years in Gloucester, Boston, and Cambridge, and was graduated from the Cambridge High school when he was 16.

Avoided Law Practice.

He studied law and took his degree from the Harvard Law school in 1857. But the law was distasteful to him, and he never practiced, turning immediately to literature. He became a friend of the poet Longfellow and dedicated his first book of verse to the poet, which was published when he was only 18 years of age.

In 1860 Mr. Winter married Miss Elizabeth Campbell, a Scottish born girl, who later herself achieved some creditable literary work. It was in memory of one of the sons of this marriage that in 1886 Mr. Winter founded the Arthur Winter Memorial library in connection with the Staten Island academy.

Scholar and Purist.

In his dramatic writings Mr. Winter was ever the scholar and the purist. He abhorred the tinsel substitutes of the modern drama and the modern musical comedy.

In 1871 he visited England and the result of that voyage was "Shakespeare's England," which is one of the critic's best known works. Some of the others of his best known books are: "Gray Days and Old Shadows of the Stage," "Life and Art of Edwin Booth," "Life and Art of Joseph Jefferson," and the lives of Mary Anderson, Ada Rehan, and Henry Irving in three volumes.

Two Amazing Cars

We have two amazing cars to show you which are built in eight new body styles.

They are built in the finest plant in the world, devoted to high-grade cars. They are built under John W. Bate, the great efficiency engineer, by methods which he has developed.

They embody the result of 14 years of scientific motor car study.

How They Differ

They differ from other like-class cars in a hundred attractive ways.

The Mitchell has 31 features—like a power tire pump—which nearly all cars omit. It has luxuries and beauties rarely found, even in costly cars.

Both cars combine all the attractions which experts found in 257 new models.

And every vital part is built to the standard of 100 per cent overstrength. That is twice the usual margin of safety.

Know the Results

These are the most complete cars on exhibit. They are the handsomest cars in their class.

Their performance will delight you. Their comfort will surprise you. No shock absorbers are ever added to a Mitchell car.

Their endurance has been proved by running two Mitchells over 200,000 miles each. Their strength has been proved by the trifling repair costs. In two years not one Bate spring has broken.

These are the cars which great engineers are buying. Let us show you a list of them. And these are the cars which appeal to all who buy a car to keep.

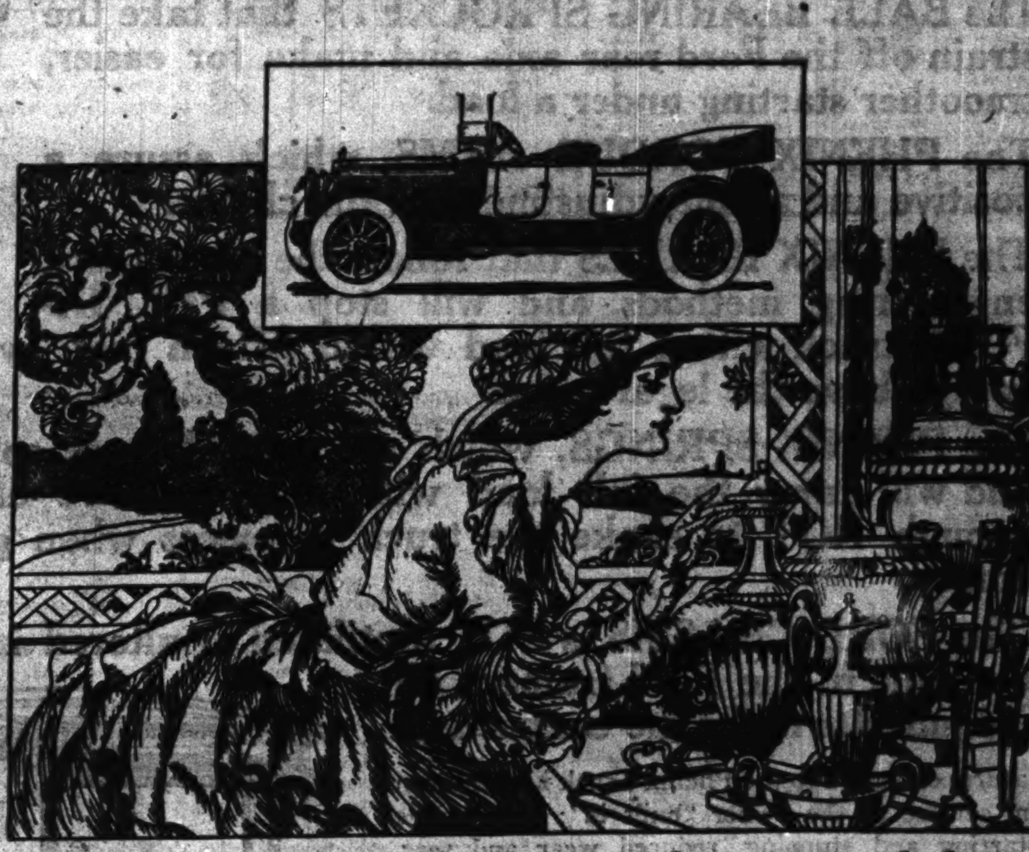
OPEN SUNDAY AND EVENINGS



What is it that gives longest life—and greatest economy?

Down the years has come great-grandmother's exquisite silver. A fortunate purchase! For a long time it has given constant, satisfying service. And today it possesses rare value—and distinction.

Have you ever stopped to ask yourself—"why?"

Since the very beginning of the automobile era, Packard has built cars that have stood the test of the hardest and most satisfying service. Sturdily they have come down the years. And today they possess high value.

Has it those intrinsic qualities which resist wear? That's the test.

When you buy a thing of sterling worth you spend wisely—economically. For thereby you get the beauty of service—and the service of beauty—at minimum cost.

The Truck Maker you've been waiting for

Phenix TRUCK MAKER

3000 LBS CAPACITY

$350

There is sturdiness in every part of this PHENIX TRUCK MAKER—the margin of safety is very large throughout—there is nothing stinted—nothing skimped.

BUT the big fundamental improvements of the PHENIX TRUCK MAKER that put it head and shoulders over all other truck attachments are:

I.—The BALL BEARING SPROCKETS that take the strain off the Ford rear axle and make for easier, smoother starting under a load.

II.—The PHENIX TORQUE ARMS, which assure a positive and ample adjustment of the chains.

III.—The PHENIX BRAKES that follow the latest truck engineering methods and will stop a PHENIX-FORD truck with a full load within fifteen feet, even if going above the legal speed.

IV.—The PHENIX SPRINGS, which are special truck springs and will carry the full load with ease, yet are elastic enough NOT to shake the truck to pieces when going empty.

V.—The FORD CHASSIS is NOT mutilated or altered in any way; one hole in the Ford frame is all that is required to make the connection.

These features exclusive to the Phenix Truck Maker mean maximum service to the owner "built in"; they insure easier starting and stopping, reduced wear and tear, smoother running, smaller repair bills, bigger tire and gasoline mileage, longer life to the Ford chassis, less upkeep cost, and greater all around efficiency.

The Phenix Truck Maker is positively the best investment a prospective truck owner can make.

The Phenix Truck Maker requires the least dealer's service to the user.

This means greatest Truck Service to the owner.

Please write for fullest information of the best Truck Maker made or, better still, telephone CALUMET 7260 for a demonstration.

FALL EARNS TITLE OF MILE CHAMPION

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Edwin H. Fall Jr. is the fastest mile runner in the central west, probably the fastest in the country, and possibly the fastest in the world. He definitely established his claim to the Central Amateur Athletic union title in the sixteenth annual track and field games at Stagg field yesterday.

Over a track which had been well groomed from recent rains and looked fast and snappy, but in reality was slightly cuppy and holding beneath, the former Oberlin man, now a wearer of the Cherry Circle of the Chicago Athletic association, sped four times around the quarter mile oval in 4:16. This was within one-fifth second of his recent western conference mark over the same track in better condition, and within one and three-fifths seconds of John Paul Jones' competition record. It lowered the Central A. A. U. mark of 4:21 1-5, set in 1915 by Marceau of the C. A. A., who finished fourth.

Finishes Forty Yards Ahead.

Fall ran away from his field just as in the conference meet when he really settled down to business and finished 40 yards ahead of Joe Stout, the former Maroon, who pressed all during the third lap, but had nothing to equal Fall's spurt in the final quarter. Otis, another of Stagg's middle distance men, was third.

This race, which was advertised as the feature of the card, lost some of its interest by the withdrawal of Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C. after running half a lap, and the absence of Mike Mason, former Illini, as a starter.

Those who saw Fall's race confidently expect him sooner or later to crack the world's mile mark under Martin Delaney's tutelage.

Meet Easy for C. A. A.

Aside from Fall's mile, the high lights of a rather mediocre affair, from a competitive viewpoint, were the comparatively easy victory of the well balanced Cherry Circle squad, which scored in every event; Andy Ward's double victory in the century and furlong; Curtiss' defeat of Earl Eby in the quarter mile; Joie Ray's defeat in the five mile, and the University of Chicago's victory over the C. A. A. in the mile relay, in which Curtiss and Eby hooked up on even terms for the final quarter, with the Maroon ten yards in front at the finish.

Two records were shattered in the field events. Dan Ahearn of the Illinois A. C. registered 48 feet 6¾ inches in the hop, step, and jump, beating his own mark by three inches, and Joseph Shanahan, also of the Tricolor, tossed the fifty-six pound weight 31 feet 9 inches, as against his own 29 feet 3½ inches in 1916.

Curtiss Runs Great Race.

Curtiss, Stagg's conference winner, made all the pace in the quarter mile, beating his field to the pole in the scramble for position around the first turn. He was challenged by both Miller and Eby on the back stretch, but had plenty left to win by eight yards, with Miller four ahead of Eby, who attended University of Pennsylvania last year.

Joie Ray's defeat in the five mile was a distinct surprise, as he had dropped out of the mile supposedly to save his strength. The tricolor midget pumped into the lead at the start, then suddenly slowed down almost to a walk and dropped back half a lap for a conversation party with his brother, Tmerald Ray, who was receiving a baptismal test in fast company.

This brother act continued for about a mile and half, with Joie coaching the junior until he decided he better attend to his own knitting, but he was too far behind.

CRAZY KENNEDY DETECTIVE

Words and Pictures by RING W. LARDNER

CHAPTER 1.

"MORRISON," said C. Kennedy, one morning after dark, "I have just had a telephone call."

"What of it?" I barked.

"The telephone call," remarked C. Kennedy, "was from a walrus 35 years of age, with mauve eyes, gray hair, and a scar on his left cheek and rompers on his dreamy eyes."

"What does he want?" I snored.

"He says," questioned Kennedy, "that he has been working for several years in an office building in the Loop, and now he can't find it."

"Ouch," I uttered.

"But," butted Kennedy, "this is a serious matter. The horrible stiff must go to work this morning and he can't find out where he works."

"Guch," I stuttered.

"It," quoted Kennedy, "looked like Ty Cobb stealing home."

It looked like Ty Cobb stealing home.

CHAPTER 2.

"I," said our visitor, "have been looking for my office for many weeks."

"What of it?" wept Kennedy.

"For years," said he, fingering the vase of orchids on the hatrack, "I have worked at the corner of Madison and Monroe, and now I can't find it."

"Were you out last night?" crazied Kennedy.

"None of your business," absolutely demolished our client. "But I must find this office."

"Where do you work?" startled Crazy.

"At the firm of Hoons and Moons," said the wild man, who was rapidly growing wilder every hour.

"Oh, you beautiful doll!" prompted Kennedy. "I have a clue. Let's look in the telephone book and see if we can find Hoons and Moons."

"O, you beautiful doll," said he.

Kennedy trod on his toes sharply and he cut short the words.

"Ouch," he cluttered.

It was less than a moment later when Kennedy had looked in the telephone directory and discovered that Hoons and Moons were at Clark and Randolph.

"There is your joint," quoth Kennedy. "Right near Smiley Corbett's."

"Thanks," muttered our ridiculous client.

INDIANS PUT ON WAR PAINT AND SLAY SOX, 11-1

Williams, Scott, and Benz Are Victims in Uprising.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Cleveland, O., June 30.—[Special.]—Those aspiring White Sox dropped into a class B stride and the Cleveland Indians romped away with the second game of the series by a count of 11 to 1. If the Sox should continue to play baseball as they did today it would be only a matter of time until they captured last place in the pennant race.

There never was a chance after the first inning for the Sox to win. They got their lone tally in a jiffy right at the start of the game and from then on there was nothing but Cleveland fellows running around the bases. Three Sox pitchers, Claude Williams, Jim Scott, and Joe Benz, tried to stop the Indians' uprising, but each one was severely punished.

Sox Field Like Bushers.

On defensive playing the Sox simply were awful. They made five errors. Even Hap Felsch dropped a fly ball, incredible as that may seem. Buck Weaver heaved one to the pavilion, something he was supposed to have forgotten how to do.

And then there was the almost unbelievable showing of Ray Schalk as a catcher. It always has been a pleasure to see him peg 'em out at second. Well, Ray probably is glad the folks at home didn't see him today, but we must tell 'em about it just the same. Five fellows stole second on Ray, and there was a bad peg every time. No one else tried to steal second or there might have been more stolen bases.

Tris Pulls a Speaker.

Then Tris Speaker pulled a trick that has been done in baseball only a few times since the days of Billy Sunday and Bill Lange. Tris scored all the way from second on a sacrifice fly, and the fly was caught by Hap Felsch, too, the boy with the great throwing arm. He did not peg to third, either. He pegged to Risberg and Risberg relayed it home a bit high, but Tris was there.

Such sins are awful to be committed by a team which is out after a pennant, but of course they were out of the running early in the game and Cleveland's boys did daring things and had luck in their favor, all of which made the Sox look like a possible first division team in the Central association in the eyes of the Cleveland fans.

Walkover for Jim Bagby.

Jim Bagby, calm and deliberate, was on the slab for the Indians and was splendid. He beat the Sox over at Comiskey park recently, and he did it with even a better flourish today. Jim is supposed to have little and know a lot, and it looks as if a guy like that is the kind to lick our aspiring champions. He held the Sox to six scattered hits and trimmed the Rowland crew so easily that at times he seemed bored.

Williams stood on the firing line for the first three innings. The Indians peppered him for six hits and five runs, and he retreated to the second trench to let Jim Scott face the fire. Scott labored three rounds, yielding four hits and three runs. Then he retreated and Joe Benz came forth, fresh and furious. Joe was knocked for three runs on three hits and some awful errors, and then the game was over and the crowd was glad. Score:

WHITE SOX NOTES.

Cleveland, O., June 30.—[Special.]—Eddie Cicotte is slated to go to the slab tomorrow and restore order on the Sox team. Morton is likely to oppose him.

There was a crowd of at least 8,000 present and it had a splendid time laughing at the things the Sox did.

Tris Speaker took unto himself a new bat, one about six inches shorter than he ever used before. He got a double and a triple with it, so intends to stick to it.

Bill Wambsganss, known now as Wamby, was married tonight to a Cleveland girl, but it is possible he will have to go and battle against the vaterland just the same.

There was not a single roar from Cleveland players on the condition of the ball used by the Sox pitchers, yet Williams was one of the slabmen accused by them of using something phony in his delivery.

RED CROSS MEET FOR NET PLAYERS SETS NEW MARK

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

The Illinois patriotic tennis tournament got a flying start on the courts of the new South Side club yesterday with the biggest entry list ever recorded for any state championship event. The first round of men's singles, which inaugurated the title tourney yesterday, included 170 names. About twenty-five matches were played off in the first and second rounds.

President R. G. Crandall of the Chicago Tennis association won two matches, his victory over I. W. Hadsell of the home club in the second round being the feature contest of the day. Crandall did some excellent driving to back court in the latter sets of the contest, after dropping the first to Hadsell with only feeble opposition, and won by 1—6, 6—2, 9—7.

Rosenberg Shows Speed.

M. Rosenberg, a Californian, who improved his game by playing against such stars as Johnston, Strachan, and others of the coast contingent earlier in the year, demonstrated some speedy plays by beating H. Forster, 6—0, 6—2. Due to the large number of entries, the committee has agreed on a rigid default rule, and will forfeit every match in the preliminary and first rounds of men's singles in which the players have not appeared by 5 o'clock tomorrow night. Thereafter during the tournament the players will be officially notified by postal card of the hour of their matches, and will be defaulted if not on hand.

All proceeds from the tournament will go to the Red Cross, and the new club has advertised the meet to pay over a large sized check as its war "bit." The club held a dance at the Del Prado last night to make visiting players feel at home, and will end the tourney with another dance next Saturday on the club grounds.

Summary of Matches.

First round, singles—J. A. Elmsley beat J. R. Hattstaedt, 6—4, 6—3; C. L. Fredericks beat A. W. Wallerstein, 6—1, 6—4; A. Long, Decatur, Ill., beat M. Joyce, 6—4, 6—3; W. S. Salt beat W. O. M'Graw Case to Be Heard by Magnates Next Friday

New York, June 30.—The case involving the repudiated interviews of John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National league baseball club, and the newspaper men who made the last road trip with the Giants, will probably be reopened by John K. Tener, president of the league, on July 6.

Although the exact date was not set, it was said McGraw would have an opportunity to offer an explanation of his part of the affair next Friday unless some club owners find they are unable to be in New York on that date.

ONE FIRED; OTHER HIRED

President Dreyfuss of Pirates Ousted Jimmy Callahan as Manager Yesterday, Installing "Hans" Wagner as Temporary Leader.

Jimmy Callahan
'Hans' Wagner

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 30.—James J. Callahan, manager of the Pittsburgh club since the opening of the 1916 season, today was relieved of the managership and John H. (Hans) Wagner, veteran infielder of the club, appointed temporary manager. Wagner assumed charge of the club this afternoon.

The dropping of Callahan, who succeeded Fred Clarke, had been predicted for several days. Dissatisfaction among members of the team and the consequent poor showing of the Pirates this season was blamed by many upon Callahan. He was notified of his release shortly before this afternoon's game.

It was stated President Dreyfuss expects to have a new manager for the club within two or three days. Wagner it is said, has refused to become manager permanently. Club officials treated lightly a report that Larry Doyle of the Chicago Nationals would be engaged as manager.

Others reported to be under consideration are Harry Wolverton, recent manager of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, and Jack Hendricks, manager of the Indianapolis American association club.

COBB MAINTAINS HITTING STREAK IN TWO BATTLES

St. Louis, Mo., June 30.—Ty Cobb got a home run with the bases filled in the fifth inning of the second game of the double header between Detroit and St. Louis and in the seventh inning he hit a triple which scored Young from first. It was the twenty-eighth consecutive game in which Cobb hit safely. Detroit won, 6 to 5.

In the first game Cobb got a double and a single. St. Louis won, 4 to 3. Plank outpitched Mitchell, St. Louis won in the seventh. Johnson reached first safely when Young fumbled his grounder and Sloan's triple scored him.

Cobb practically decided the second game, when with the bases filled he hit the ball over the right field bleachers.

An error by Johnson, singles by Bush and R. Jones and Cobb's triple gave Detroit two runs in the seventh. James was replaced by Dauss in the eighth just in time to check a St. Louis rally which fell short one run of tying the score. Scores:

No Offer for Doyle as Manager at Pittsburgh

President Weeghman of the Cubs said, regarding the report that Pittsburgh was after Larry Doyle to succeed James J. Callahan as manager of the Pirates, that nothing had been heard from Barney Dreyfuss to that effect. He declined to discuss what attitude the club would take in advance of some intimation from official sources. Manager Mitchell declared he had heard nothing directly, but would not block a chance for Doyle to better himself if the Pittsburgh club was willing to give in return as good a player as Doyle.

HIPPO BLANKS CARDS, 6 TO 0; ALLOWS 4 HITS

Pitches Great Game While Mates Swat Ball on Nose.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Backed up by good support, in which he participated notably, Hippo Vaughn shut the St. Louis Cardinals out with four scattered singles yesterday and enabled the Cubs to cop the seventh game of this elongated series by a score of 6 to 0.

Once only did the Cards get frisky with Hippo. They massed two of their singles in the fifth inning and might have scored the first run of the game but for Miller's attempt to make third on his successor's hit. He would have made it at that if Vaughn had not relayed Williams' wide throw to third in time to beat the runner. This feat was followed by the only Cub error and a base on balls, consequently the visitors concentrated practically all their offensive into that one period.

Fall On Ames in Fifth.

Leon Ames baffled the Mitchells for four innings, but in the fifth the locals got busy and were helped by a pair of errors into making a brace of tallies. Again in the seventh they lit on Ames for two runs and those were earned. Leon vanished in the shadow of a pinch hitter in the next round and let Recruit May finish the job. He was nicked for two more runs.

Rowdy Elliott, who was pressed into the game unexpectedly by an accident to Wilson in the second inning, showed his resentment by stinging three solid hits in succession, a double, a single, and triple. Vaughn contributed two singles to his own benefit and Williams ripped off a double and single where they did not count.

The fielding feature of the day was a running catch by Mann in the sixth. Les had to dash back near the bleacher, jump in the air, and nip Baird's drive with one hand in order to rob the batsman of a hit which would have done little damage at that stage of the proceedings.

Slab Battle at Start.

It was wholly a slab battle for four rounds. Miller scratched a single on the infield with one down in the fifth. Gonzales tore off one to center, and Miller elected to go to third. Williams' throw went way inside of third, but Vaughn went over and grabbed it in time to toss to Zeider, retiring Miller. Gonzales, who had stuck to first on the play, remedied his oversight by stealing second and keeping on to third on the throw to center. Betzel walked, but Ames rolled the side out.

Just for that the Cubs did some business in their half. Wortman led with a single. Elliott bounced a double into left center, and Wortman went home on it. Vaughn singled to left. Cruise muffed Flack's tall fly, letting Elliott score and Vaughn reach second. Ames got the next three and blanked the Cubs in the sixth.

Rowdy Starts Spurt in Seventh.

Elliott, first up in the seventh, blazed the way to two more runs with a single. Vaughn sacrificed. Flack doubled, scoring Rowdy. Mann hit the right field wall with a long fly for a double, but the near catch held Flack to third, from where Doyle scored him with a fly.

With May slabbing in the eighth, Zeider walked, made second on Wortman's out, and registered when Elliott whaled a three bagger into the right field corner. Vaughn beat out a slow bounder twixt third and short, scoring Elliott. Score:

NOTES OF THE CUBS.

St. Louis once more today.

The present series now stands four to three in favor of the Cards.

The pitchers were busy on the fielding job. Ames registered seven assists and a putout. Vaughn had five assists and three outs, while May got one assist.

J. Smith nearly lost a tall fly from Williams in the sixth. The ball hopped out of his mitt, but he caught it after a couple of excess grabs.

Long made half of St. Louis' hits, but one of them was a scratch, when he beat a slow roller toward third in the fourth. He took a full swing at the pill, which merely squashed off his bat along the foul line.

GIANTS GATHER EIGHT TALLIES IN ONE ATTACK

Drive in Lucky Seventh Brings 8 to 2 Victory Over Braves.

New York, June 30.—After pitching sensational ball for six innings, Nehf of Boston went to pieces in the seventh and New York scored eight runs. The big inning enabled the Giants to win easily, 8 to 2. The Giants scored the runs on five singles, a double, a triple, a home run, a fumble by Massey, and a fielder's choice. Lobert hit a single and a home run in that inning. Zimmerman and Tragresser were put off the field for protesting decisions. Umpire Rigler also cleared the Boston bench of all extra players in the eighth. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 30.—Philadelphia won the first game from Brooklyn, 6 to 2, and lost the second, 9 to 6. The opener was merely light exercise for Alexander. Coombs lasted five innings and Dell was knocked out in the seventh. Fifteen hits were made by Brooklyn in the second game off Mayer and Chief Bender. PIRATES, 5; REDS, 4.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 30.—Pittsburgh won its first game under the management of J. H. (Hans) Wagner from Cincinnati, 5 to 4. Wagner, who temporarily has been placed in charge of the team, scored Pittsburgh's first run, and on his second time at bat drove in two more men. In the ninth, with first and third base occupied and one out, Pitler prevented Cincinnati winning by making a brilliant catch of Cueto's high fly back of second base. He whipped the ball to Fischer, who relayed it to McCarthy at third base, completing a double play. Score:

RUTH FINED $100, OUT FOR WEEK

Boston, Mass., June 30.—A suspension of one week and a fine of $100 was the punishment imposed upon Babe Ruth, leading pitcher of the Boston Americans, for striking Umpire Owens a week ago, according to word received from President Ban B. Johnson of the league today. Ruth will be eligible again Tuesday.

The world's champions today released Olaf Henriksen, utility outfielder and pinch hitter, famous for a time through his hit which gave Boston the eighth game and the world series with the New York Nationals in 1912.

Henriksen, who has been with the Red Sox since 1911, was sold to Toledo. Pitcher J. Weldon Wyckoff, formerly with the Philadelphia Athletics, was released by Boston to the Buffalo Internationals under an optional agreement.

Comish Also Bars Ruth.

Cincinnati, O., June 30.—Two players today were temporarily barred from playing with any teams under organized baseball by the National Baseball commission. Pitcher George Ruth of the Boston Americans will not be eligible for service until he settles a claim, made to the commission by Player C. A. Deal of the Chicago Nationals, of $100, alleged to be due as balance of a price on an automobile.

Player Chase Humphreys of Minneapolis is declared disqualified until his alleged indebtedness of $55.07 to the Richmond club is settled. The commission states that in the settlement with the player the Richmond club overpaid him the above amount and as subsequent communications to the Minneapolis club in an effort to obtain a settlement have proven unavailing, the player is disqualified until the debt is adjusted through the commission.

Caldwell and Shocker, Yank Pitchers, Suspended

Boston, Mass., June 30.—Ray Caldwell, Yankee pitching star, is again on the suspended list. A ten day layoff was inflicted when he failed to appear at the club's hotel and later didn't show up at the baseball park. He was fined $100. Urban Shocker was given the same suspension and a $50 fine. Both men are charged with breaking training rules.

M'GRAW MIXUP HURTS LEAGUE WITH WRITERS

Repudiation of Statement Against Tener Brands Scribes as Liars.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

As usual, the National league picked the worst way out of a bad mess when its directors tried to cover up the latest McGraw scandal in what they thought the easiest and simplest way.

Instead of compelling the unruly manager of the Giants to apologize for his attacks on the president of the National league or get out of the game which he has done so much to injure, the directors compromised by openly insulting the baseball writers of New York and, indirectly, the rest of the men reporting baseball.

It has been practically admitted by one member of the National league that the Giant manager himself did not write the "statement" denying his interviews attacking Tener and branding the Gotham scribes as liars. It did not sound like McGraw, who is not sufficiently literary to have composed some of the sentences prepared for his signature. The "statement" was drafted inside the council rooms of the National league, and McGraw merely signed it as apparently the softest way out.

It was the biggest mistake the National league or McGraw ever made.

Easy to Blame Reporter.

The public is easily fooled and perfectly willing to believe a newspaper is in the wrong. That has been the alibi of every erring politician, pharisee, and sinner since print paper was invented. It is the easiest thing in the world to call an individual reporter or newspaper a liar. It used to be so in the baseball world. But it's different now, as the "magnates" are learning.

Several, if not all, of the New York writers who wrote for their papers the interviews in which McGraw roasted Tener are members of the Baseball Writers' association. One of them, at least, is an officer and a charter member. From long association with them, other members of the Writers' association know whether or not they are on the level. Any man who writes major league baseball for a living is automatically eligible to membership in the organization, but can be expelled for various causes, among them deliberately faking interviews injurious to baseball or the men engaged in it.

Not a Member Expelled.

There never has been such an expulsion because no member of the association has been guilty of that fault. Rumors and guesses that have proved to be wild and unfounded have been given publicity because of the impossibility of verifying every little eleventh hour rumor in the haste of modern newspaper making. But they are printed as rumors and so labeled by the majority of writers. It is an entirely different thing deliberately to write a fake interview with any personage with design to injure said person or any one else.

From personal acquaintance with the Gotham scribes who have been called liars and creators of scurrilous interviews, I knew, without their affidavits, that McGraw had said, in effect, what he did about Tener and his government of the National league. He might possibly have said it without expecting it to be published, but there is no claim made of violation of confidence. The interviews were denied in toto and the writers utterly discredited in the minds of the fans.

McGraw Denial a Joke.

We who write baseball know that the National league club owners knew, when they prepared the McGraw "statement," that said statement was not true, and that McGraw knew it was untrue when he signed it.

They used to get away with that stuff, because one man or a small group of writers trying to defend themselves could command only a comparatively small field. It is different today, with an organization behind every baseball writer, prepared to defend him from the insults of individual or collective baseball "magnates."

The National league, which owes so much to the baseball writers of the country, is sorry already for its break, but repentance came too late. It has estranged many friends and made more bitter those who were prejudiced against it. That is the penalty for letting a great enterprise drift into the hands of inexperienced men.

CHANGE COURSE AT MIDLOTHIAN FOR BIG TOURNEY

Several Tees Will be Put Back for the Western Amateur Meet.

BY JOE DAVIS.

The course of the Midlothian Country club, over which the western amateur golf championship will be played the week of July 8, will measure between 6,500 and 6,570 yards. It now is carded at 6,503, with a par of 74, but several tees will be put back for the championship, and a few other minor changes may be made by the officials of the W. G. A. when they inspect the course this week.

Like many of the older courses, Midlothian originally contained many of the old cross bunkers, but only about three of these remain, and these do not guard greens. From time to time modern alterations have been made, the greatest number taking place last year under the supervision of E. Hoover Bankard.

Some Holes Still Easy.

Players who competed in the national open championship in 1914 will find many of the holes thoroughly modern in their trapping, but as all the intended improvements have not been made, some of the holes present little trouble.

The majority of the bunkers have high cops with deep pits, and unless an exceptionally fine lie is obtained it is impossible to get much distance.

The decision of the officials of the W. G. A. to play the second nine holes first is a good move, as the seventh, eighth, and ninth holes make a harder finish than the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth, giving the player who is one or two down at the fifteenth hole a much better chance of making up his deficit.

Best Scores of Open Tourney.

As at present arranged, the course will be fully 150 yards longer than in the national open event, when par was 73, and the best cards made were 68 by Walter Hagen and 69 by Francis Ouimet and Joe Mitchell.

At that time the course was considerably faster than now, but if the present week remains fine there will be no excuse on that score. The weather has kept the grass back, but it is now coming along in fine shape and few bad lies are to be found on the fairways. Bare spots on a few of the putting greens have been sown with clover and will be covered by the time play starts.

The new par ruling of the Western Golf association cuts the par to 72, cutting one stroke off the present ninth hole, 428 yards, and one off the tenth hole, 437 yards.

Description of Course.

The yardage in the tournament will be approximately as follows:

Out—

437 382 122 520 300 158 490 400 291

In—

406 166 359 338 390 402 538 346 428

HOLE 1, 437 yards—A cross bunker fifty yards from the tee is the only hazard on a wide fairway, the right of which is flanked by a road. Sand traps are on the left and right corners of the green.

HOLE 2, 382 yards—Trees and long grass are on the right and rough on the left. Great changes have been made in the green, which has been raised fifteen feet at the back, giving a much better chance to hold the ball on the green. Traps are on the left and right of the green.

HOLE 3, 122 yards—This hole fairly bristles with traps and mounds. The back of the green has been raised and an overplayed ball runs into a wide trap, giving chance for a recovery.

HOLE 4, 520 yards—A wide fairway calls for a laying up of the wood. The entrance to the green is bunkered on left and right, making the second shot a tough one if distance is required.

Cross Bunker at Fifth.

Hole 5, 300 yards—A cross bunker will catch a topped drive. The green is half guarded by a bunker. Traps are found on the right and left of the sloping green. This formerly was guarded by a cross bunker and is a much improved hole.

Hole 6, 158 yards—Chocolate drops guard the front of the green and a semi-circular trap rounds around the back of the green, while on the right there are sand traps.

Hole 7, 490 yards—Mounds on the left and right catch inaccurate second shots and the green is trapped on the left at the back.

Hole 8, 400 yards—Lots of room permits "letting out" from the tee, distance being valuable, as the pitch to the sloping green is a nifty one. It is trapped on the left, with a smaller trap on the right.

Hole 9, 291 yards—The drive must carry the creek from a new tee thirty yards back of the present one. Rows of mounds flank the fairway approaching the green, and traps are on the left.

Tee Moved Back at Tenth.

Hole 10, 406 yards—The tee will be moved back and be about 220 yards from the creek. The slightly sloping green is trapped on the left and right corners.

Hole 11, 166 yards—A cross bunker stands 80 yards from the tee. The ground to the right of the green slopes uphill and a big mound catches shots which previously had a chance to run down to the green. Another mound has been placed on the left.

Hole 12, 359 yards—A slope on the left carries the ball into a trough or to a trap. A bunker thirty yards from the green and two small mounds at the back of it, and a wee sand pit on the left are danger spots.

Hole 13, 338 yards—This is the easiest hole on the course, the fairway sloping down to a circus ring green, with no trouble to speak of.

Hole 14, 390 yards—Two mound bunkers on the left and another big one on the right call for a big carry or an accurately placed tee shot. The green has been built up ten feet on the right. Fifteen yards to the left of the green is a battle trench five feet deep, but wide enough to permit of recovery.

Fifteenth Is 402 Yards.

Hole 15, 402 yards—A roadway bordered by a box hedge is the boundary on the left. The tee will be placed fifteen yards back and a mound on the right may catch a high drive. Traps are on the left and right corner of the green.

Hole 16, 538 yards—A cross bunker stands 140 yards up the course and mounds are found on the right farther up. Cop bunkers are placed to catch sliced or pulled seconds, and bunkers guard the entrance to the flat green.

Hole 17, 346 yards—The tee will be moved back so as to permit of a full shot. A row of mounds flank the edge of the fairway which adjoins that of the first hole. The green is terraced on three sides.

Hole 18, 428 yards out—The drive is down a lane of mounds and a stiff cross bunker will catch a low second, while cop bunkers will catch a pulled or sliced ball. The green is slightly sloping and with the attendant hazards makes a fine finish.

Maywood.

At Maywood A. A. Luttrell of the "heavyweight" division registered 90—9—81 for low gross and net scores in the medal handicap, while E. W. Siebold with 112—29—83 had the second best net. Incidentally Luttrell and Siebold competed with those golfers of a tonnage of 180 or above. In the "lean" division T. E. Henry, 96—6—86, and J. E. Bradley, 102—16—86, were leaders.

In the second flight final for the Golf Shop trophy J. D. Pettigrew was 2 up on Harry Rosenbusch at the end of the first eighteen holes. The match will be concluded next Saturday. Much interest is evidenced in the Red Cross tournament which will be played on July 4.

Edgebrook.

Close matches featured the finals for the Golf Shop and Consolation trophies at Edgebrook. The former event went to the last green, where E. L. Schmidt succumbed, 1 up, to Dwight Bennett. E. L. Brothers won the Consolation by defeating W. H. Brown, 2 up and 1 to play.

GOLF QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.

What is meant by timing your stroke? How can I secure proper timing?

CHAN. FASSETT, South Bend, Ind.

Ans.—Every stroke in golf is the result of scores of muscles working together. Each muscle not only has its own work to do, but also must do it precisely at the right moment to fit in with what the other muscles are doing, just as each player on a football team not only has his particular part in a complicated play, but also has to do that part precisely at the right moment to fit in with what the other players are doing. If a single player did exactly what he ought to, but did it too late or too soon, he would spoil the play.

In the same way, if any one of the muscles that coöperate in a golf stroke does its part too late or too soon, the timing is bad, the rhythm is broken, and the shot is spoiled.

The best way to secure proper timing is to begin with moderate speed and increase the speed of your swing gradually. Make your hands work faster than your forearms and don't try to put vigor into your stroke by force. Such effort as there is should come from the hands and should be directed to obtaining a smooth throw.

You speak of rolling the wrists. What is the difference between rolling and bending, or are they the same? NOVICE, Chicago.

Ans.—They are not the same. The difference can be clearly shown by a simple experiment. Stretch the right arm and hand out in front of you, with the palm and fingers open and facing to your left. The wrist will bend if you keep the arm steady and move the palm and fingers toward your right. Resume the position and you can roll the wrist by turning the open palm and fingers so as to face upward. The bend occurs only at the wrist; the roll involves the whole forearm.

If you will now take your club in both hands with the overlapping grip, as described in the first of these articles, and assume your stance, with the club in position behind the ball, you will see that the effect of rolling the wrists to the right as the club swings back is to make the toe of the club point upward.

How can I maintain a good rhythm and at the same time increase force to gain distance? SIDNEY SMITH.

Ans.—Distance is not produced by force, but by speed of stroke. When a novice tries for distance he usually tries to hit harder. When an expert wants a longer ball he swings smoothly, but faster. If you now have a good swing, don't try to force it. Keep on swinging smoothly and gradually increase your speed. You will be getting longer shots with practically the same effort as your fingers become stronger and they depend less on your forearms, which enables you to get the break of the wrists.

This will be because you get speed from the action of your hands in addition to that from your arms.

I frequently top my ball. A friend insists that I look up too soon and says that I can correct this fault by fixing my eyes upon the ball and continuing to look at the place where the ball was after it has gone. I have tried this, but still top. What shall I do?

W. G. MANLY, Columbia, Mo.

Ans.—Don't try to correct one fault by developing another. You may have been looking up too soon, but now you are probably so intent on the ball that your forearms are getting into the stroke too much. Too much mental effort causes a corresponding physical effort.

The remedy is to picture your stroke as it should be made and let your attention and eyes move in unison with your club. This will give you better rhythm and timing; and if you will throw the clubhead freely past the ball with the hands instead of trying to force it forward with the forearms, you will pick up the ball cleanly and effectively.

In making most of my shots, but especially in short mashie shots, my right forearm tightens and spoils the shot. How can I get rid of this fault? J. M. M., Lake Zurich.

Ans.—You probably are trying too hard to help the club do its work. Get rid of your feeling of responsibility. Relax your mind and all your muscles; throw the club head with a free swing, and take the results. You will find that the club can do its work best without supervision or aid from you after the swing has started.

There are three mechanical devices which may help you. 1. Take the wrong end of the club in your hand, swing a few times, and then change ends and grip properly. This may enable you to feel the weight of the clubhead more definitely.

2. Carry the club back to the top of a half swing and then without moving the arms throw the clubhead with the hands a few times to relax the wrists.

3. In making your stroke loosen the grip of the right hand on the forward swing and let the right hand ride until the right arm has become accustomed to traveling without changing the tension of the muscles of the hand and forearm. Then gradually tighten the right hand without tightening the muscles of the forearm.

How do you control distance with the mashie? I observe that some of the best players seem to swing just as long and as fast for an approach of thirty yards as for one of eighty. HYDE PARK.

Ans.—Good players control distance by picturing the shot they wish to make and then making it. They do not picture the movements of their arms, but the flight of the ball. If you wish to write your name you do not think about the motions of the pen, but only about the result.

In making the thirty yard approaches of which you speak the players probably used the chip shot. This shot lofts the ball high into the air and gives it back spin. Obviously, more power is expended in lifting a ball almost straight up than in sending it forward for an equal distance.

If the swing of the eighty yard shots was really no longer or swifter than for those of thirty yards the flight of the ball was probably lower and in a flatter arc. It is possible, however, that although the club head went up no higher in the back swing the swing was really longer, as the chip shot is made with a sharper arc of swing. In shots of eighty yards or more the arms take part in the swing and the swing is really longer and flatter.

PALMER PARKS VICTORS IN NET CONTEST, 3 TO 2

Take Second League Tilt by Winning from Washington Parkers.

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Team contests in the first division of the Chicago Tennis association, which originally were scheduled this week end, were called off to provide no counter attraction for the state Red Cross meet now on at the South Side club, and play yesterday was confined to the two court division of the league and to the Public Parks' association. The second division of the association will play today.

The south division clash between Washington and Palmer parks at the latter's grounds was particularly hard fought. Palmer won, making its second straight victory, but by the slight margin of 3 matches to 2.

Forty Games to Decision.

Forty games were required to settle the singles match between R. Munch of Palmer and Tannenbaum, Washington, the latter player finally succumbing, 4—6, 6—4, 11—9. Munch and Lundgren won a grueling doubles match from Orton and Dour, 3—6, 6—1, 9—7. Summaries:

Singles—V. Baird, Palmer, beat H. Merts, Washington, 2—6, 6—3, 7—5; R. Munch, Palmer, beat Tannenbaum, Washington, 6—4, 4—6, 11—9; C. Cohen, Washington, beat A. Raskewitz, Palmer, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Doubles—Munch and Lundgren, Palmer, beat P. Orton and R. Dour, Washington, 3—6, 6—1, 9—7; H. Merts and C. Cohen, Washington, beat L. Hawkinson and A. Martinson, Palmer, 6—3, 6—3.

AT OGDEN PARK.

Jackson Park won its south section team match from Ogden on the west siders' courts, three matches to two. The team victory was in doubt until the final point of the closing doubles contest, which Guiton and Henkle of Jackson managed to win by a hard fight from Wasserman and De Swate. Jackson won both doubles matches, but Ogden captured two of three in singles. Summaries:

Singles—L. Campbell, Jackson, beat De Swate, Ogden, 6—3, 6—3; Smetanna, Ogden, beat Plume, Jackson, 6—1, 6—1; N. Wasserman, Ogden, beat C. Fowler, Jackson, 6—3, 6—4.

Doubles—Purfin and D. Smith, Jackson, beat H. Severson and Schmidt, Ogden, 10—8, 6—1; Ginton and Henkle, Jackson, beat Wasserman and De Swate, Ogden, 7—5; 6—4.

O'Leary's at Forest Park Doing His 100 Mile Hike

Dan O'Leary started his 100 mile hike in celebration of his 75th birthday at 9 o'clock last night. The veteran pedestrian made his first stop at 1:30 o'clock, having fallen a little behind his schedule, due to the crowd, which at times pushed on the track at Forest Park. After hitting a four mile an hour clip most of the night, he raised the total mileage by hiking at a six mile rate in the early morning. Former Ald. Joseph Badenoch, started Dan off, walking several laps with him.

AUTO RACE NETS WAR AMBULANCE, RED CROSS FUND

Speedway Will Equip Car and Donate $5,000 to Hospital Cause.

After a meeting behind closed doors directors of the Speedway Park association were induced yesterday to issue a statement as to what is to be done with the profits of "War Cause day" at the Chicago speedway two weeks ago.

A completely equipped ambulance, it was announced, will be ordered at once and sent to France, designated as the "Speedway Park Association Chicago ambulance." In addition, the association voted to send a check for $5,000 to the Chicago branch of the American Red Cross.

Enough, Reid Thinks.

This was the extent of the announcement, and President David F. Reid of the association intimated he saw no occasion for amplifying it.

Public school officials, who authorized the participation of 3,500 high school cadets in the speedway festivities, were assured the entire profits of the day, with only the actual expenses of the auto Derby deducted, would be turned over to a citizens' committee for distribution.

Exact Receipts Kept Secret.

This being the case, THE TRIBUNE has made several efforts to learn the exact amount of the funds realized, but without success.

WEST SIDE "Y" WINS DUAL MEET

West Side Y. M. C. A. athletes won a duel meet from Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A. on the latter's field, 41 points to 26. Peterson of the West Side team was individual star. He totaled 21 points with firsts in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, high jump and pole vault, and third in the shotput.

The half mile relay, four men running, 220 yards for each team, was an exciting brush in which each held the lead at times. The Sears-Roebuck sprinters flashed ahead on the final laps, winning the race by ten feet. Chisholm did good work for the losing team, winning the 110 yard low hurdles in :15 1-5 and taking the broad jump. West Siders won all places in the shotput. Summaries:

JESS WILLARD, MADE TO ORDER CHAMP, A MINT

Tom Jones, Jack Curley, & Co. Cling Fast to Money Maker.

BY RAY PEARSON.

It has been hinted times without number, ever since he defeated Frank Moran in a New York ring, that Jess Willard, the big Chicago chap who holds the exalted position of heavyweight champion of the world, would never engage in another contest within the confines of four ropes. The big Chicagoan from time to time has placed the stamp of denial on these rumors, but to those close to him these same denials carried little significance, for Jess made them in a weak sort of a way, indicating that he himself was not strongly inclined toward the sport at which he made his reputation and perhaps more money than any other titleholder ever was able to garner in so short a time.

Now there seems to be little doubt, for Willard himself has come out cold turkey and declared that he may never fight again. He made this even stronger by tying the "can" to his managers, Tom Jones and Jack Curley, after he had purchased a wild west show, of which he now is the exclusive owner. So henceforth Jess Willard may be termed showman and not fighter.

A Manufactured Champion.

There is much that might be said about this action by Willard. It shows plainly how a champion does not have to be a "born" fighter, but a made to order one. There are some who will say that Jess Willard was a manufactured champion and there is more truth than fiction in this, for Jess Willard probably more than any man who ever held the crown dislikes the actual business of scrapping. He lacks the fighting spirit, is not possessed of the viciousness of many of his rivals, and above all other things has developed ideas of what a man with money should do as far as the world of sport is concerned.

But to be a champion Willard did not require fighting spirit and it was totally unnecessary for him to be vicious in the ring. He had the size, the weight, and physical advantages over his rivals which were sufficient to bring him victory.

Willard mastered Jack Johnson, with the aid of youth, by outstrengthing him and by the use of his natural advantages. Also he had the advice of several men who are credited with being the manufacturers of a champion. One of these was Tom Jones, another was Jack Curley, another was Harry Frazee, now the owner of the Boston Red Sox of the American league, and another was Webber, a theatrical man of New York.

How Trick Was Turned.

The part these four men played in making Willard champion is not new, but there are a few things in this connection which haven't seen the light of day and they make most interesting reading. It took Jones and Curley to see the prospects in Willard and they figured that Jess could cop the title and dethrone the Negro, as the big black was acknowledged to be on the down road. In fact, it was believed that when Willard fought Johnson at Havana there were several others in this country who could have beaten Lil' Artha just as certainly as did Willard.

So Curley and Jones rigged up the plans for the fight in Juarez, Mex. The revolution in the neighboring republic was a bit more strenuous at the time billed for the bout, and besides Johnson was cautious and refused to go any nearer to Mexico than Havana, Cuba. Jack, with a federal penitentiary sentence hanging over his head, wouldn't for one thing take a chance on coming too close to the United States.

Seek Backers with Coin.

But even that didn't balk Willard's managers. They quickly set about to transfer the bout to Havana. Then they discovered that more managers—fellows with a lot of coin—were needed in order to swing the new deal. So Curley went out after the men with the "jack" and found them in New York, the financiers being Frazee and Webber. As all were business men, they naturally had to exact some sort of an agreement with Willard to make sure that they would be reimbursed for the expenditures of putting on the big bout in the Cuban capital.

So they all got together and got Willard to agree that for a certain term of years after he was champion Big Jess would cough up to each 10 per cent of his earnings. In other words, for three years it was up to Willard to "come across," which gave Willard 60 per cent and his managers 40 per cent of the champion's coin. Pretty soft for the managers?

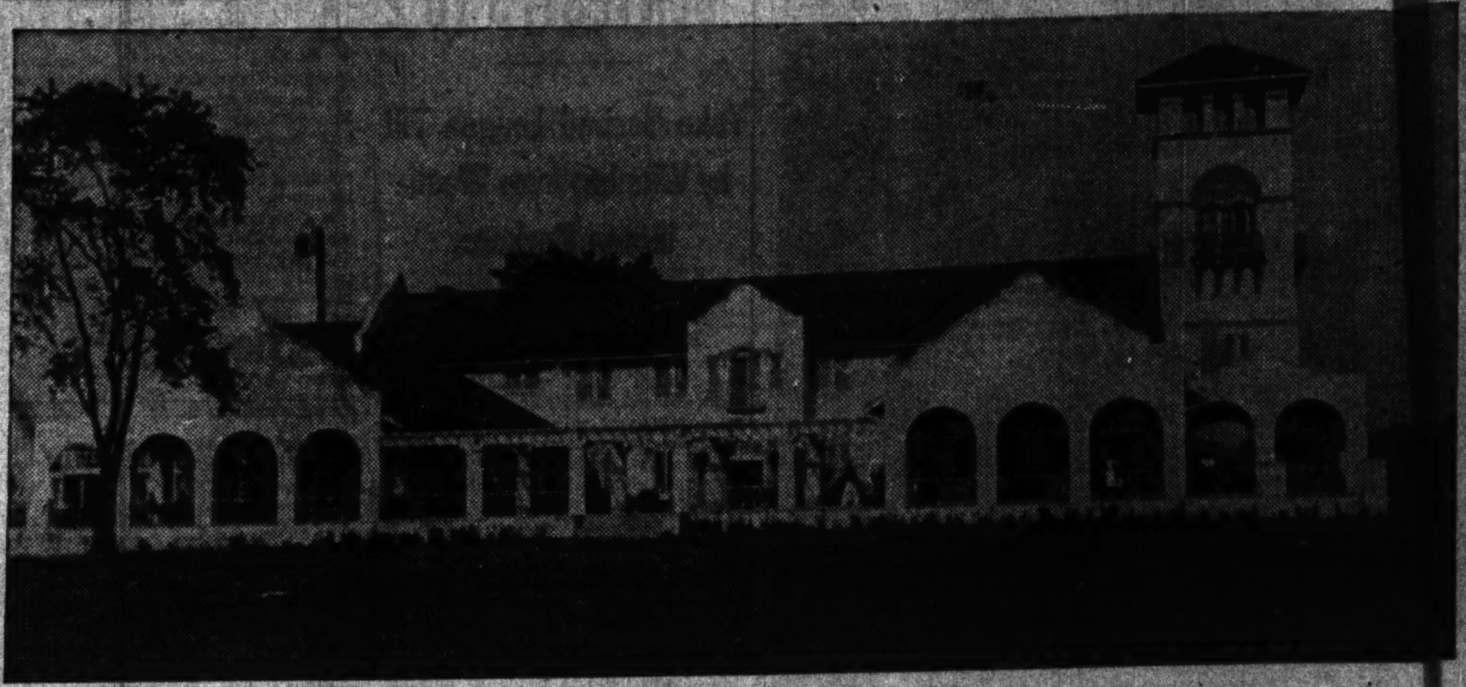
Willard made plenty of hay while the sun shone. In fact, it was surprising that he wasn't sunstruck, things were going so brightly. In a little more than a year after he won the title from Johnson he wanted to get rid of some of these managers. It is said he found them agreeable to this plan and that he dropped Frazee and Webber off his shoulders for a consideration of something like $67,500.

That left only two managers, Jones and Curley, and they are "sticking" like glue, despite the fact that the titleholder has fired them. Jones says his contract expires in September and that before that time he's going to make a lot more coin out of Willard by forcing him to meet Fred Fulton and Carl Morris in the ring.

To this Willard says "no" emphatically. He doesn't want to scrap any more, for he is so heavy that training is a drudge and hardship. When he isn't traveling with his show he wants to be a family man in Rogers Park in Chicago.

RAVISLOE COUNTRY CLUB

New House Stands on Highest Point of Course with All Modern Conveniences for Wants of Its Golfing Patrons.



THE new clubhouse of the Ravisloe Country club, recently opened, is one of the best in the country both from the viewpoint of architectural beauty and adaptability to the rather varied wants of a golfing community. Standing on the highest spot on the grounds, the eighty foot tower on the southwest corner of the clubhouse gives a more comprehensive view of the course than is obtainable at any club in the middle west.

The view shown in the accompanying photograph is the west front, and an almost equally good view obtains on the south front. The building is of steel and concrete construction, with red tile roofing. Wide porches are found on the south and west sides and on the north side a covered dancing porch permits of an extension of the airy dining room when occasion requires.

The style of architecture adopted by George C. Nimmons is Spanish, resembling some of the clubhouses of Southern California. The men's locker room has been left standing, but the old clubhouse has been moved back for servants' quarters, while the dormitory, which occupied the site of the new clubhouse, has been moved over to the south boundary of the grounds, next to the bachelors' dormitory.

BACK HARRISON TO STAY LIMIT

Odds of 2 to 1 and as high as you want to go are offered by Phil Harrison's admirers that George K. O. Brown will not knock out the Ghetto battler when they clash in Benton Harbor on the afternoon of July 4. Though they are backing their hope to win the popular decision, the Harrisonites are willing to risk their all that Phil will be on his feet at the close of the ten rounds. Phil is in great condition.

The Ghetto has another starter on the card in Sailor Freedman, who will meet Walter Jacobson in the semi-windup.

Three boats will take the fans over to the battle, the first at 9:30, a club; the second at 9:45, the third at 10. Tickets are on sale at Al. Bloom's.

Ohio Golf Title to Hollander.

Cincinnati, O., June 30.—H. B. Hollander, Cleveland, today defeated Templeton Briggs, Cincinnati, 4 and 2, in a thirty-six hole match for the amateur golf championship of Ohio at the Hamilton County Golf club.

GOOD RACES DEVELOP IN WEST SIDE TROTS; FAVORITES IN REAR

Despite a slow track, some exciting racing was staged at West Side Driving club, and the favorites were in total eclipse. Secretary Magnus Flaws' good green pacer John Archibald defeated four rivals in the green pace and stepped the second mile in 2:17¼. Doctor Brown met his first defeat of the season when Nash, the gray warrior, beat him in the free for all trot.

Coffroth and Breeders Start New Turf Fight

San Francisco, Cal., June 30.—The fight for supremacy in racing west of Chicago between James W. Coffroth, president of the Tia Juana Jockey club, and the Thoroughbred Breeders' association is on. The breeders have applied to the Ty Jockey club for a charter covering the entire west. Recently Coffroth announced all western racing associations must get the sanction of his organization of meetings or he would bar from Tia Juana horses running in unsanctioned events.

West secured seven tricks.

After the first trick, south could mark his partner with a Cavendish hand—one four and three three card suits. It was practically impossible for north to have another four card suit more measly than the one he had opened.

South therefore counted west for five clubs, probably established, and three hearts, including the ace or ace-king. Dummy could not make the remaining diamonds if west was compelled to start hearts or spades, and south made an excellent play in throwing the lead with a club.

After the sixth trick west realized that he wanted no more discards from dummy and switched to spades.

South could place the king of hearts with his partner on account of the good discard of a spade by north at trick six. Had north been unable to top the knave of hearts in dummy he would have thrown a heart or one of his worthless diamonds.

North made a good shift at trick nine and west could only secure the odd trick.

The deal caused much discussion as north and south afterward won the rubber, and the west hand was given a player who had not seen the original play, the results being most surprising.

West secured nine tricks.

After the first trick west decided that the only way to reënter dummy was to force the opponents to lead hearts or spades. Therefore his first move was to draw all their clubs. At trick seven south made a good play in order to force the lead upon west, but the latter made a great play in refusing to win the trick.

Though south knew all the hands he could save the game, and would have lost his ace of spades had he failed to make it at trick eight.

WANT TO START A RIFLE CLUB? WHY, IT'S EASY

Join National Body and Uncle Sam Will Help Get It Going.

BY LARRY ST. JOHN.

Not so many years ago the ability to shoot a rifle was a part of every American boy's education. "Them was the good old days" when turkey shoots were popular and the land kneweth not cabarets, movies, and pinch back coats.

This use of the rifle as a part of the day's work in filling the larder and preserving intact one's scalp, bred in the American people an enthusiasm for rifle shooting and a love of fine "shootin' irons" that has made us the greatest firearm inventors in the world today. Repeating rifles, automatic guns, good revolvers, machine guns, peep sights, smokeless powder, and ammunition making machinery are a few of the products of the Yankee's inherent love for tinkering with firearms.

Rifle Clubs Supply Sport.

Nowhere are guns so generally owned and used as in this country, but as the wild places become settled promiscuous rifle shooting becomes more dangerous, laws become more restrictive, and game becomes scarcer. This means that most Americans must work off their "shooting fever" with the aid of targets, which in turn means more rifle clubs.

The government has done much to interest the citizens of this country in rifle shooting, but while our government does ten times more for us than any other government does for its people, we do so little bragging about it that few Americans—especially native born—know the advantages of being an American.

This rifle shooting proposition is a good example of how we, the acknowledged experts in publicity, fall down when it comes to telling the people what the government will do for them. There are thousands of young Americans who are just "[illegible]" to take up rifle shooting and who never heard of the National Rifle association and its advantages.

War Department in Charge.

This association, officially known as the national board for the promotion of rifle practice, is under the jurisdiction of the war department, and is making every effort to make riflemen of our youngsters. There are now 1,845 rifle clubs in this country affiliated with the N. R. A., with a membership of something like 80,000 active members. About 10 per cent of these are juniors.

Any American boy from 10 to 18 years old may become a member of a junior rifle club. In this class, differing slightly in the rules and by-laws, we have school clubs, made up of students of public schools, preparatory and high schools, Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A. classes, summer camps, etc. Ten or more boys who do not belong to organizations of this kind, living in the same locality, can get together and organize a club of their own. Blanks, by-laws, etc., to be used in organizing a junior club, may be had by addressing the National Rifle association, Woodward building, Washington, D. C.

Advantages of N. R. A.

There are a number of advantages of having a club affiliated with the N. R. A. In times of peace one Krag rifle is issued free for every five members of the club and eighty rounds of ammunition is presented to every club member. Other supplies and equipment are sold at a nominal figure. In addition, there are many intercity, interschool, and other matches being shot from time to time and members are eligible to compete for different medals. Besides, the association can be of great help to a club in securing the use of national guard ranges and galleries.

These clubs may be organized in any community. A membership of ten or more citizens of the United States is required. The members must adopt the by-laws prescribed by the national board, select a name, elect officers, and manage the internal affairs of their club. Application blanks can be secured from the N. R. A.

Uncle Sam Helps Shooters.

Krag rifles and ammunition are issued free by the United States to organized rifle clubs—rifles in the proportion of one to every five members; ammunition, 120 rounds a year to every member. Because of the war, the department is not issuing free arms and ammunition, but all the other advantages of affiliation may be secured by any club under present conditions.

You fellows who love the smell of powder and the merry crack of a rifle and cannot enlist need not deny yourselves—either join a club or organize one of your own. It's a lot of fun, and if Uncle Sam needs you it will make you just that much more valuable.

DO YOU KNOW?

While we are getting acquainted with the standing of the countries in the international conflict it is well to brush up on sporting history. The paragraphs that follow may furnish food for argument in the trenches later. Do you know that:

Ty Cobb, Detroit outfielder, has on two occasions made five hits in a game?

There are 600,000 trap shooters in the land of the free and the home of the brave?

Howard Drew, Negro sprinter, has run 100 yards seventeen times in 9 4-5 seconds?

Jack Barry, Red Sox manager, has been "beaned" twenty-three times and is still taking chances?

There are more than 10,000,000 shotguns in use in the United States and Canada?

Mike Gibbons, welterweight pugilist, is in the real estate business and is worth over $100,000.

Hans Wagner, a Pittsburgh institution, is the only ball player owning stock in a major league club?

Jack Coombs, Brooklyn pitcher, has beaten the New York Giants eleven times in succession?

Seventy million dollars is invested in trapshooting in America and the sport is following the flag?

Bernie Boland, Detroit pitcher, has set back the New York Yankees eight times in a row?

It costs more to stage the Grand American trapshooting tournament than it does the world's baseball series?

VISITORS GATHER TRAP HONORS IN TARGET PRELIMS

Tom Graham High Among Amateurs with 147 Breaks.

BY JOHN ALCOCK.

Visitors attracted by the Grand Chicago handicap carded today gathered most of the honors in the 150 target preliminary shoot at the Chicago Gun club yesterday. Tom Graham of Long Lake was high amateur with 147 breaks. W. V. Jackson of Ingleside and W. E. Wolford of Danville tied for second with 145. J. H. May, secretary of the Chicago club, was the first local shooter to show among the leaders, gathering 144 for a three cornered tie for third. Bart Lewis, leading professional, equaled Tom Graham's high score of 147.

Graham also took first of the trophies for long runs, running off 77 "kills" consecutively. Eight contestants qualified for some sort of prize by breaking at least fifty straight.

This morning a 100 bird race, with the percentage system of dividing the purse, will be run off to keep the early comers at the traps busy. The Grand Chicago, a distance handicap affair at 100 targets, will start at 1:30 p. m., closing the two day registered shoot. Scores yesterday:

150 targets, 16 yards, registered tournament—T. E. Graham, Long Lake, 147; W. V. Jackson, Ingleside, 145; W. E. Wolford, Danville, 145; J. H. May, Chicago Gun club, 144; F. A. IN developing the Firestone Super-size Cord Tire only the facts of road performance dictated manufacturing policy. Perhaps the relentless Firestone road tests are responsible for the marked differences between Firestone Cord Tires and others. Super-size, that is, greater girth and larger air column, is one of these differences. A special arrangement of the cords is another. The Firestone tread compound is another. All of these have been definitely tested and proved by experience, road experience.

Firestone

Your preference for Firestone Super-size Cord construction can come only as a result of your experience with them. But you'll find that just a short test is necessary to convince you of their greater resilience, speed and gasoline economy. Conviction regarding Most Miles per Dollar will follow later.

You have tried cigars that pleased the first time but disappointed the second.

Probably you blamed the manufacturer of that cigar. It wasn't entirely his fault. You see he has to cope with Nature's whims. And Nature seldom grows two tobacco crops with the same smoking qualities.

That's what so frequently stands in the way of making dependable cigars.

And that is why the manufacturers of OWL and WHITE OWL invest at all times at least $1,000,000 in slow-mellowing leaf. This leaf reserve has "standardized" OWL and WHITE OWL. They are two dependable cigars—always the same in quality.

The fine fragrance you discover in the first one will be duplicated in every one that follows.

THE sale of the Brevoort hotel at 118-22 West Madison street and the leasehold interest in the ground occupied by it was the feature of a surprisingly good market, although it gave little promise until the latter part of the week. While the number of really important deals was not large, they were well diversified as to character and location, and the aggregate movement of property compared favorably with the corresponding week a year ago, although somewhat smaller.

Considering, however, the formidable handicaps against which the market now is contending, the week's showing was surprisingly good.

In the first place a dull market always sets in at this time of the year, which is the beginning of that somnolent state known as "midsummer dullness," which has been intensified many fold this year by the many disturbing complications incident to the war, such as the Liberty loan, the proposed new tax schedule, and more recently the proposed provision in the food bill prohibiting the making of alcoholic and malt liquors, all of which have had a particularly disturbing effect on real estate.

Threatened Lid Alarms.

The threatened prohibition of the manufacture of malt liquors, particularly with all of its attendant consequences in the way of closing of saloons, summer gardens, and breweries, was viewed by many real estate men as fraught with the gravest possibilities to much outside real estate in the way of decreased rental returns, as well as the imposition of added taxes on real estate, which is now groaning under the burden of the taxes it has to carry.

None of these are bull market arguments, and it is not surprising the market should slow up somewhat. In spite of it all, however, there is a deep seated belief that out of the present dullness there is to come within the next six months an active market, as the result of the great business quickening which is certain to follow in the wake of the vast prospective expenditures on war account.

The Brevoort Deal.

The Brevoort and leasehold were sold by David Hogg, Alexander W. Hannah, and John G. Campbell, trustees, to Lawrence R. Adams of Chicago and E. N. Matthews of Cleveland, O. The furniture and fixtures also are included in the transaction and, while a nominal consideration is given, the transaction is said to represent an investment of about $1,000,000.

Mr. Adams, who is the secretary and general manager of the hotel, is a son-in-law of Mr. Hogg, and Mr. Matthews is connected with the Matthews Construction company, railroad builders of Cleveland and New York. Mr. Adams, who is president of the Chicago Hotel Men's association, will be the president of the new company and Mr. Matthews secretary and treasurer.

In connection with the sale of the property Greenebaum Sons' Bank and Trust company has underwritten a serial bond issue loan of $350,000, payable in one to ten years, at 6 per cent. The hotel will be conducted on the same high standard established by the Hannah and Hogg families, who have owned the property for over thirty years. The sale was negotiated by Albert L. Strauss.

Completed in 1906.

The Brevoort is a thirteen story and basement fireproof structure and was completed in the fall of 1906 to supplant the original Brevoort, which was burned. It occupies 80x178 feet of ground and is said to represent an actual investment of over $800,000. It is said it could not be duplicated today for less than $1,100,000. It contains 350 rooms, all outside, and is said to have been doing a capacity business for years. It is conducted on the European plan. The foundations of the building rest on caissons sufficiently strong to carry additional stories. It has two stores on the ground floor, with a restaurant known as the Rainbow in the basement. The land is under a long term lease, having eighty-nine years to run at annual rental of $30,000.

Stony Island Property Transferred for $20,000

CANADA REVEALS WAR'S INFLUENCE ON REAL ESTATE

Montreal Firm Tells of Depression and Revival.

Chicago real estate brokers and owners may be interested in a letter recently received by a Chicago real estate firm from a prominent Canadian concern telling of the business troubles of the Dominion following the outbreak of the war and the revival which followed upon the industrial activity in connection with the manufacture of munitions, etc. While there has been considerable depression here it evidently is of a mild character compared with the conditions which obtained in Canada, according to the letter in question, which comes from the "House of Browne, Limited," of Montreal.

"When the first flash of war came across the ocean," says the letter, "it had the effect of an electrical shock on the real estate business in this city and for a time it was a question of what was the best thing to do. Things were practically at a standstill.

Recruiting Hits Rents.

"Canada offered to do her duty, and recruiting began. With the recruiting came an avalanche of houses, flats, and stores to rent, for many married men who had enlisted gave up their houses, their wives and families in many in many instances going to live with their fathers or fathers-in-law. Rents fell off 25 per cent, while many store rents went on the basis of 10 per cent of the gross sales.

"For about six months everything seemed to be at a standstill. Nobody seemed to be buying, retail stores hardly were doing enough business to keep them alive, absolute necessities being about the only things that were bought.

"You could not sell or give away real estate; factories were being closed everywhere and men and women were idle. But when Canada started to manufacture munitions the idle factories came into use, and with their opening labor obtained employment. Consequently, in unison with the wheels of industry, business began to revive.

Business Picks Up.

"The demand for houses rapidly increased; the vacant ones were rapidly filled by the influx of labor from all parts. The stores immediately picked up their business and prices became better. The big wages paid labor made the poor people comparatively rich and rents went up again, until today they are pretty near the same as before the war.

"The only property that is being bought, however, is that required for business or home purposes. The question naturally occurs, What is being done with all of the surplus money that is being made? It is being invested in war loans, and it is no idle statement to make that real estate soon will be paid for with war loan bonds instead of money."

Buys Residence Opposite South Shore Country Club

An important south shore residence deal was the sale by Charles W. Price, former president of the Overland Motor company, to James M. Jenks, president of the Nye & Jenks Grain company, of the property at 6726 South Shore drive, being one of the most attractive residences on the south side and overlooking the South Shore Country club. The house was completed by Mr. Price about a year ago and is on a lot with a frontage of 125 feet. The consideration is stated to have been $65,000, and in part payment Mr. Jenks conveyed the new two apartment building at 7246 Coles avenue, lot 83 1-3 feet front, at a valuation of $25,000. The sale was negotiated by James J. Parker & Co. and H. F. McDonagh.

Big Building Slump; Six Months' Figures

The report of the city building department for the first six months of the year shows how great has been the slump in building operations as compared with the corresponding period of 1916. In only one month was an increase shown—March—and that was an exceedingly slim one. The month of June made a particularly poor showing with 401 permits and a total estimated cost of $4,534,300, as compared with 1,038 permits and a total cost of $11,050,700 for June, 1916. For the six months the permits totaled 3,051, with a total cost of $40,596,800, as compared with 5,551 and a total cost of $63,078,90 for 1916.

Suits Unless Smokeless Furnaces Are in by Aug. 1

Unless smokeless furnaces are installed in Chicago office and apartment buildings by Aug. 1 suits will be instituted in abatement of the smoke nuisance, according to notices sent out to owners yesterday by William Reid, smoke inspector. Owners have been annoyed because of the scarcity of Pocahontas smokeless coal, but the city official declares smokeless furnaces will permit the use of Illinois and Indiana soft coal.

SALE AND LOAN PROMISE TWO NEW BUILDINGS

Plan $250,000 Match Factory and $500,000 Apartments.

A sale and a loan involving two important building projects were features of the week's market.

The Ohio Match company has purchased from Mary R. Smith et al. 124x100 feet, south front, on Ohio street, 527 feet west of Orleans, for a stated consideration of $86,800. It is announced that the company will improve with an eight story fireproof steel constructed building to cost in the neighborhood of $250,000, to be occupied by its business. Charles A. Kappes & Co. were the brokers.

Theodore Swanson, the builder, is to erect at the northeast corner of Wrightwood and Pine Grove avenues a seven story and basement reinforced concrete fireproof apartment hotel building to cost in the neighborhood of $500,000. The building will contain 120 apartments, all furnished; six three rooms with bath, six two rooms with bath and kitchenette, forty-eight two rooms with bath and combination breakfast room and kitchen, twelve one room with bath and kitchenette, and forty-eight one room with bath.

The main floor will contain a large lounging room, lobby, office, ladies' parlor, retiring rooms and a large dining room with kitchen equipment. There will also be a dressing room for lake bathers. The building was designed by Hall & Ostergren, and in connection with its construction S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a serial bond issue loan of $325,000, two to ten years, at 6 per cent.

Boy Killed by Blow from Tile in New Building

Edward Radziejiwski, 9 years old, 2349 North Springfield avenue, was killed yesterday afternoon when a section of tile, dislodged from a pile about which his brother, Anthony, 11, and two other boys were playing in a building being erected at 4107 Irving Park boulevard, struck him on the head.

The feature of an unusually good market in apartment property was the several large purchases by nonresidents. The general movement was large and included an unusually large number of important transactions. In one of the most important D. E. Leases and Loans

The week was uneventful in the way of leases, there being none reported covering store space in the downtown district, but a few of left space. An important event in a loan way was the one of $325,000 underwritten by S. W. Straus & Co. in connection with the erection of the Wrightwood apartment at the northeast corner of Wrightwood and Pine Grove avenues. The loan is a serial one, being payable in two to ten years at 6 per cent. A description of the building is given elsewhere on this page.

A series of fairly good sized leases in the wholesale district were closed by Miltenberg & Guettel, and included one by Kahn Bros. of Louisville, who have now established their business in Chicago, on the third floor of the building at 500-532 South Throop street, comprising 40,000 square feet of space, from Frank A. Hecht, for a term rent of $50,000; also the lease by the Regensteiner Colortype company to Herman Newberger of the fifth floor of their building at the southwest corner of Racine avenue and Jackson boulevard for a term rent of $40,000; also the lease by Edward S. George P. Chiagouris & Co. have leased for Curran & Lowenstein to Harris Pappas the store at 2745 North Clark street for a term rent of $29,000. NEW HOME FOR ENGINEERING CO. IN RACINE AVE.

Fair Deals Made in Manufacturing Property.

There was something doing in manufacturing property, although not of a particularly important character.

The Illinois Engineering company has taken title to the property at the northeast corner of Racine avenue and Twenty-first street, which is to be its new home. The lot is 118½x100 feet, and it has been improved with a one story reinforced concrete steel building.

The company acquired the property from Norman K. Andrews, who took title for the company nearly a year ago. A nominal consideration is given, subject to an incumbrance of $30,000, but the plant is said to represent an investment of about $65,000. The company makes vapor and vacuum heating material and steam specialties for power plants.

Record was made of the purchase by the Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing company of the property in Elston avenue, 428 feet south of Blackhawk street, west front, 100x230x222 feet on the south, from William C. Valentine for a stated consideration of $15,000. The company is said to plan the building of a small addition to its plant.

Record was made of the purchase by the Felt & Tarrant Manufacturing company of the property in North Paulina street, ninety-three feet south of Bloomingdale avenue, 98x122 feet, east front, with old improvments, from Roscoe L. Roberts for a stated consideration of $8,860. The property is across the street from the company's plant, but no plans are had looking to its immediate improvement.

There are old brick improvements on the property, which were given no value in the transaction, making the sale at the rate of $1,500 a front foot and $8 a square foot.

New Building to Go Up.

The building, which has been occupied by Mr. Beidler for twenty years for office purposes, will be torn down May 1, 1918, to make room for the new building of the purchasing company, which, it is interesting to note, is the last of the machinery houses to leave Canal street, where it has been located between Washington and Randolph streets for many years. Jackson Bros. represented both parties, and it is the third deal in this immediate vicinity closed during the last year by these brokers.

The property at 2146-50 North Halsted street, improved with a building containing three stores and fifteen flats, has been sold by Robert McNair to Tiania Wolf, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment a farm of 448 acres in Adams county, Wis. Herman H. Simon was the broker.

Deal in Kedzie Avenue.

The West Side Wholesale Grocery company has purchased from the National Mosaic Tile company the property at the southeast corner of Kedzie avenue and Twenty-first street, 100x[illegible] feet, with warehouse improvemnets, for an expressed consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

Record was made of the sale by Victor Thorsch to the Charles Haller company and Theodore Scheurmann of the property in Broadway, 250 feet south of Devon avenue, 50x125 feet, east front, consideration nominal.

The property at the southwest corner of North Clark street and Dole avenue, lot 50x120 feet, with store and flat improvements, has been conveyed by Laura Uhlemann et al. to Daniel Schmitt, consideration nominal, subject to incumbrance of $22,000. In this connection Mr. Schmitt conveyed to the grantor the flat property on Beacon street, 287 feet south of Sunnyside avenue, lot 58x150, west front, consideration nominal, subject to $17,000 incumbrance.

The corn market quickly rallied from a weak start yesterday and closed well up near top figures of the day. Resting spots showed net advances of ⅝@1⅝c, December being relatively strongest. Fear of damage to the crop because of dry and exceedingly hot weather in Kansas, together with the strength in cash corn, stimulated a lot of commission house buying as well as heavy short covering. Early buying of July corn by the Armour Grain company, believed to be in the way of covering shorts, was a feature. The deferred deliveries were weak at the outset, due to free selling encouraged by the generally favorable weather conditions, particularly in the great central states.

Cash corn was in urgent demand and ruled ½@2c higher, with a new high price of $1.76 reached. Shippers who were short June contracts were active buyers, and the big local industry again was in the market, after being out for several days. Local shipping sales were 35,000 bu, including 25,000 bu for export. Primary receipts totaled 869,000 bu, against 804,000 bu a year ago.

Oats Active and Strong.

Oats were active and strong, and closed with advances of ⅛@⅝c. Commission houses were free buyers and there was a great deal of covering by local shorts. The relatively stronger market for cash oats, with exporters in the market on a better basis, and unfavorable crop reports, served to stimulate buying. It is said that the crop is in no condition to stand any extremely hot weather, and the high temperatures prevailing in the southwest caused apprehension. The oats there are now in a delicate stage of growth, and premature ripening is feared.

Cash oats were ¼@¾c higher, with local shipping sales 420,000 bu, including 375,000 bu for export. The seaboard reported 500,000 bu taken for export, with some of the business at 4c better figure than recently. Clearances of oats for the day were 828,000 bu. Primary receipts for the day were 640,000 bu, against 704,000 bu a year ago. The country offered a little new oats to arrive.

Wheat Trade Is Lifeless.

Trading in wheat was almost at a standstill and the price range was the narrowest seen in many months. Resting spots were ½@1c higher than previous close. Cash wheat trade was even duller than futures, with neither buyers nor sellers anxious to do business until it is known whether the government intends to fix prices or not. There were beneficial rains in the Canadian northwest, extending down into North Dakota, and crop and weather reports generally were favorable. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 488,000 bu, against 241,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts totaled 364,000 bu, compared with 852,000 bu a year ago. Minneapolis stocks decreased 100,000 bu for one day.

Provisions were lower under continued liquidation by longs. Lard was under most pressure. Bearish influences were the slow demand for cash product and the weaker hog market. Western markets received 502,800 hogs this week, against 483,000 last week and 481,000 a year ago. Local meat shipments for the week were 12,320,000 lbs, against 18,080,000 lbs a year ago; lard shipments 2,623,000 lbs, against 10,314,000 lbs last year.

Rye Quiet and Steady.

Rye was unchanged, with a sale of cash No. 2 at $2.40. Receipts, 2 cars.

Barley ruled firm. Malting was quoted $1.20@1.45 and sold $1.15@1.40; feed and mixing quotable $1.10@1.20, with a sale at latter figure; screenings were quoted 80c@$1.00 and sold 73c@$1.00. Receipts were 11 cars.

Timothy seed was steady with September selling $6.00; cash lots dull and quoted $4.00@8.00. Clover seed was steady; cash quotable $12.00@16.00, and spot prime, $18.00.

Flax was 4½c lower; cash quotable $2.81½@2.87½. Duluth closed 4@4½c, Minneapolis 4½c, and Winnipeg 3½@7c lower, respectively.

GOSSIP OF THE BOARD OF TRADE

According to New York advices neutral governments will not be able to ship out corn without letters of assurance, and it is understood that these will now have to be obtained from the United States instead of Great Britain. A member of the Dutch buying commission is quoted as saying the permits will have to come from this government. This authority also stated the Dutch government had been loading and shipping corn, but the reason of their not having done business recently was because of their indisposition to make forward commitments. Other interests intimate strongly that more business would have been done, especially with neutral countries, if letters of assurance had been obtained. It is the general impression that neutral countries hereafter will be unable to obtain more corn than they can show they actually need for home consumption, this action being taken to prevent any supplies being shipped into Germany.

Argentine weather conditions are favorable for the crops. Rain has caused some deterioration in quality of corn. French reports indicate liberal arrivals at ports, but import needs are heavy. Prices are high and country stocks of grain practically are exhausted. According to Broomhall, American clearances are much larger than expected, with Canada, India, and Australia shipping liberal amounts of grain weekly. Prospects are for continued liberal clearances to allied countries.

December corn showed a relatively stronger tone than the September yesterday, the buying being based principally on reports of continued dry weather in the southwest. Temperatures as high as 108 were reported in western Kansas, and there were some advices of hot winds. Temperatures over the corn belt generally were favorable, with fair weather predicted generally for the coming week. Over the greater part of the belt there has been ample moisture.

Cash prices for corn at Chicago were ½@2c higher. There were export bids in the market, but brokers had difficulty in having any corn offered. Omaha reported prices fully up to Chicago basis, with a brisk demand. Country sales are moderate. Local cash sales were 5,000 bu wheat, 34,000 bu corn, and 420,000 bu oats, including 375,000 bu to the seaboard.

New York reported a brisk export demand for oats, and sales Friday were placed at 500,000 bu. The demand locally was fair and prices were ¼@⅝c higher. The July oats were firm, with further buying by commission houses supposed to be acting for seaboard or Canadian interests. Country offers of both new and old oats were moderate.

Announcements from Washington that President Wilson was opposed to the prohibition amendment to the food bill in so far as it affected beer and wines were a factor in oats and barley, tending to steady prices.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 26 cars; corn, 122 cars; oats, 157 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 11 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 40,000 head, and for all next week, 130,000 head.

Baltimore reported the receipt of the first new wheat of the season yesterday, several bag lots coming in. The quality and condition were good.

The rate of interest for the month of July has been fixed at 6 per cent per annum by the finance committee of the board of trade.

There will be no session of the board of trade July 3. Practically all the other grain exchanges of the country also will be closed July 3.

Peoria cash corn was 1c higher. No. 2 grades sold there at $1.75 and No. 3 grades at $1.74½. Oats were ½c higher.

St. Louis had two cars of new No. 2 red wheat in from the southwest, weighing 60½ lbs.

Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 100,000 bu for one day and oats stocks decreased 160,000 bu for one day.

With the exception of a disappointing demand for hams a fairly normal cash trade in products is reported.

A board of trade membership sold at $4,500 net to the buyer.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 30.—COTTON—Prices fluctuated irregularly in the cotton market here this morning, with trading quiet. The general list closed irregular, net 1 point higher to 8 points lower. An opening advance of 1 to 12 points was followed by reactions, which carried the active months about 7 to 15 points under last night's closing figures, where the market was again steadied by covering. The market then turned easier under renewed realizing, with later fluctuations rather nervous and irregular. Port receipts today were 15,141 bales and 7,123,236 bales for the season; exports today 8,125 bales, for the season 5,203,709 bales; stocks, 752,016 bales. Futures:

Hogs at Chicago yesterday met with a slow demand at steady to 10c lower prices. Receipts were only 7,000 head, but the quality was generally poor and buyers took hold slowly. Top sales were made at $15.65 and the bulk at $14.40@15.40, the wide range being due to the irregular quality of the supply. Shippers took only 1,000 and a number of the local packers staid out of the trade. About 3,500 hogs remained unsold at the finish.

Final prices made hogs 40@50c lower than a week ago, while pigs showed a decline of 50c. Average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $15.15, the lowest weekly average made since early in March, and compared with $15.65 last week. Receipts for the week decreased more than 3,000 head, while shipments showed a falling off of about 1,000.

CATTLE.

Beef steers finished the week at a decline of 10@40c from a week ago, with the cheaper grades showing the big end of the loss. Top sales early in the week were made at $13.90, a record price, but this figure was not quotable at the finish. Cows and heifers closed 25@35c lower than a week ago, while calves came in for a reduction of $1.00. Total cattle receipts were 53,800 head, showing an increase of 3,500 for the week and standing about 16,000 head in excess of arrivals a year ago.

Cattle at seven western markets this week, 196,000, against 200,000 the preceding week, 130,000 a year ago, and 124,000 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 4,350,000, against 3,620,000 the same time in 1916.

SHEEP.

With an increase of about 22,000 head in receipts, the sheep and lamb market at Chicago this week had one of the most severe breaks of the year. Sheep closed $1.00@1.25 lower than a week ago, while lambs came in for a reduction of $1.25@2.00. The market closed at the bottom, with packers well supplied and outside competition unimportant. Lambs topped the week at $16.00 and sheep at $12.00, but they were quoted much lower at the finish.

New York, June 30.—The extensive coal fields of the Victor American Fuel company, located in the Gallup districts of New Mexico, have been sold to Hayden, Stone & Co. for a consideration of approximately $3,000,000, according to an announcement made here today by the purchasing company.

GOLD

oil becomes gold at the very mouth of the well; every barrel of West States Petroleum Co. production is sold to the Standard Oil Co. before it sees the light of day.

oil has also become gold indeed to the multitude of shrewd investors who have been buying shares in established producing oil companies like West States Petroleum before the price advanced to several times the early figure.

West States Petroleum has become one of the substantial and prosperous independent oil companies of the country on account of its wonderful properties in Wyoming, California and Texas, experienced management and large production; properties are being developed right where company has other wells, so additional wells will be brought in right along.

Dividends 12% a Year paid 1% monthly; steadily increased earnings far in excess of dividend requirements, indicate much larger dividends for the stockholders in the near future.

West States Petroleum is a listed stock and has an active market on the New York Curb around $1—should go to $2 or $3 before long, and eventually much higher. We recommend immediate purchase before the price advances. Liberty Bonds accepted in payment. Write, phone or call for late information.

PROVE MARKET SOUND.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Considering widespread interest in the freight rate situation, it was the general opinion that today's short session demonstrated the stock market's sound condition.

Refusal yesterday of the 15 per cent increase asked by the railroads resulted in extreme losses of 1 to 5 points in most of the more important railway shares, St. Paul being the chief sufferer. Coalers, trans-continentals, trunk lines and low-priced issues which had most to gain by favorable action reacted 1 to 2½ points.

Industrials, equipments, and many unclassified stocks were carried down 1 to 3 points in the early movement, but recovered with surprising ease, carrying the entire list with them. Features of special strength were Crucible, Lackawanna, Bethlehem and Midvale Steels, and Colorado Fuel, Great Northern Ore and Republic Iron at actual advances of more than 3 points.

Close Shows Strength.

United States Steel made a net gain of half a point, after having lost more than a point, and Baldwin and American Locomotives, New York Air Brake, American Can, and the petroleums closed at advances of 1 to almost 3 points. Industrial Alcohol, Ohio Gas, General Motors, and less active specialties rallied from early losses to material gains, the market closing with a burst of strength.

Rubles were quoted at the new minimum of 22 cents, but that figure was nominal rather than actual.

The bond market was irregular on small offerings.

Liberty bonds ranged from par to a slight premium on actual sales during the week, but other United States issues were lower by fractions to almost 3 points on call.

FEW CHANGES ON THE LOCAL CURB; MOTORS FIRM

Trading in local unlisted securities was rather restricted in volume, with little change in prices. Stocks of the implement concerns were fairly active. Deere preferred advanced a point to sales at 100. Moline Plow preferred was wanted at 95, with stock offered at 96½. Little interest was shown in Emerson Brantingham preferred. Stock changed hands at 45, a decline of about two points. Avery preferred was ex-dividend 1¾ per cent and was quoted 97¼ to 98½.

The unlisted motor securities continue firm in face of the severe declines which took place in some of the listed motors. Continental Motors was traded in at 6⅞ to 7⅛. Paige-Detroit was in demand at 25, with stock offered at 29. Reo Motor Car sold at 27½@28.

Slight improvements were noted in the sugar list. Michigan Sugar gained some four points, selling at 98, closing at 91½ bid, 93 asked. Holland-St. Louis was wanted at 12½, with stock offered at 15½. Utah Idaho was in demand around 10½@11.

Butler Brothers was somewhat easier, declining to sales as low as 288. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was neglected, with no reported sales. Market was quoted 287 to 290. Inland Steel was in fair demand, selling as high as 244, closing a trifle lower at 239 bid, offered at 241.

The Public Utility group was without special feature, lower prices prevailing in a number of instances. Cities Service, new stock, if, as, and when issued, declined from 32 to 28½, closing slightly higher at 28¾@29¼. The old stock declined from 282 to 280. Preferred was traded in at 85¾@86¼. Northern States Power common 96½@97; Standard Gas and Electric common 11, preferred 38; United common 58¼@59; preferred 68½; American Light and Traction common 317; Pacific Gas and Electric common 57⅝; Tennessee Railway, Light and Power common 6, preferred 38½; Western Power common 15. Middle West Utilities preferred 70½, common 42.

MORE GOLD FROM CANADA

Gold to the amount of $5,300,000 arrived yesterday in New York from Canada for account of J. P. Morgan & Co., and was deposited in the Federal Reserve bank there.

The total gold imports from Canada on the present movement amount to $102,531,000. The total from all sources by years since 1915 is as follows: 1915, $451,955,000; 1916, $685,745,000; 1917 to date, $497,531,000; grand total, $1,635,231,000.

ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, June 30.—[Special.]—Various groups of stocks moved in different directions during the last week, but the most important movements were to lower levels, and the operations generally consisted of liquidation, relieved at intervals by concentrated support. Stories, and in some cases authorized statements, were incentives for aggressive buying, especially in the stocks of corporations whose business is just now demanding government consideration. This was shown most clearly in Wright-Martin Aircraft, which rose from 8 to 9⅝ on fairly definite knowledge that the facilities of the company will be required to their full capacity. This movement was one in which little vigor was shown and was offset by a decline in Curtiss Aeroplane stock from 43 to 38⅜ because that company, in order to pay the cost of government construction on a large scale, has arranged for an issue of new stock at 35.

Aetna Explosives, which was supposed to have received new contracts, yielded from 5 to 4½, with new efforts at reorganization failing to induce outside buying. Submarine is another stock of which great promises in the shape of government contracts has failed to awaken speculative interest, and it ranged through the week from 33½ to 31⅞, selling yesterday ex the 75 cent quarterly dividend. There was lively trading in the Ohio Cities, new stock, and rights, which are to be issued under a readjustment of capitalization.

A feature of the independent oil stocks was the decline in Sinclair Gulf from 27 to 25. Acme Copper was prominent in the mining group, advancing from 1¼ to 1⅝. Stewart was actively traded in at 5-16 to ⅜.

The most important trading in the bond market was the strength in the New York City new 4½s, which were dealt in at 102½@103¼, against a sale in the preceding week at 101½.

Baltimore one year 5 per cent notes sold at 98⅝@99 and the two year notes dropped from 98½ to 98⅛.

Russian 6½s sold at 85 to 82½.

Two additional curb stocks—American International corporation and Kelsey Wheel—may shortly be transferred to the stock exchange. Application has already been made to have them listed on the larger exchange.

Rumors are being circulated on the curb that dividend payments may be begun again very shortly on Tonopah Extension.

OIL NEWS

NEW YORK, June 30.—Sinclair Oil and Refining company directors at a meeting on July 2 will consider various plans to retire floating indebtedness and provide for development work. While the suggestion has been made that the company issue something like $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 short term notes bearing 7 per cent interest and convertible into stock around $50 a share, interests associated with the management are strongly inclined to favor the plan of raising $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 through issuance of 200,000 to 250,000 shares of new stock without par value at around $40 a share.

In the opinion of experts the Lander district of Wyoming is increasing in importance as an oil producing center. Tests made recently show that at a depth of 1,200 and 2,600 feet petroleum has been encountered that compares favorably with eastern crudes. Owing to lack of necessary facilities little or no oil has actually been shipped from the district. However, companies owning leases in the proven sections are rapidly preparing for permanent operations.

An advance of 10 cents a barrel in prices for crude oil was put into effect by the Standard Oil Company of California June 28.

A survey of the last holdings of the Victoria Oil company has just been completed by an expert geologist.

Bigger Business Builders
Many millions of capital is constantly tied up in active accounts receivable. This "dead" capital produces no further profit until the accounts are paid.
If all your customers were to discount in ten days, could you not buy and sell probably more than twice as much merchandise in one year and make two profits where you now make one?
Why retard your growth for lack of working capital when you probably have ample capital now lying idle in your accounts receivable. Sell us your accounts for cash, just as you sell your merchandise on credit. The cash from the sale of either merchandise, accounts or notes is of the same value to you.
You wouldn't hesitate to sell your customers' notes, and as their notes would represent only their open accounts closed, why not just sell their open accounts, as notes are not always easily obtained?
Our charge is less than the discount usually offered customers for cash. You collect the accounts for us as usual, without disturbing customers—in fact, your business or financial arrangements need not be disturbed in any way.
In five years our annual volume has grown to over $40,000,000.00, three-fourths from concerns rated $35,000.00 to $1,000,000.00.

PRAY FOR KAISER, DESTROY POWER, C. E. DECALOGUE

Rock Island Convention Launches Anti-Hate Movement.

Rock Island, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—An anti-hate movement was launched today at the convention of the Illinois Christian Endeavor union by the unanimous adoption of resolutions containg a war decalogue. One thing advised in the decalogue was to pray for the kaiser, then fight to destroy his power for evil as a surgeon fights disease germs.

More than 1,200 registered delegates representing the 102 counties of Illinois were in attendance at the convention. Of these about 150 are from Chicago churches.

Text of Decalogue.

The decalogue follows:

"First—Love and serve thy God with all thy heart in war time as in times of peace.

"Second—Hate not the kaiser, though he be dominated by a spirit of avarice and pride; pray for him, then fight to destroy his power for evil as a surgeon fights disease germs.

"Third—Be not prejudiced against German names, customs, or achievements, but discriminate between the blessings resulting from the scientific proclivities of the Germans and the evils resulting from their militaristic spirit and war programs.

"Fourth—Blame not, directly or indirectly, persons of German birth or extraction within the boundaries of the United States for the sins of the kaiser and his fellow ruthless war lords.

Fight for U. S. Ideals.

"Fifth—Love thine own country, pray for it, and fight for its ideals at home and abroad, in peaceful pursuits or in battles to make 'the world safe for democracy.'

"Sixth—Criticise not the president nor his cabinet unless you have of your own knowledge facts which will hold in courts of record, which reflect upon their wisdom in conducting the war; pray for our leaders and support them in their efforts to maintain the rights of our country.

"Seventh—Respond to the call of your country to serve its interests wherever assigned, remembering the injunction, 'That the powers that be are ordained of God' and that to God the powers are accountable for the deeds prompted by wrong motives.

"Eighth—Speak not against the government nor its allies, but remember that no person or set of persons grouped in societies or governments are perfect.

"Ninth—Place no confidence in rumors of great disasters on land or sea, but remember that Tobiah and Sanballat who tried to undermine the confidence of Nehemiah and his work have their prototypes today."

HAWKEYES AND HOOSIERS PICNIC IN JACKSON PARK

The Hawkeyes and the Hoosiers picnicked yesterday at Jackson park—no, not together, each at a different place, but in the same park. The Hawkeyes turned out 3,000 strong and ate, played games, and listened to several speeches by their statesmen on their state. The speakers at that picnic were James B. Weaver of Des Moines, son of Gov. James B. Weaver, who at one time ran for president; Attorney Quin O'Brien, and Judge Gemmill.

The 250 jackies from the naval training station who hail from Iowa were present. Fifty of them were the guests of the South Shore Country club and the remainder were the guests of private families. They will return to the station this evening. J. G. Shaffer, president of the club, was in charge of the affair.

The other affair was the twenty-second annual picnic of the La Porte, Ind., colony, and the sixteenth annual meeting of the Hoosier club. The 2,500 present, just west of the German building, ate successfully and played games.

Lumber Co. shares for sale. $300,000,000 for the building of more than a thousand wooden ships in one year is understood to be the plan of the Federal Shipping Board. Canada already has British orders for over $200,000,000 worth of ships and must look chiefly to American producers for the timber. Can you afford to hesitate when within two years, perhaps a billion dollars will be invested in this country in wooden ocean carriers? Such an opportunity will surely never occur again. Follow the trend and get into lumber, and when you get in, GET IN BIG. This corporation's financial position invites comparison with that of any industrial organization in the world. The personnel of its list of stockholders conveys more satisfactorily than any common means the estimation in which this security is held by America's leading financiers.

Higher Wages Reduce Surplus.

The advance in wages to employés of the Chicago Surface lines brings out clearly the difficulties under which that and other utility companies are struggling. An increase was rendered necessary by the high cost of living, but that fact does not help the situation.

The amount involved is figured in round numbers at $1,500,000. A little more than half of it will come out of the city's share of the receipts. Of the remainder, 60 per cent must be borne by the stockholders of the City Railways and 40 by those of the Chicago City and Connecting lines. Each of these companies earned and paid some dividends last year. The charge now added is equal to nearly one-third of the dividend paid by the latter company and to four-fifths of that paid by the former.

Evidently unless there is a large increase in traffic shareholders will receive less this year than last, and the margin of safety for the bonds will be reduced. This situation has brought a decline of several points in the bonds. Because of the decline, when new bonds are issued for extensions or other capital outlays a higher rate of interest will be paid on the money thus raised, and this fact will tend to reduce the surplus earnings still further. Under such conditions the companies must expend as little money on extensions and betterments as possible.

The bonds are not in danger; the city's 55 per cent is part of their margin of safety, but capital is timid, and a tendency not to give investors fair treatment reacts instantly. If there is not enough money to pay fair wages and fair dividends, some way ought to be found to increase the surplus and give investors as well as workers a reasonable return.

American Stores Company.

P. I. H.—The American Stores company was incorporated last March, with a capital of $3,000,000 first preferred stock, $1,500,000 second preferred, and 150,000 common shares of no par value. It took control of the Acme Tea company and four other chain store concerns operating principally in Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania, and having a total of 1,223 retail groceries. In the first few months of this year these stores did a gross business of $20,509,209, an increase of about 35 per cent compared with 1916. An initial dividend of 1¾ per cent has been declared, payable on both classes of preferred stock on July 6. The company has good backing. The stocks, of course, are unseasoned.

New York, Ontario and Western.

W. L. C.—The New York, Ontario and Western has been a poor earner for years. The best it has done in the last decade was 2.61 per cent on its stock in the year ended June 30, 1906. The average of the decade has been about 1¾ per cent a year. In 1916 the income, after taxes, was $2,510,383. Bond interest was $1,206,741, and other charges brought the total to $1,670,801, leaving $839,582. There are forty shares of preferred stock outstanding, on which dividends were paid, leaving $821,750, or 1.4 per cent on common. One per cent was paid.

Great Northern Ore.

F. A. O.—The Great Northern Ore trust reported net receipts of $2,088,884 in 1916. This figures out at $1.39 a share. Dividends of $1.25 a share were paid, and the balance added to surplus. This year $1.50 a ton more is received for ore that the company itself mines, and the situation is being further improved by the leasing of a number of properties.

Brief Answers.

W. E. W.—The Metal Products association of Texas offers a hazardous speculation, not an investment. It promises fabulous profits from a new smelting process. Not until the process has proved its earning capacity will there be any real basis for confidence.

F. E. S., Dubuque, Ia.—The Triangle Film company is operating, but inflated salaries to actors and officials of the company eat up nearly all the profits.

TWO PATROLMEN PROMOTED FOR THIEF CATCHING

Two policemen were rewarded for bravery when Chief Schuettler issued an order yesterday promoting Policeman Patrick Mullane of the Maxwell street station and George Monks of the West Thirteenth street station to be temporary senior detective sergeants.

Mullane captured three automobile thieves, who stole the car of James J. Murray from in front of his home, 820 South Paulina street, March 20. The men were caught after a revolver battle, in which one of them was killed and the others wounded.

Monks captured four men who robbed the store of Joseph Reimer, 425 South Kedzie avenue, of jewelry valued at $2,000 June 19. Monks pursued the men in an automobile and captured them after wounding them in a revolver battle.

SETBACK FOR MRS. MATHIS IN FIGHT OVER HOME

Waukegan, Ill., June 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Mathis of Lake Zurich, who filed a $50,000 breach of promise suit against Harry Weber, Chicago attorney, recently, is not going to have smooth sailing all the way.

Judge Persons, in the County court, today granted a new trial in the forcible entry and detainer suit which Postmaster George W. Spunner of Barrington brought against Mrs. Mathis.

At the hearing here about a week ago Mrs. Mathis testified Weber bought her the home in 1906 and caused extracts of letters written to her at that time by Weber to be read to the jury to support her testimony. She admitted she never had received a deed to the property, but said it was supposed to be a prenuptial present from Weber.

THE LOMAX COMPANY

Bottling Plants: Libertyville, Ill., and Paulina and Kinzie Sts., Chicago.

Less Than $100,000 Preferred Stock Remains to Be Sold

A short time ago we announced our new issue of $250,000 in the 7 Per Cent Cumulative Stock of The Lomax Company. Almost two-thirds of this amount has already been subscribed. We are offering the balance—to close the sale immediately.

The success of The Lomax Company is known to practically all Chicagoans—hence the ready sale of these shares.

Capitalization

Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000).

25,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Stock—Dividends Payable Quarterly. Par Value $10 Per Share.

75,000 Shares Common Stock ($10 Par Value). All Stock Fully Paid and Non-Assessable.

The easy payment plan makes the purchase of this stock convenient for any one. Ask us about it.

Statement of Facts

Millions of dollars in profits have been taken out of this business by the Lomax family. The present enlargement will enable the outsider to share in the prosperity of this old Chicago institution and likewise present a spirit of cooperation. A large part of the money so received from this stock issue is to be used for the erection of a new bottling plant at our present site in Libertyville.

Lake Michigan is very fine water; but since it produces a sediment not at all pleasing to the eye, it is impossible to prepare a stock of beverages much more than a month in advance of their consumption. With our plant at Libertyville, where we utilize the water from the Indian Hill Springs, beginning the next Spring will find us with hundreds of thousands of cases bottled and stored away ready for shipment. This huge plant will be the largest and finest of any now existing in the country, yet in its erection not one dollar will be wasted. Incidentally the spring water will very much better the Lomax products and the cost of operation will be much lower than our present cost in Chicago.

With the present distribution of Lomax's original Pepsin Ginger Ale and other beverages through over 5,000 merchants in Chicago alone a further increase in business is not at all necessary to show a handsome dividend on the investment. Last year we were so swamped with orders that it was a daily sight at our Chicago factory to see large numbers of our customers' wagons waiting to receive Lomax beverages. In fact, they were glad to wait hours in line to get Ginger Ale, but it had to be Lomax's.

With the increased facilities of manufacturing this will be past history and our deliveries can all be taken care of promptly. It is not hard, therefore, to conceive of what proportions a national distribution of Lomax products will mean. The good will built around the Lomax name is so enormous that it will not be a question of selling Lomax products, but only one of manufacture and delivery.

Great Prosperity in Soft Drink Industry

The rapid spread of the "dry" movement through state after state has been accompanied by unusual prosperity in the soft drink industry.

U. S. Government reports estimate that practically $450,000,000 worth of soft drinks were consumed last year.

Take in consideration the fact that in localities where saloons have already been transformed into soft drink parlors, the claim is made that they have actually made more money since the change than they did previously in the sale of spirituous drinks.

The old established companies are the ones who benefit to the greatest degree from increases in general soft drink consumption. The Lomax Company is bound to undergo unusual development as the result of the present national movement to abolish sale of alcoholic beverages.

These are conditions which have caused extremely conservative investors to secure quickly the largest part of our stock offering.

Direct Treasury Stock Offer

Note that this Lomax stock offers you 7 per cent interest, with a bonus of 50 per cent Common Stock.

The Common Stock bonus part of the offer will be withdrawn very shortly. Consider the earning power plus the certainty of quick advance in the value of these shares, and your soundest judgment will tell you that this is a rare chance to make money as an investor—to place your money where it will participate in a highly prosperous industry.

Our subscriptions will be filled in the order they are received. The Lomax Company reserves the right to advance the price, to limit subscriptions and to refuse further subscriptions at any time the books show the issue to be oversubscribed.

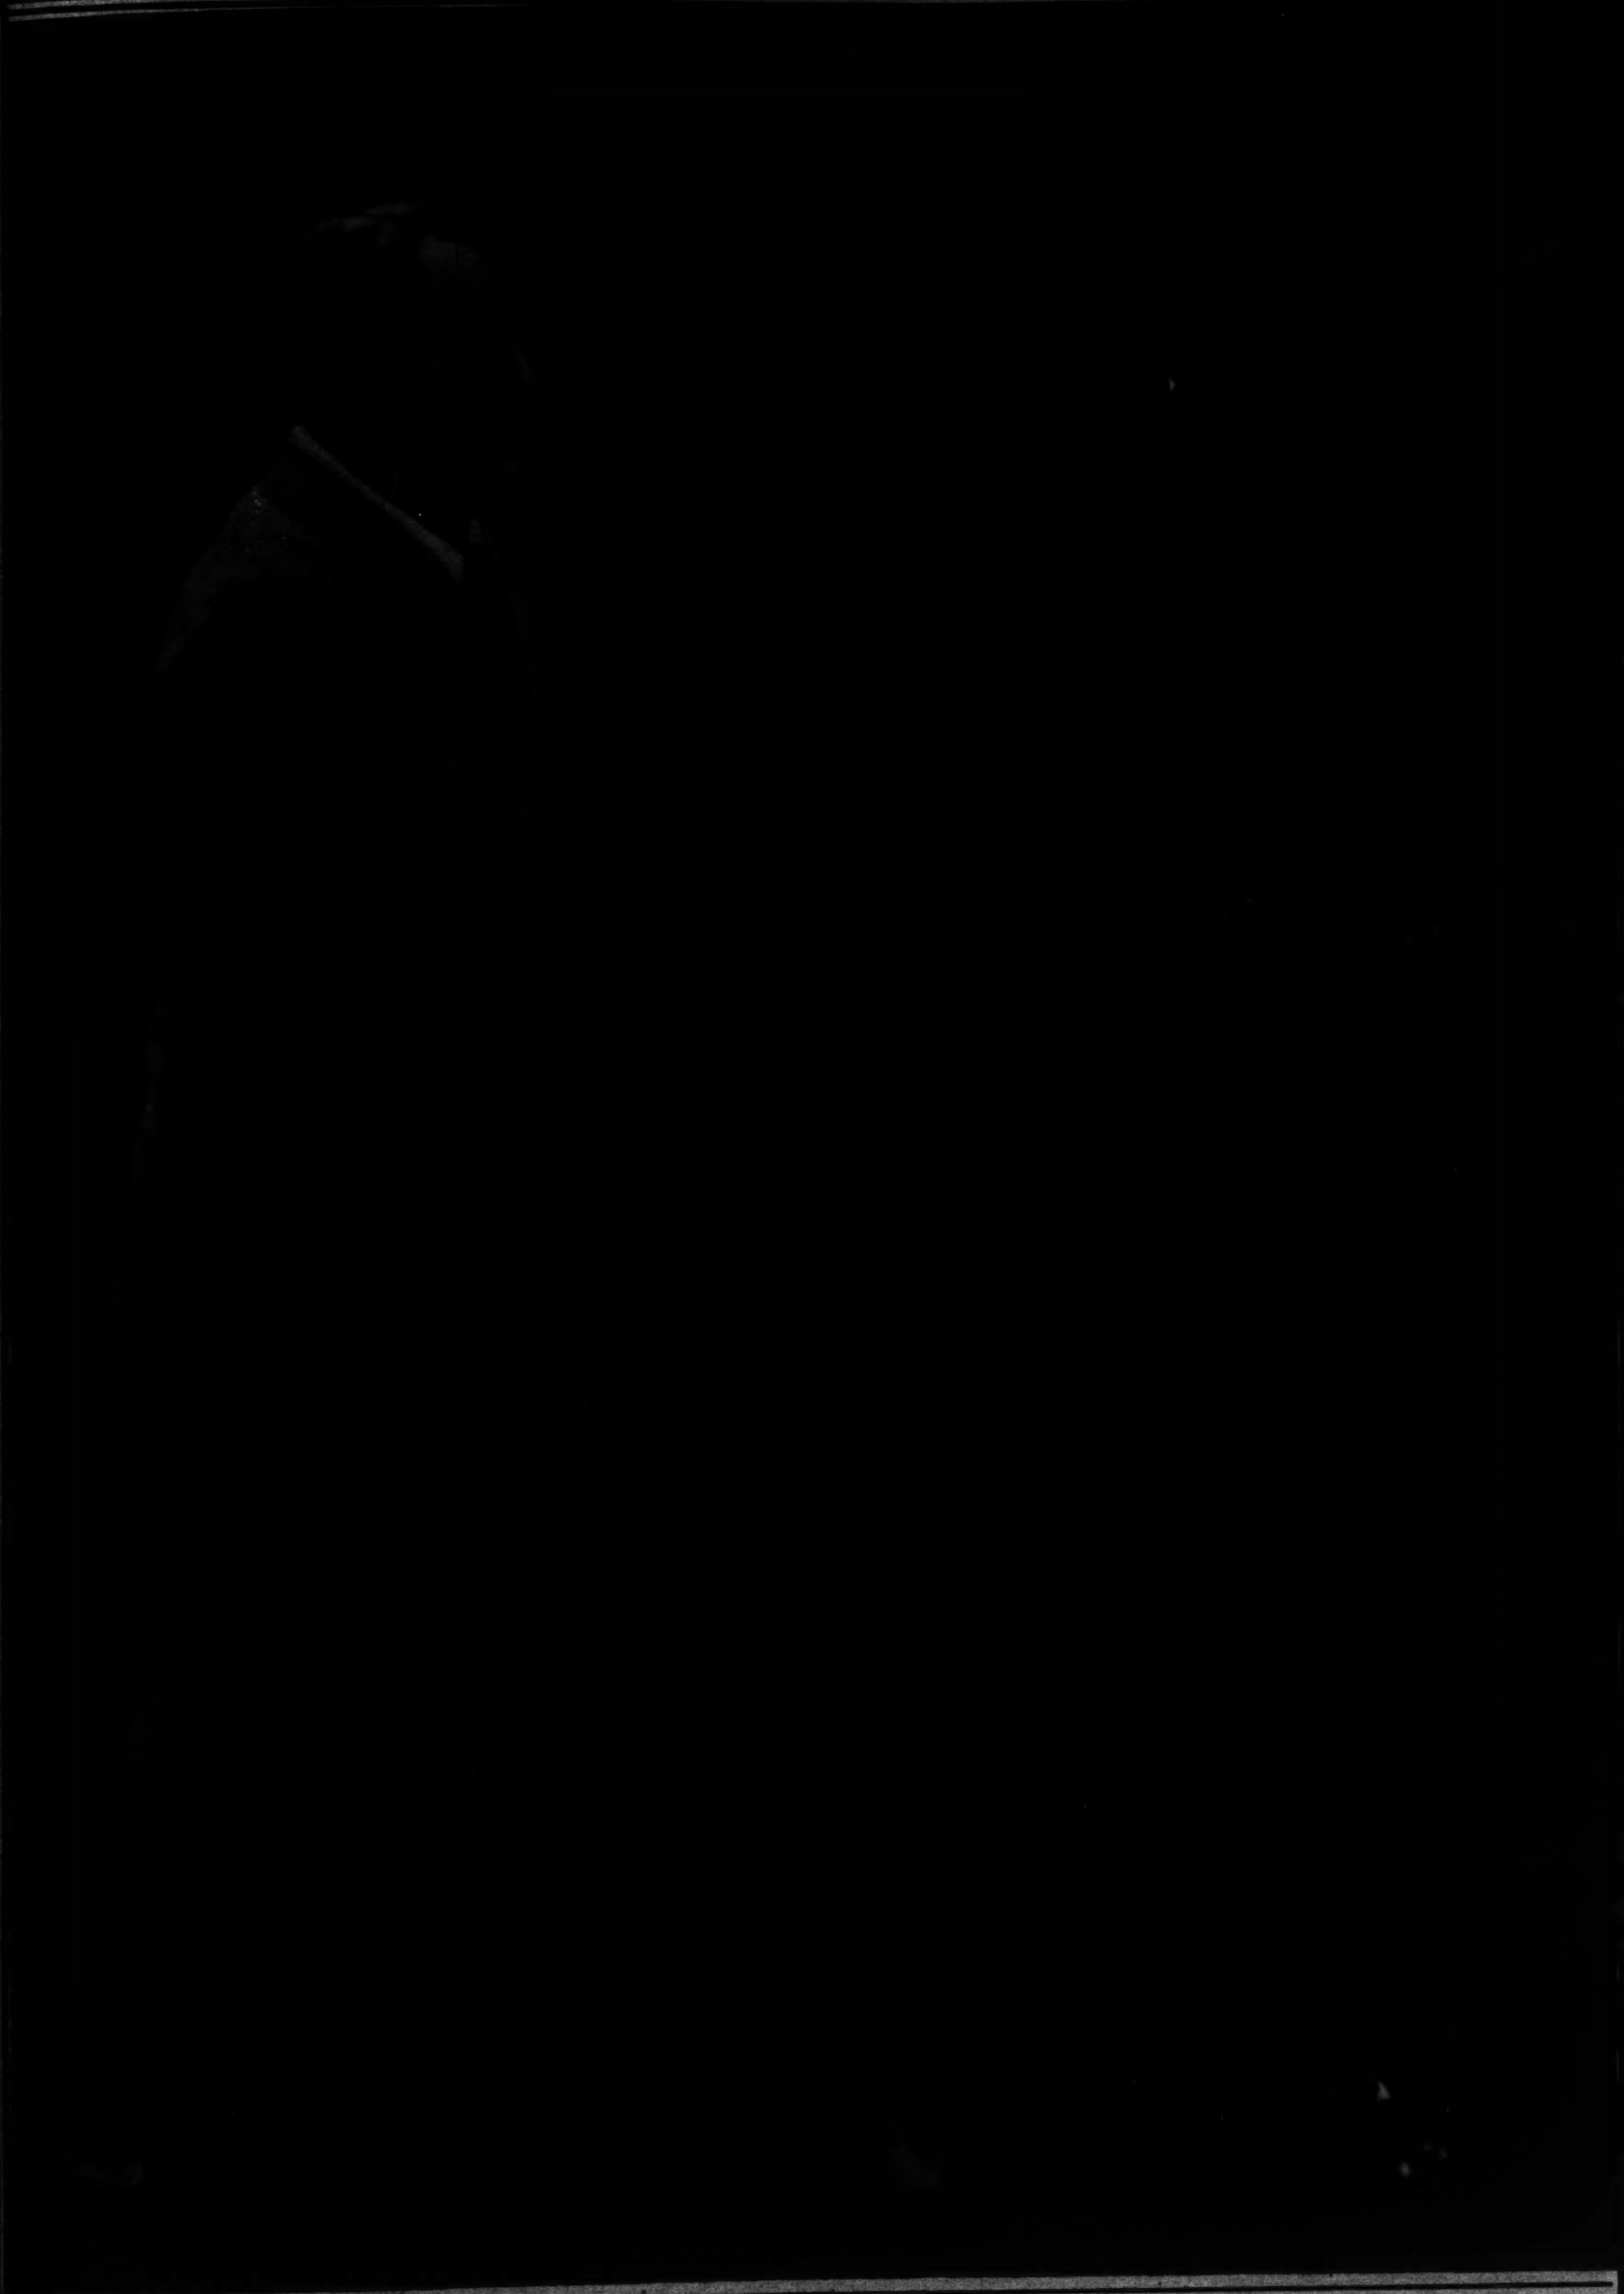
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

JULY 1, 1917

ROTOGRAVURE SECTION



THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER EDITOR—Alfred Harmsworth, Lord Northcliffe, editor and publisher of the London Times, Daily Mail, and half a hundred other English newspapers and periodicals, is at the head of the new mission of the British to the United States. We may expect from him no sweet flattery, but an absolutely outspoken criticism of any faults in our conduct of the war which he believes will result dangerously for us. He is a fighting Irishman, who has "seen England through" the war so far, and is still at it with all the force of his relentless antagonism toward any of that inefficiency, rotten politics, or official muddling which cost England so dearly during the first year of war. He is the maker and unmaker of British cabinets. If the Times and Mail were suppressed he would print the facts about graft, bad generalship, and bad management on hand dodgers, if necessary, and distribute them himself. To him more than any other one man in England, with the possible exception of Lloyd George, is due the placing of England at last in a position to make her vast resources felt in the war of democracy against autocracy.

WHEN SPRING COMES 'ROUND AGAIN we have with us the rhythmic open air dancers, whose number in this country are growing legion. In almost any picturesque nook of nature, these days, one is likely to chance upon some scantily clad damsels, looking for all the world like sprites from fairyland. The pictures on this page are of the Marcellus sisters, dancers of New York.

ALICE BRADY, the daughter of William A. Brady of the World Film company, is young, but despite that fact is one of the most finished actresses of the screen. Miss Brady was on the stage before pictures claimed her. She is a piquant person of much charm.

ROBERT WARWICK might never have been known to stage or screen had his voice not "gone back on him." Music was his first love, and in Europe he studied singing. Then the catastrophe. Then the stage. Then the screen. He is with Selznick.

STUART HOLMES is a villain. Right balefully he stalks through the films. In real life, however, he is a companionable soul; was born in Milwaukee without his mustachios, and is a graduate of a Chicago school of design. It is said he had something to do with the decoration of a railway station.

LOUISE HUFF of Famous Players has been called "The Kate Greenaway Girl of the Screen." Though she insists that she is "just an old fashioned girl," the new dances tell a different tale, for they say that Miss Huff is mistress of them all.

JOHN SPARGO, the well known Socialist lecturer, writer, and student, has resigned from the party which, he says, is committed to a program that is "unneutral, un-American, and pro-German." He charges that the Socialists' anti-war and anti-conscription proclamations and actions are simply evasive apologies for the "whole German policy of frightfulness and international anarchy." Mr. Spargo's works on Socialism have been translated into many languages. He explains that his withdrawal from the Socialist party does not mean that he has renounced Socialism.

A BULL SEAL AND HIS HAREM, with some of his numerous offspring scattered here and there in the foreground. The photograph was taken by Merl La Voy on St. Paul's island, in the Pribloff group of islands in the Pacific. Seals congregate in immense herds during the breeding season. They are polygamous, and although they are usually harmless and timid, the old males often fight vicious battles over the females. The young seals are at first afraid of water and must be taught to swim by their parents. They are among the most teachable of animals and are especially affectionate to human beings who feed them.

The one way to be rid of perspiration troubles forever

Soap and water alone do not mean freedom from perspiration annoyance. Neither do talcum powders and deodorants for more than a few minutes.

The one way to be rid of excessive perspiration forever is by diverting it from places where it is most bothersome—under-arms, hands, feet, neck or forehead—and by making it come out evenly over the entire body.

This is just what Odorono does. It relieves you at once of the discomfort and embarrassment which excessive perspiration always causes, and leaves the parts to which it is applied naturally sweet and dry.

Just three applications a week, regularly applied, will give you complete relief. One application prevents odor for at least three days.

Remember this about perspiration

Your physician will tell you it is "healthy to perspire only when the perspiration is natural and normal over the entire body." It is the excessive, abnormal perspiration which is so noticeable that Odorono does away with. Absolutely harmless to use.

At all toilet counters in the United States and Canada, 50c and $1.00. Trial size, 25c. By mail, postpaid, if your dealer hasn't it. Address The Odorono Co., 902 Blair Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

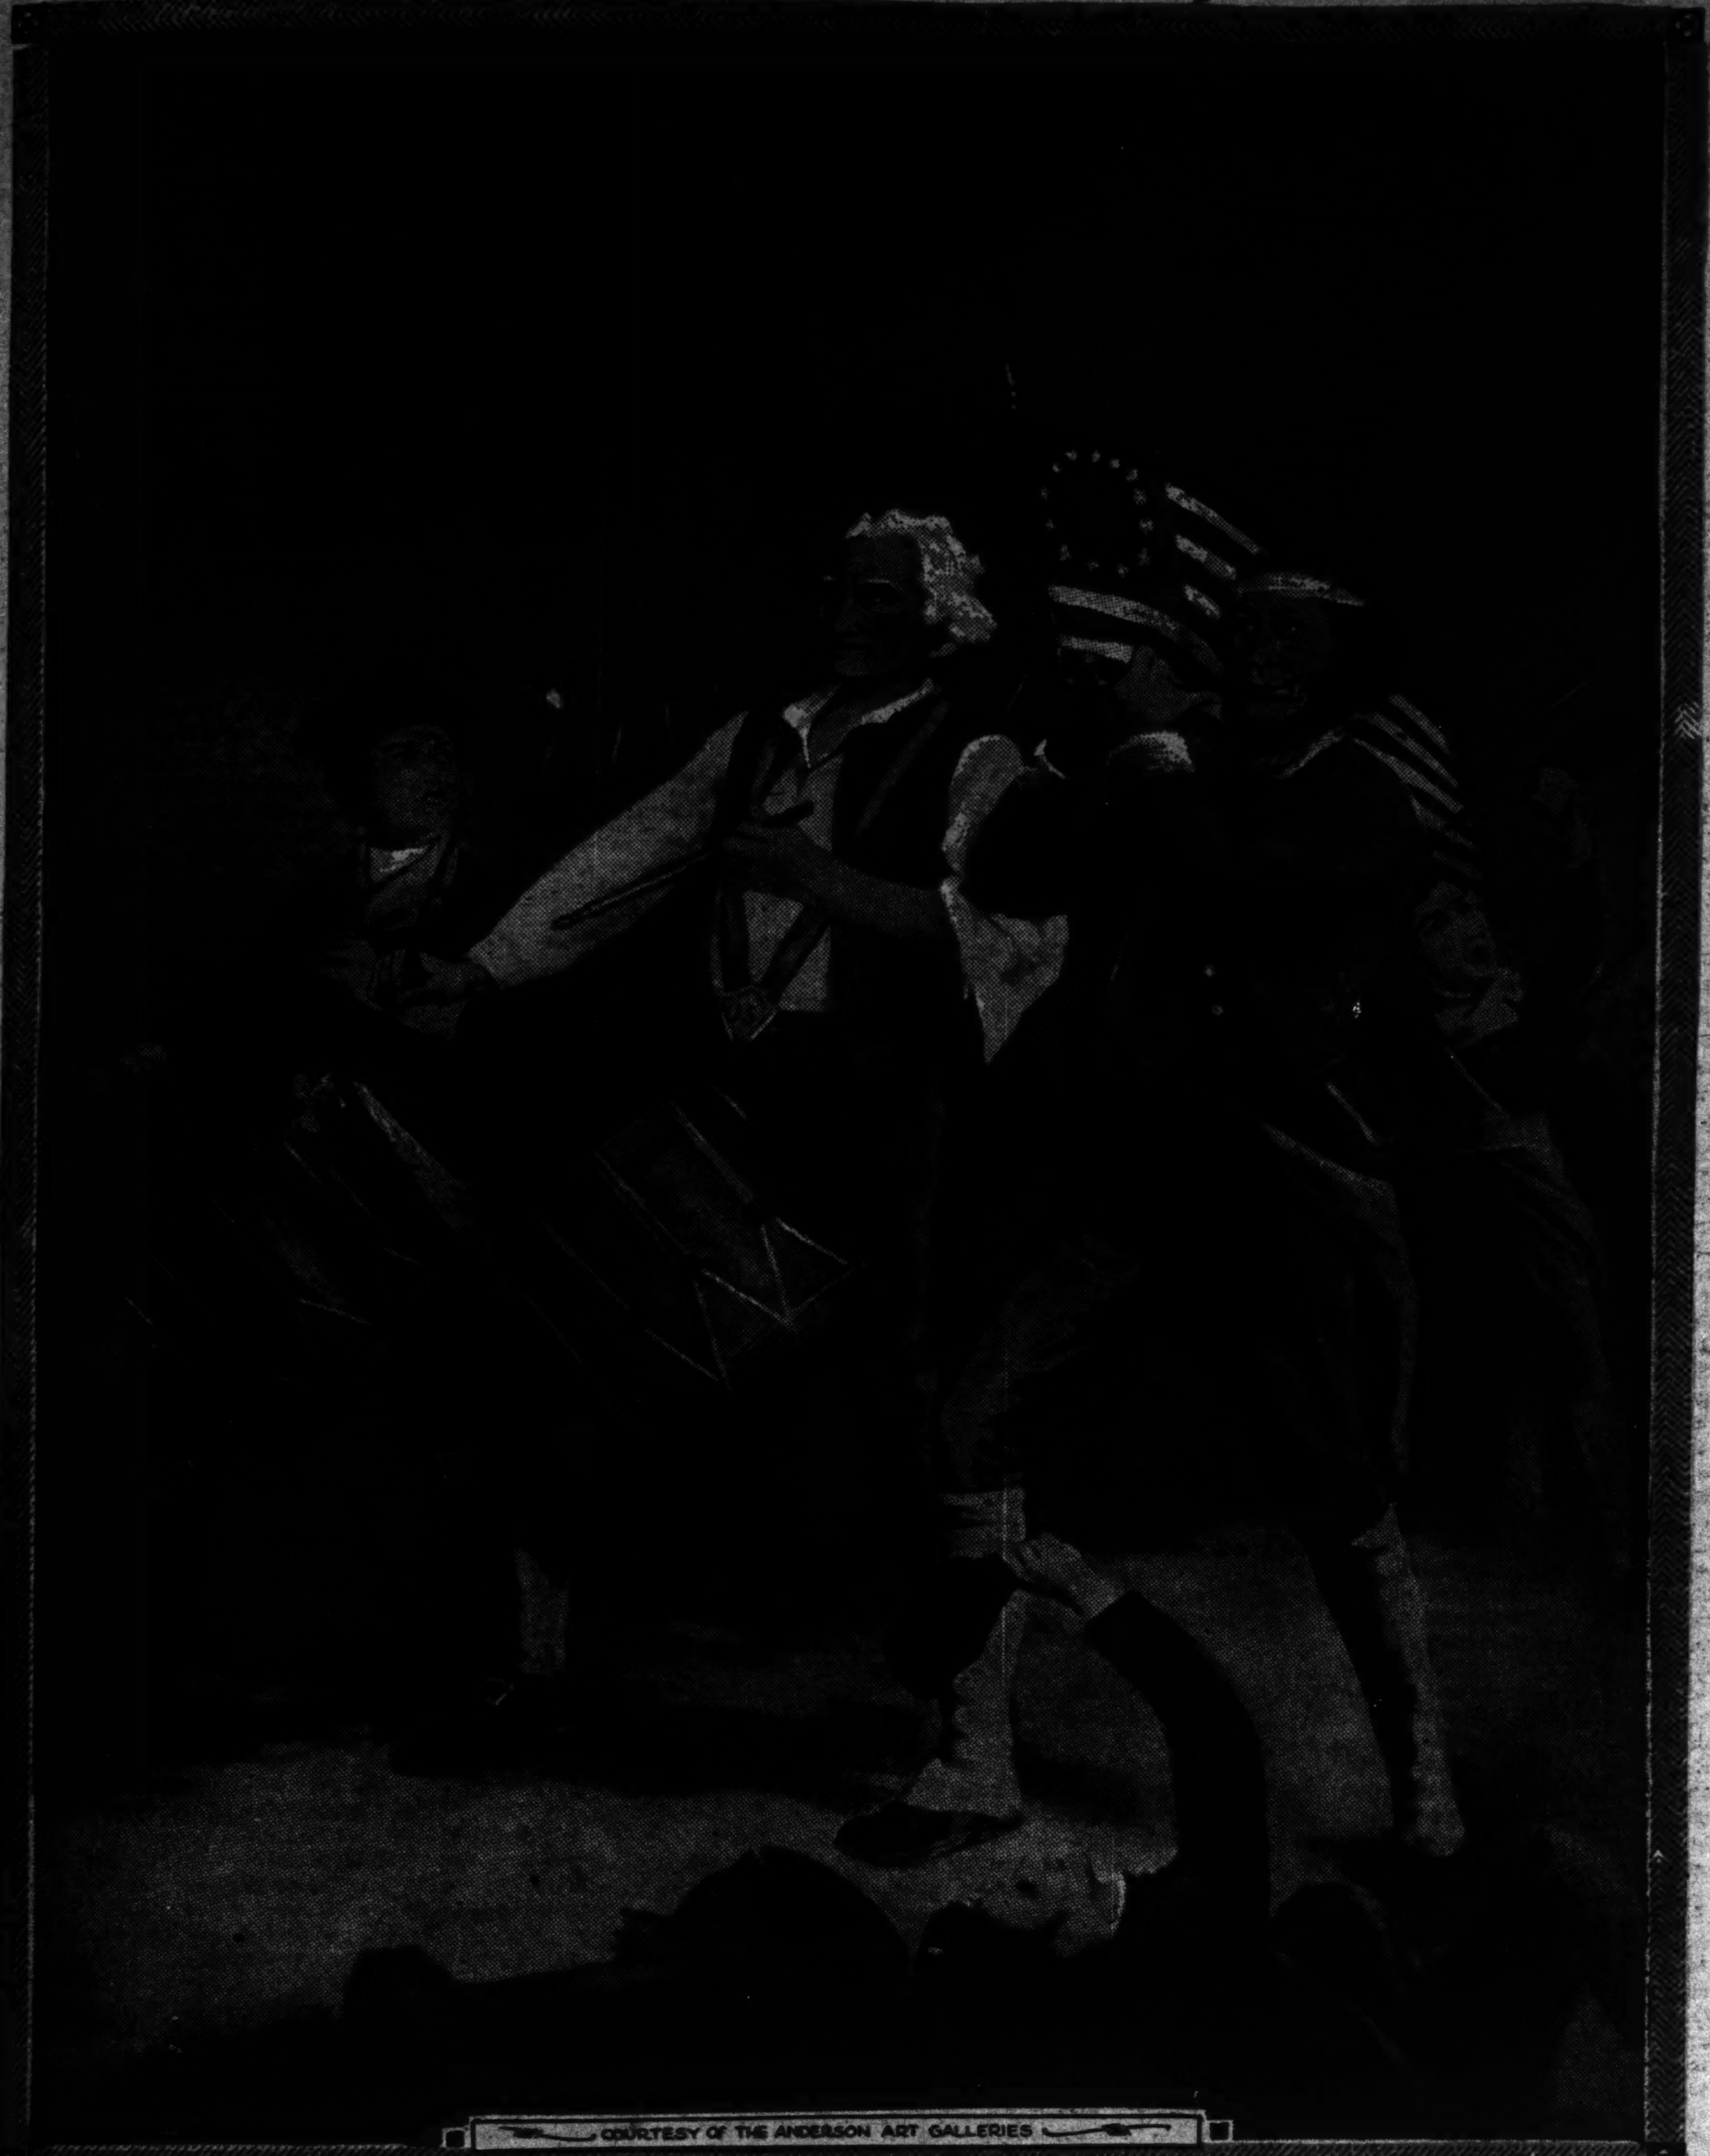
THE SPIRIT OF '76 By A.M. Willard



COURTESY OF THE ANDERSON ART GALLERIES

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"The Spirit of 1776," by Archibald M. Willard. Hanging in Abbot hall, Marblehead, Mass.

ON a battlefield from which the ragged Regimentals have been driven back in disorder, these three men are marching on undismayed. The shrill notes of the fife and the steady roll of the drum have risen above the din of threatened disaster and they are unaware that they are alone. Their fearlessness is beginning to inspire the retreating forces. In the rear nothing is clear. There are rallying shouts about them! The army has turned! The troops are coming back! The musicians are no longer alone! Victory now is assured.

There was a curious beginning to this picture which is now known the country over. Willard painted a picture for a 4th of July celebration. He used the same models and his intention was to set forward odd and amusing features of a country 4th of July band. Then an inspiration came to him. Why not transfer these same sturdy citizens to the battlefield and instead of inciting amusement he would stir the people to enthusiasm. He looked hard into the faces of the stalwart young lad, the resolute veteran, the fine old father with the blood of the Revolution in his veins, and he threw away his humorous sketches and began anew with real feeling in his heart for the thing he was to do.

It was during the time that he was painting this canvas that his father took seriously sick and he divided his time between caring for him and working on his picture. Day by day it increased in strength and all traces of lightness and fun were dissipated in the smoke of the battlefield and the death that hovered close.

He called the painting "Yankee Doodle" at first, for that was the tune the men were supposed to be playing, nor did he at the time intend to suggest any relationship between the three men. It was the public who later read into it the suggestion of three generations of rugged American stock.

The picture was exhibited at the Centennial in Philadelphia. No other picture received half the attention this one did. At the close of the exposition General Devereux bought it for his home town, Marblehead, Mass., and it is now hanging in the town hall. A few years later Mr. Willard painted another Revolutionary picture which he called the "Minute Men of the Revolution," and this one is in some respects the most successful of all his pictures.

Mr. Willard was born in a little village in Ohio over eighty years ago, and the place that he has made for himself in American art is irrespective of technique in line or any great knowledge of color and its effect. He painted the original of this in 1876 and planned its reproduction for the new Cleveland City hall on his 76th birthday.

Archibald Willard took part in our own War of the Rebellion and it was during that period he drew his first sketches for the amusement of his comrades. After his return Mr. Willard aspired to be an historical painter of actual war scenes, but the people had been too war steeped in horror and misery to show any interest in pictures thereof, and for years he was known as a sketcher of humorous incidents for men, women, and children.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

The White Feather

by Lechmere Worrall and J. E. Harold Terry

Molly.

Herewith is presented another installment of one of the most thrilling serial stories ever written. It is from the pens of two famous English novelists and playwrights, J. E. Harold Terry and Lechmere Worrall.

"The White Feather" is particularly interesting at this time when the United States is just entering the war in earnest. It deals with conditions in England during the first few months of the war, when England had not yet awakened to the danger to the empire from the web of German spies which was woven throughout the social, political, and domestic life of Great Britain. The story is a masterpiece of plot ingenuity. The machinations of the spies, the reaction of England's women to the attitude of the slackers who refused to join the army, and the difficulties this attitude caused against patriotic and generous men are worked together in an intricate and exciting manner. Throughout there runs a beautiful love story, unmatched in recent fiction.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in the West Crest private hotel in an English sea coast town when England has been at war one month. Mrs. Sanderson, the proprietress; her son, Charles, serving in the English admiralty; Mr. Pollock, the Justice of the Peace; his daughter, Molly, 19; Christopher Brent, Molly's fiance; Mrs. Miriam Lee, a widow of thirty-five, the latest arrival at the hotel; Miss Myrtle, a spinster; Fraulein Schroeder, a colorless little German woman, claiming twenty years of English naturalization; Pennicuik, a young English soldier, and Fritz, a servant in the house, are the entire occupants of the hotel. Christopher Brent is looked upon by all the other hotel occupants, excepting Molly and Mrs. Lee, as an irresponsible idiot, due to acts and conversation he affects, especially when war talk, which is uppermost in all conversation, is conducted in his presence. A young English girl, an hysterical enthusiast, breaks in on the hotel party one morning carrying a basket of white feathers, one of which she is going to present to every man she meets who has not enlisted. In the presence of almost the entire hotel patronage, she asks Brent if he is going to enlist, and why not. He says he is not, but his reasons are evasive. Molly cringes under the disfavor Brent thus brings down upon himself by what her father calls cowardice. Brent tries to gain Molly's absolute faith in him without disclosing the nature of his real business.

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

A Discovery.

MOLLY had never heard of the confidence trick and would not have smiled if she had.

"O. well, suppose we have a game of tennis," she said, suggesting what was to her the normal panacea for any strain that developed during the conversation.

"I'm frightfully sorry, Molly, but I can't just now. There are one or two things I must see to before lunch."

"Very well," said Molly, going toward the house. "Perhaps," she flung back over her shoulder, "Mrs. Lee might help you with them if you asked her. I dare say she will even if you don't."

Brent stood looking after her and swore softly but unmistakably, then he, too, went into the house, by way of the Sandersons' sitting room.

The sitting room was empty, even fräulein having taken herself and her knitting elsewhere. Brent glanced at his wrist watch and strolled up and down whistling softly, with rather a gloomy look on his face. Then he drew his inevitable pipe from his pocket and struck a light. At this moment Fritz, a blonde and cherubic looking individual, came abruptly into the room.

"Excuse me, sair," said Fritz, catching sight of Brent, "but do you know where Mr. Pollock is? They demand him on the telephone."

"Mr. Pollock?" said Brent, lighting his pipe. "I don't know. He was playing golf; perhaps he's come in and is changing."

Brent finished lighting his pipe and flung the match in the grate, where it lay flickering on the neatly laid arrangement of wood and coal. He was startled by a sudden exclamation from Fritz, who rushed past him, almost knocking into him, and, snatching the match, put it out.

"What the devil are you doing?" asked Brent.

Fritz stood breathing heavily, his florid face actually pale.

"Ach," he ejaculated, "that was a narrow sqveak!"

"Fritz, pull yourself together. Vot vos a narrow sqveak?"

"The fire, sair," explained Fritz. "You nearly light him."

"But what if I did? It's nothing to write home about?"

"To—to write home about?" asked Fritz, staring at him, this time with what looked like terror in his face.

"To make a song about, if you prefer it," amended Brent. "I say, Fritz, you know you mustn't let yourself go like this. It's very bad form. It isn't done."

"But madame never permits this fire to be light," explained Fritz. "Madame, she scold me very much if he get lit."

"Blows you up, does she? I dare say you deserve it."

"Blows me up!" almost screamed Fritz.

"O, Lord!" said Brent. "I shall have to buy you a little book, on, English-Dutch idioms. What I want to know is, this," with a fatuous air of attempted cunning, "what I want to know is, what the dickens does Mrs. Sanderson have it laid for if she doesn't want it lit?"

"Ach, for that," said Fritz, shrugging his shoulders, "I cannot tell. She likes it so. But there is madame coming," he added, glancing out of the window over Brent's shoulder. "Perhaps she will tell you herself." And he walked out of the room, shutting the door after him.

Brent cast one puzzled look at the grate, then turned to greet Mrs. Sanderson, who came in at the window, followed by her son Charles. She was a fair, plump, pleasant looking woman, slightly inclined to double chin, with a figure kept rigorously elegant and set off by a smart but sober black satin suit. She carried a couple of library books under her arm.

"Ah, Mr. Brent," she exclaimed, "I don't think you have met my son before, have you? Charles, this is Mr. Bent; he has come down for the sea bathing. He is a great friend of Mr. and Miss Pollock."

Charles Sanderson came forward and shook hands. He, like his mother, was fair and inclined to bigness, and either predisposition or his work at the admiralty had produced in him something of the unmistakable naval aspect—a clean, hard determination of look and a pleasant smile.

"Pleased to meet you, Mr. Brent," he said.

"So am I—to meet you, I mean," said Brent genially. "Down for long?"

"Only the week-end. We are most frightfully busy at the admiralty, you know."

"O, yes, of course, you are at the admiralty," said Brent gleefully. "I had forgotten you had a billet there."

"In the transport department," Mrs. Sanderson informed him with maternal pride.

She put the books neatly on a shelf as she spoke.

"Ah," exclaimed Brent, pointing his pipe at Charles, "then you are the very man I wanted to see. You can really tell us the truth about those Russians."

"Perhaps," said Charles Sanderson, laughing, "and—perhaps not."

"Well, now, then," went on Brent confidentially and with a beaming smile, "perhaps I can tell you something. I have an aunt at Leamington, an awfully jolly old lady. She didn't see them herself, because, as a matter of fact, she can't get out of her chair, but her parlor maid's young man works somewhere near the railway. Well, he has a pal who actually works on the railway, a very nice young fellow—Salvation Army and all that; teetotaler, too, I believe—and he told him that he had actually seen them—the Russians, I mean."

"That, of course, proves it," said Mrs. Sanderson, laughing, though not unkindly.

"What do you think?" persisted Brent to Charles.

"Shall I tell you the truth?"

"I wish you would; all these rumors are dashed worrying."

"Very well then, I will," said Charles, smiling broadly by now. "They didn't, not a solitary man jack of a Russian."

Brent's face fell. He stood looking the picture of disappointment. "Well, that is sickening," he said, "absolutely sickening. On the strength of the Salvation Army young man I had put five quid on it with a fellow at the club. This is a blow. It will be a blow for the old lady, too. It's made her absolutely 'it' at Leamington, being able to tell the story."

"Well, I must go and have a wash and brush up," said Charles. "So long, Mr. Brent." He opened the door for his mother and they both passed out.

Left alone, Christopher Brent strolled over to the fireplace and began thoughtfully tapping it with his pipe. Up and down, all over, he tapped it; absurdly in the fashion of some one in a historical novel who searches for a secret hiding place. Suddenly a hollow sound rang from under his pipe. He tapped again to make sure. There was no doubt about it. He whistled softly, put his pipe in his pocket, and taking out his matchbox deliberately scattered its contents over the hearth. Then he knelt down and producing from another pocket a little electric torch directed its ray over the grate and up the chimney. A footstep sounded in the corridor, and slipping the lamp in his pocket again he began to take up the matches, humming a tune as he did so.

Mrs. Lee came softly into the room and stood looking at his back for a moment.

"Whatever are you doing?" she said as she closed the door.

"Split a box of matches—beastly nuisance," replied he, then, glancing up, asked, "All alone?"

"Yes."

"Good." He swept the matches into the box and jumped up.

"What's the matter, Kit?"

"I think I'm on the verge of a discovery. But first, those papers."

She produced a small folded document from the little bag that dangled from her wrist and handed it to him. He ran his eye over it and gave a long whistle.

"By George, but this is interesting!" he exclaimed. "So she's the widow of old Gen. von Mantel, is she? Let me see, Von Mantel was the fellow who wrote the book in defense of spies? Yes? I thought so. He always maintained that the end justified the means. Well, if it's his widow we're up against, she ought not to be any fool at the game."

"Don't suppose she is," observed Miriam.

"I wonder how she got hold of the late lamented Sanderson?" pursued Brent. "She's German herself, I suppose?"

"Very much so. She was born in Dresden."

"Well, well," remarked Brent, reading over the document again. "Let's see when they were married—August, '97. Then that fellow Charles must be Von Mantel's son and not Sanderson's at all. Curioser and curioser, as Alice would say. And what about the gentle Fritz?"

"We couldn't find out much about him," said Miriam. "He appears to be Dutch, all right, and naturalized; but, of course, it's more than probable he's in their pay."

"H'm!" replied Brent. "And Fräulein Schroeder? She's in it, of course?"

"O, she's just one of a thousand," replied Miriam, shrugging her shoulders. "She's lived in this country for about twenty years, was governess to the home secretary's children and in various other important families. Her references are excellent, and so are her capabilities as a spy. She seems to be intrusted with most of their important work down here."

"And she so childlike, innocent, and bland," commented Brent. "Have you got that book fur me my man gave you?"

"It's in this parcel. What is it, Kit?"

"It's a complete key," replied Brent, speaking quite casually, but in a very low voice, "to all the codes used by German spies and their various methods of communication. Some book, eh?"

"Kit, again I repeat that you are a genius! Where did you get hold of it?"

"O, that's a long yarn," answered Brent, spinning on his heel and strolling toward the mantelpiece once more. "But I don't mind telling you the kaiser's intelligence department didn't actually make me a present of it. And now, Watson—though it's very rude to class you as Watson—to pursue my investigations."

He knelt and again began tapping the fireplace.

"Keep an eye on the window and an ear on the door, Miriam. By the way, didn't it strike you last night that Mrs. Sanderson refused the Myrtle's request for a fire in a very emphatic manner?"

"I didn't notice it at the time, but now you mention it——"

"Just so. Well, I didn't think much about it at the time, but one or two things have set me thinking since. Listen to this, Miriam." He tapped the solid sounding tiles, then the one which rang hollow. "Like a bally melodrama," he commented. "It's a great game and all that, but it makes you feel such an ass, crawling 'round looking for secret springs and talking about dispatches and things. I can never get over the curious feeling of unreality about them, just because one's so used to them in books. That's how every one in England feels about that sort of thing, I imagine, and the Germans were clever enough to take that into account when they used all the tricks of the trade. Englishmen have always laughed at the idea of spies and called it melodramatic nonsense. And now it's been proved real every one has the same sort of feeling as though a fairy story had come true."

All the time this chatter was flowing on Brent's fingers were exploring, and now they found what they sought. A slight pressure and the whole of the grate revolved slowly around on a center pivot, disclosing on what had been the inner side a curious and complicated looking arrangement of metal, wood, and wires. Quite unintelligible it would have looked to the ignorant, but both Miriam Lee and Christopher Brent seemed to understand by their sudden exclamation and quickened look what hidden forces the gleaming, curiously sinister looking machine actually stood for.

. . . .

"I knew that flagpole wasn't there for nothing," was Brent's first remark.

Miriam was puzzled by this.

"Flagpole?"

"Yes, right by the chimney stack. That's how they work their aerials. Neat little wireless this, isn't it? I say, Miriam, if I could only intercept a message!"

"It may be working," said Miriam eagerly; "try it. A secret installation like this isn't likely to be in tune with more than one other instrument, so you ought to get something worth having."

Brent fixed the receiver to his ears as he knelt down on the hearth rug. "Open that book you brought me," he commanded, "we shall need it. By George, it's working! somebody keeps calling. Hunt through the book and tell me how to signal him to go on."

"What's he calling?"

"Two dots, pause, and three dots very quickly. Look anywhere. Try No. 7."

Miriam whipped the pages over hastily. "No, that's not it," she announced. "I'll try No. 9. That's got him, Kit. You said two dots, pause, and then three dots quickly, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"The answer is two dashes, pause, two dots."

"Right O," said Brent, tapping it out.

Then, as the sibilant sound of the wireless began again, he hastily took down the message in his notebook.

"Dash, dot, four dots again, and dash," he read out. "Does that make sense?"

"Yes, that makes the German word 'Morgen.'"

The hissing sound went on and Brent wrote in silence. When he had left off he still remained listening for a minute.

"It's stopped," he said at last, tossing the notebook to Miriam. "There, what do you make of that?"

"You had better signal him to hold," counseled Miriam. "Dot, pause, two dots."

Brent gave the signal while Miriam translated the message as quickly as she could and then read it aloud:

"Leith angelangt heute morgen—zug aufsteigen heute nacht—sofort weiter—Uns wartet auf signal—was für Befehl?"

Brent listened with an expression of comic bewilderment on his face. "That is literally double Dutch to me," he remarked. "What is it in common or garden English?"

"Well, nothing intelligible on the face of it."

"Give it to me."

"Landed Leith this morning," Miriam read out. "Entrain tonight, crossing immediately. Uns awaits signal. What orders?"

"Ye gods and little fishes," said Brent, slowly and with emphasis. "Then they really are coming after all!"

"Who are?"

"The famous troops from the north we have heard so much about. What the dickens shall I reply? Do give me an idea."

Miriam laughed. "A dot, a dash, two dots," she told him.

"What does that mean?"

"Well, in low German—very low German—it means 'Run away and play.'"

"That'll do for the present," said Brent, and tapped the message out accordingly. Then, still sitting on his heels, he looked at the wireless instrument thoughtfully. "It seems a shame to hurt this nice little fellow," he said, "and after it's been so useful and obliging, too. But then, it might oblige the enemy as well. So here goes." And leaning forward, he quickly but firmly proceeded to put the detector out of action. "There, I've spiked their gun," he announced and pressed the spring. In another moment the fireplace had resumed its usual innocent aspect.

Brent stood up and brushed the slight dust marks off the knees of his white flannel trousers.

"Uzz," he murmured, "Uzz. What in the name of all that's wonderful does Uzz stand for? The rest of it's clear enough."

"They're going to try to stop the transports crossing, I suppose."

"I think that's their little game—Uzz"—he rumpled his usually sleek hair—"Uzz, Uzz, Uzz," he said viciously, "you're sure you got that down right, Miriam?"

"Sure," she replied confidently. "Look here's what you put down and here's the translation—Uzz."

"Well, the only thing I can understand at present," said Brent, "is that Uzz, whoever he may be, awaits a message. Hullo, isn't that voices, Miriam?"

"Yes, from the garden. Sandersons, I think."

"This is our way, then," said Brent, opening the door and whisking himself and Miriam out of it.

Not a trace of their presence or their work there remained, not even the traditional dropped nate book, when Mrs. Sanderson, that somewhat disingenuous widow, and her son Charles came into the room through the French window, talking placidly about nothing in particular until they saw that no one was there, when their tones suddenly changed.

"Thank goodness, that particular idiot, Brent, has gone," remarked Charles.

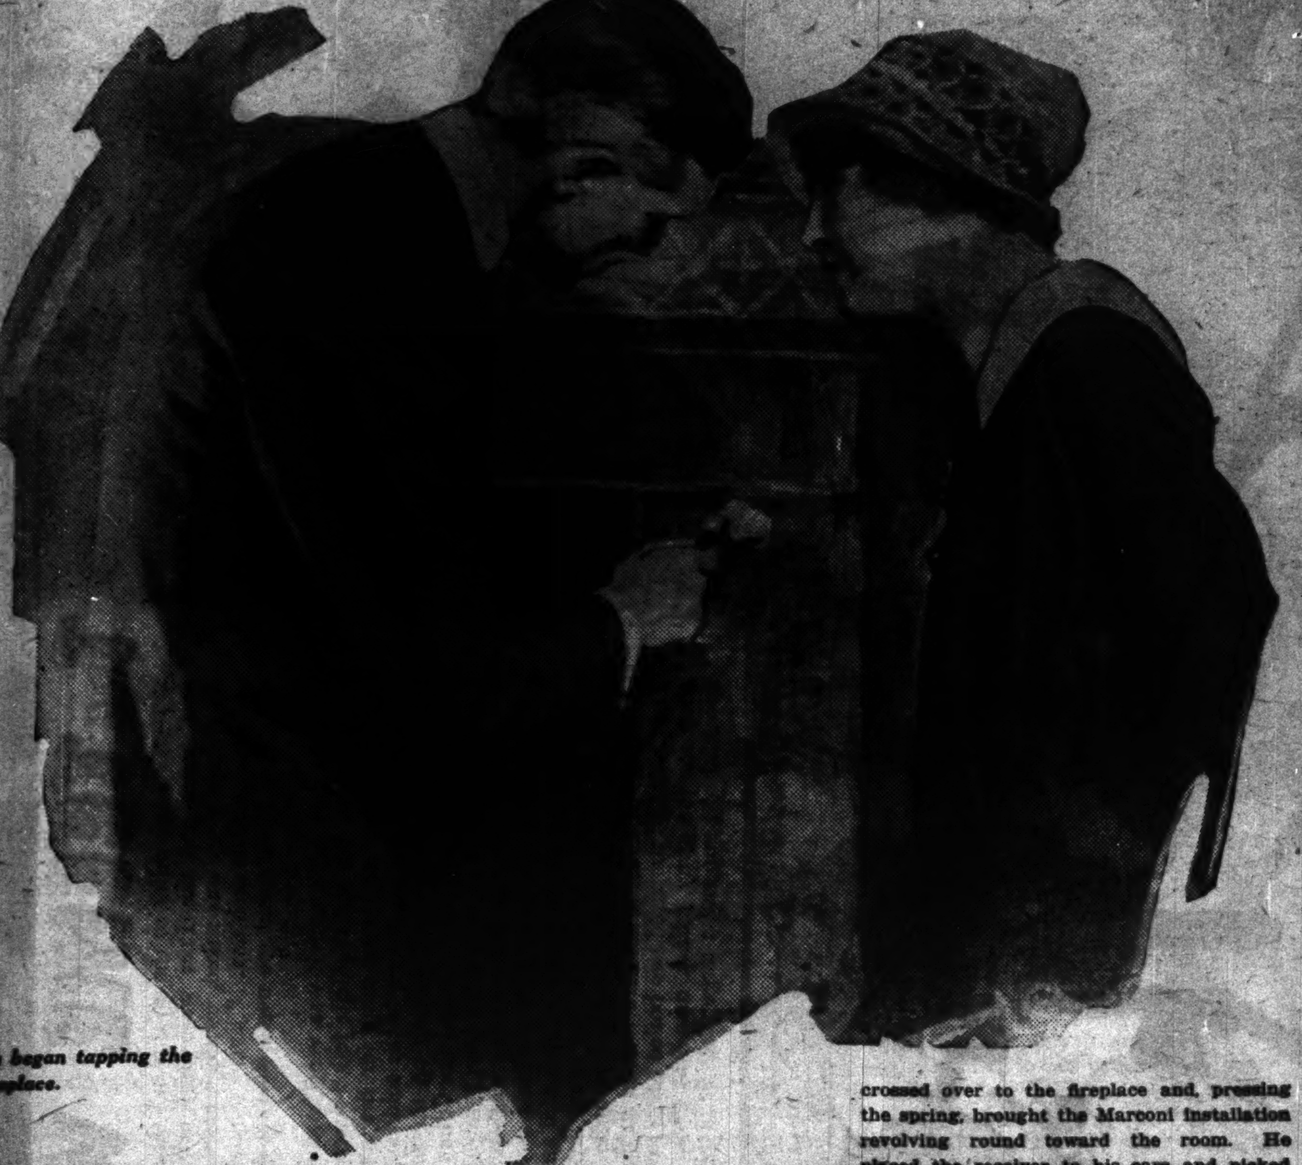
"Sometimes," replied Mrs. Sanderson acutely, "it seems to me there is danger in the very fact of his being such an idiot. You know they say there is a special providence which protects children, drunken men, and fools. It would be the real English good luck if Brent were to stumble on something which a cleverer man would never find; it is so much easier to defend one's self against clever men.

"I dont think we need worry about him," rejoined her son. "He wouldn't even understand what a carrier pigeon was for if it flew up under his nose. Neither would that young Pennicuik you introduced me to coming from the station, though he's a very different type in other respects. A little while ago I don't suppose he knew one end of a rifle from another, and in a few months more, if nothing happens to prevent it, he will be fighting with the best of them. They have no science, these English, but they certainly have a wonderful spirit. Do you know, mother, it's sometimes quite an effort for me to remember that I am a German. The English ideal certainly has a genius for absorption."

"My son! Do not say such terrible things, even in jest. You are a German and some day you will be a great German like your father before you."

"Perhaps," agreed Charles rather moodily, "but it isn't always as simple as you think to see exactly where one's duty lies. However, a German I am, as you say, and so the fatherland must be my first consideration. Did Fritz get all the dispatches through?"

"Yes, all of them; the fishing fleet took them."



He began tapping the fireplace.

"Good," replied Charles, his voice now dry, brisk, and businesslike. "And how many of the Potsdam carriers are left?"

"Two. One of them has hurt its wing, so the other must not be used excepting on a matter of the first importance."

A satisfied smile touched lightly at Charles' usually stern mouth. "Would you call a map of the English mine field of the first importance?" he asked.

Mrs. Sanderson gazed at him for a second, hardly daring to believe her ears. Then a light of enthusiasm that seemed to transfigure her comely but commonplace face kindled in her eyes.

"My son, do you mean it? However did you get it?"

"Very simply. Stayed in one lunch time and traced it. There you are." He produced his pocketbook and, taking from it a thin sheet of folded paper, handed it to his mother, who undid a few buttons of her tight black satin bodice and thrust the precious paper within.

Then with something almost ceremonial in her action, she took her son's head between her hands—they were nearly of a height—and kissed him on the forehead. "You have done a great thing for the fatherland," she said solemnly, "and our imperial master will not forget you. And now tell me, what about these troops from the north; that is a vital question to which we must bend all our energies. Are they going through?"

Charles shrugged his shoulders. I can't quite tell. My department hasn't touched them, but from what I can make out there seems very little doubt they are on the way."

"But, Charles, they are relying on us for confirmation. What are we to do?"

Charles looked at his watch. "Well, I have left instructions with Gluckmann that he is to let us have a message here between 12 and 1 this morning. He may be calling now. Is the coast quite clear?"

"Quite, I think, but we will ask Fritz. Just ring the bell, will you, Charles?"

Charles obeyed and in a moment Fritz answered the summons. When he saw that the Sandersons were alone in the room his expression changed, and, closing the door carefully, he came right up to them.

"Fritz, is everybody out?" asked Mrs. Sanderson.

"Everybody. Meestair Pollock, he was in at the telephone, but he has just gone out to buy a paper and I saw Mr. Brent go with him. Miss Myrtle, she is in her room, and Mrs. Lee and Miss Pollock, they are in their rooms."

"Good," replied Charles. "Hang about in the passage and keep your eyes open, Fritz. We're going to use the wireless. Mother, you stand by the window."

When Fritz had left the room, and Mrs. Sanderson had taken up her post, Charles crossed over to the fireplace and, pressing the spring, brought the Marconi installation revolving round toward the room. He placed the receiver to his ears and picked up the key. Silence rewarded him.

"Funny that he isn't calling," muttered Charles, glancing at his watch again. "I will try signaling him." He tapped out a call and waited again. "What the devil can be the matter? The thing can't be out of order." He bent down to examine it and caught sight of the damaged detector. "Damnation! Somebody's been tampering with it. Mother, look here."

Mrs. Sanderson hastened across the room, her black satin dress creaking and rustling, her face flushed with agitation.

"Impossible, impossible!" she cried. "No one can have got at it."

"What's the good of saying it's impossible?" said Charles impatiently. "I tell you the detector's smashed to pieces. Look here."

Mrs. Sanderson made a violent effort to control herself, though her hands were trembling.

"It was all right last night," she said. "I got your message."

"Then it's been done this morning," said Charles. "Who's been in here? That's the question, mother."

"Everybody. I couldn't help it, thanks to the accident to the lounge. Every one expected to come in here and I thought it would look suspicious if I refused, and I thought there would probably be safety in numbers.

"Ring for Fritz," said Charles shortly. He swung the grate back to its normal position and, unlocking the door, took up his position slightly to one side of it.

Fritz had hardly crossed the threshold before Sanderson had taken him firmly by the ear. His fingers nipped sharply and Fritz, with an expression of bewilderment and alarm on his rotund countenance, sidled obediently forward.

"Now, Fritz," said Charles, speaking very low, but with suppressed passion, "I want you to understand that if you lie you are done for."

"Mr. Charles, Mr Charles," expostulated Fritz. "I not understand. Lie! For what should I lie?"

"Who's been tampering with the Marconi instrument? It's broken."

A horror that was not entirely due to his position at the moment dawned in Fritz's eyes.

"The Marconi! Broke? Sair, what do you say there? Who done it?"

"That's just what I am asking you."

"But, sair, how can I tell?"

"You lie," said Charles, his fingers slipping from Fritz's ear to his throat.

"I swear I do not know," gasped Fritz.

"My son, be careful," begged Mrs. Sanderson.

Fritz's face had become discolored, his eyes seemed to bulge.

"By our imperial master, I swear," he managed to gasp out.

Sanderson's fingers relaxed and he let Fritz stagger away from him toward the couch.

"Then, who is the spy?" he said roughly. "Of course it must be some one in the house."

"Mistair Brent," said Fritz feebly as he rearranged his disordered collar. "He was in this room alone a little while ago and he threw a lighted match on the fire. I see him, I tell you, sair; with mine own hands I put it out"

"Pooh! that eye glassed idiot," said Charles impatiently. "Mother, think; surely you must have some idea."

"Young Pennicuik?" said Mrs. Sanderson thoughtfully. "No, if he did hear of such a thing he could never have concealed his suspicions so well. I know that type."

"Ach!" cried Fritz suddenly. "You are right, it is not Brent, nor this Pennicuik. It is Mistair Pollock. I see it all now."

"Mr. Pollock!" exclaimed Mrs. Sanderson. "How perfectly absurd! Why, he hasn't the brains, either."

"My dear mother," said Charles, a little impatiently. "To judge by appearances nobody in this house has the brains. Yet somebody must have. It isn't much good to go by appearances What makes you suspect Pollock, Fritz?"

"Just now he was rung up on de telephone," explained Fritz. "I listened and I hear him talk about spies. He say Marconi and wireless, he talk a lot about spies."

"He always does," objected Mrs. Sanderson. "I hardly think he'd have done it so publicly over the telephone if there were anything in it."

"If Pollock's clever enough to have discovered this thing, he's clever enough to do that," muttered Charles, "but I can't say I think it very likely. You and Fritz must watch carefully all day, mother. I must go up to town at once, confound it. Don't forget, mother, I'll wire you. As soon as I get the information I'll wire 'yes' or 'no,' and if 'yes' you will know how to act."

"De carrier?" asked Fritz.

"No, no, that's wanted for the map I have given Mrs. Sanderson. Besides, it's too late now. It will have to be the emergency."

A little smile of satisfaction flitted over Fritz's face. Mrs. Sanderson put out one plump hand involuntarily as though warding something off.

"Is it really necessary, my son? And at such short notice?"

"Of course it's necessary. You needn't worry about the damage. You will be well recompensed."

"What must be done shall be done," replied Mrs. Sanderson. A thrill in her voice made her usually careful tones sound guttural. "Who gets the signal, my son?"

Charles Sanderson, his hand already on the door, paused to answer her.

"Submarine U-11, standing out to sea," he answered. "Hullo, I hear every one coming back. We are only just through in time."

He stood back to allow of the entry of Mr. Pollock and Brent. Mr. Pollock's face was red and his expression disapproving. Brent was obviously very excited.

"I say, Sanderson," he cried, "have you seen the mid-day paper?"

"Mid-day paper?" said Charles, wheeling round on him. "Why, what?"

"Perfectly awful news," declared Brent.

"Not a German victory?" demanded Mrs. Sanderson.

"O, no, but almost as bad."

"From Russia?" asked Charles, even his unperturbed voice showing restrained anxiety.

"Lord, no—from Doncaster. Would you believe it, they have scratched Baby Boy for the St. Leger and only yesterday I backed him for a tenner each way."

The TEENIE WEENIE ARMY GOES INTO CAMP FOR A DAY'S REST.

by WmDONAHEY.

IT was many miles to the wild men's village, where the Lady of Fashion and the Poet were held prisoners, and the Teenie Weenie army was asked, by the General, to march as fast and as far as possible each day. "Every minute counts," said the General, "and if we spend too much time on the road we may be too late to save our friends."

The first day's march was very hard on the soldiers, for the sun was quite hot and the little fellows were not used to such long tramps. When the order came for the army to break ranks and make camp ready for the night the soldiers worked with a will unloading the wagons and putting up the tents. The kitchen tent was put up first so the Cook and the Chinaman would lose no time in getting dinner ready for the hungry army.

The mice that pulled the army wagons were given a good feed of cheese and they were quartered in a hollow tree for the night. The aeroplane ate ten grains of bird seed and hopped onto the limb of the bush under which the tiny camp lay.

When the camp had been put in order for the night mess call was sounded and the soldiers formed in line with their tin plates. The Cook had prepared two boiled beans and a thimble full of corn soup for the army. Each man was given a plate of soup, a big spoonful of bean, and a large piece of bread.

After dinner the little soldiers gathered on the bank of a puddle of water, where they bathed their aching feet, while others took off their uniforms and enjoyed a good swim. The foolish Dunce dived headfirst into the pool without first testing the water to see how deep it was and he nearly broke his silly neck, for the hole was only three Teenie Weenie feet (a little over half an inch) deep.

"Believe me!" exclaimed the Dunce after he was pulled out of the water and sat on the bank rubbing a big bump on his head, "I'm through diving. I wouldn't dive into a teacup full of water even if I could see the bottom."

The General decided to let the army rest for a day, as the soldiers all complained of sore feet and, besides, one of the horses was bothered with a lame leg, which had been hurt in a mouse trap a few days before. The men were given a little light rifle practice, while the Dutchman tried out the cannon at long range shooting, bringing down a dandelion in three shots at the remarkable range of four hundred and twenty Teenie Weenie feet (eight feet and nine inches in our measuremnt).

The little army went to bed early that night, for it had a long march ahead of it and the General wished to be well on the way before sunup.

The STEWED·PRUNE by Berton Braley

Even When All the Office Ragged Him It Wasn't So Bad; But When She Called Him a "Poor Prune" Well——.

MILDRED SUMMERS, stenographer to the manager, winked at the chief clerk, who happened to be in the private office when Reginald Saunders made his diffident plea.

"No," she said, "no, Reggie, I cannot go to the picnic with you; I've promised to go with somebody else."

Reggie Saunders, the billing clerk, flushed a dull red. He had seen that wink. And he would like to have wiped that grin off the chief clerk's face with a right swing. But he hadn't the nerve.

He turned and walked back to his own desk. He was virulently angry, with the purposeless anger of a child who jumps up and down and shrieks. He'd like to have done so himself, but he merely gripped his pen and stared blurredly at the invoices before him. It isn't pleasant to have the girl of your heart turn you down with a wink at somebody else—nor to have her remark, "The poor prune!" loud enough for you to hear it as you try to walk away with dignity.

Yet when he calmed down a little he didn't know but she was right. Doubtless he was a poor prune. Women and men both like a man who goes his own way—not one who merely gets out of other people's. And it seemed to Saunders that he'd always been stepping out of other people's paths and ducking trouble. Until he had taken a job in the Acme offices he had never had to face much of anything alone. A father who dominated and bulldozed, a mother who petted and pampered and shielded him—the one had nearly broken his will, the other had softened his resisting powers. And through the early years of his life his family had moved about so much that he had little opportunity to mix with other boys.

Consequently he came into the Acme office—after his father's sudden death—with no understanding of the basic principle of a man's world—the readiness to fight. Men don't fight often, but the assumption that they will under certain conditions is what determines other men's attitude toward them. It was soon evident, however, that Reggie wasn't ready to fight anybody, hence everybody took up the gentle little pastime of shoving him around. And Reggie, contemplating the situation this afternoon, was near to tears; he wanted to stop being meek, but he couldn't.

Suddenly, however, a great resolution came to him. He put a paperweight on the invoices and strode to the hook where his hat hung. That is to say, he intended to stride, but became panicky at the thought of what he was about to do and checked himself. The effect was therefore something like a hop-skip as he moved toward the hook, and as soon as he had the hat his progress became a hasty flight. But he gained the door and disappeared into the elevator.

His temporary rush of spirits sank with the car; he was about to do a desperate deed and his resolution was ebbing. Yet for once in his life he was to carry the thing through. There was a café in the basement—he entered it and called, or rather half whispered, his request for a drink. He had never been in a café before, and when he named the drink of all drinks which had sounded most potent and devil may care when he heard it mentioned, somehow he looked for the police to come in and raid the place for selling so portentous a potion. But the barkeeper poured it for him quite matter-of-factly—unaware what a cataclysmic event in the young man's life it represented. For that was the mad impulse which had seized Reggie Saunders in the office—to take a drink! He had read, he had heard, how men in moments of desperation turned to liquor for solace or forgetfulness, and in the bitter woe after Mildred Summers called him a "poor prune" he had determined to rush into the clutches of the demon rum.

The drink stung rather pleasantly as he took his first sip. The second swallow was much longer and larger—and the liquid bit and choked him. But already he felt a warmth, an elation, creeping through his veins. He finished the beverage and ordered another.

"Another one of them things?" asked the barkeeper. "It ain't often a man takes two of them."

"Well," said Reggie Saunders, his thin shoulders straightening and his narrow chest sticking out a little, "I don't often take two myself, but today I happen to want two. So I'm taking them."

He was startled at his own tone. There was an arrogance in it which he had never known before. He rather liked the feeling of being arrogant, even if it did come from a drink. So he added: "And it's none of your business, anyhow. All you have to do is to mix the drink."

The barkeeper surveyed Reggie with a resentful eye for a moment, but Reggie met his gaze with an almost belligerent glare. And the bartender's eyes dropped after a few seconds. This was delightful, Reggie thought; he had never tried to stare a man down before. If he had accomplished all this on one drink, what couldn't he do on two?

The second drink tingled more seductively even than the first. Reggie absorbed it rapidly. Was this sensation of self-assurance and confidence a symptom of intoxication? If so, he would repeat the operation more often in the future. "A poor prune," eh? Well, he'd be a "stewed prune," then. Though nobody'd better call him that. And, come to think of it, he didn't like the way the bartender had looked and spoken to him after that first drink. He would put that bartender in his place.

So we have Reggie Saunders, five feet six and weight 127 pounds, leaning over the bar and saying to the 186 pound mixer of drinks:

"Barkeep, I do not like your eyes. They are the wrong color. They are green eyes. I think I will black them for you."

Whereupon, inspired by a sudden madness that the drinks seemed to have brought upon him, he hit the bartender under the left eye. It was a very amateurish and inept blow and it didn't hurt the bartender much, but it brought great light upon the soul of Reggie. For he realized that there was something of a primal joy in hitting a man. His primal joy didn't last long, for the dispenser came around the counter, took Reggie by the seat of the trousers and the collar, and ran him out of the saloon.

"And if you come in again," he promised, "I'll spank yez."

This ought to have humiliated Reggie, but it didn't seem to. His fist still burned pleasurably where he had hit the bartender in the eye. He was sober enough to realize that it would be useless to try the issue with the bartender again, but he was not sated with struggle. He wanted more.

"The vine has struck a fiber, which about it clings my being," Reggie quoted to himself airily, and rang for the elevator.

"Booze," said Reggie thoughtfully, "booze evidently fulfills in me what is lacking. It restores the fighting urge. It makes me not a mere billing clerk, but a man. I will go back to the office and abolish that chief clerk and the cashier who rags me."

Reggie's usual way of entering the office was to slip in silently and ease himself to his desk. But he stepped out of the elevator this time with his hat over one ear and a light in his eye as of conquest. He flung the door open and stalked in rather impressively, in spite of his small stature.

"The little ewe lamb returns to the fold," commented the chief clerk, looking up from his desk. "Come right in, Regggie," he added. "Don't be afraid; nobody's going to hurt our little pet."

Reggie strode—actually strode this time—over to the chief clerk's desk. "Can the ewe lamb stuff," he said in a voice utterly unlike his usual apologetic utterance, "and please remember my name is Mr. Saunders to you hereafter."

"O, Reggie, don't you like to be called Reggie, Reggie?" returned the chief clerk, while the rest of the office chuckled.

"Just for that," said Reggie, "I'm going to take a wallop at you, you big stiff," and he hit the chief clerk on the nose. And again his heart leaped to the impact of the blow, which was much better and more forceful than the one he had planted on the bartender.

The chief clerk was as much dumfounded by the act as he was hurt by the blow, but as the blood began to flow from his nose he swung on Reggie and knocked him over a waste basket and into the telephone operator's desk. Reggie was upon his feet in an instant and coming back for more. He was learning fast—and one of the discoveries was that you may actually get a sort of grim ecstasy out of being hit as well as hitting.

He made a vicious jab at the chief clerk's stomach and struck it forcibly enough so that individual made noises indicative of distress. But he was larger and stronger than Reggie, and his next blow knocked that young man flat on his back, after which the chief clerk sat on his victim and held him until he was out of breath.

"Had enough, Reggie?" queried the chief clerk.

Reggie waited until his breath had come back and then replied, "You'd better call me 'Mr. Saunders' or you'll have a fight on your hands four or five times a day. You can lick me, all right, but you'll have to do it all over again every time you call me Reggie."

The chief clerk smiled in a superior manner as he held Reggie down on the floor. But he didn't call Reggie "Reggie" immediately. For he knew the young fellow meant what he said, and he had no stomach for further battle even if he were the victor. Besides, the manager might come in any minute, and as he glanced up at the office force gathered around he decided that there had been trouble enough. "I'll call you what I please," he defied Reggie, as he let him up. But he looked at the little chap with a respect he had never shown before.

Reggie brushed off his clothes as casually as though being sat upon after a fight all over the office were his regular routine. He looked up to see that the cashier was grinning at him. The cashier was more nearly Reggie's size. He marched over to him.

"I don't like your face," said Reggie. "I never did like it. I'm going to change it for you. First I'm going to remove that smirk. Then, as your nose is too long and you're always sticking it into my business, I'll make it shorter." Again he swung on a fellow man—he couldn't seem to get enough of this new enjoyment, but this fellow man dodged and countered so effectively that Reggie fell in a heap, knocked out.

He came to to find Miss Summers, the manager's stenographer, dashing water in his face. His head was buzzing, whether with the drinks or the blow he didn't know. He struggled to his feet.

"What happened?" he asked. "Who turned off the lights?"

Before he could be answered there was a heavy step behind him and the manager came in.

"Well, well, what's all the excitement?" He noted the water on the floor and on Reggie's face. He saw the chief clerk still dabbling at his nose with a handkerchief.

"What's this, a fight—in the office? Here, here, I won't have fights in the office. Who started this?"

"I did," said Reggie, truculently, and added, in a style of speech he had never tried before, "and if these guys get flossy with me any more I'll start it again."

The manager was a wise man and a quick one. He didn't know what had happened to Reggie, but he knew something had. And he knew the boy was about the best billing clerk the office had ever contained. The only trouble with him had been that he possessed no self-assertiveness, no back bone. And now he suddenly seemed to have developed one. How was the manager—still redolent of his own luncheon cocktail, to know of the two drinks which had played such magic with Reggie?

"Come into the office," the manager commanded, "and let's talk it over."

Reggie followed him into his sanctum, the office boy picked up the overturned waste baskets and chairs, the clerks and stenographers went back to their desks. But they didn't do much work, they were too busy discussing the amazingly sudden development of hornet tendencies in Reggie. The general verdict seemed to be—"licked to a frazzle twice, but a game little guy to stand up to it." And the chief clerk remarked, "I guess we have been leaning on him pretty heavy, haven't we?" when the buzzer on his desk rang and he disappeared into the private office.

"Er, Mr. Williams," said the manager, "I've just been telling Mr. Saunders that he shouldn't have started that row out there. It was very wrong of him. But"—he paused and grinned at Reggie—"he seems to have displayed qualities which, more wisely used, will be helpful in our office. So I'm suggesting that you put him in Barker's place when he leaves the first of the month. I'd have promoted you before, Mr. Saunders," he added, "but I was doubtful of your aggressiveness. I—er—have changed my opinion. The salary will be $10 more a week than you are receiving. Will you have Mr. Saunders instructed in the duties of his new position, Mr. Williams?"

"Certainly, sir," responded the chief clerk. "My congratulations, Mister Saunders." He reached out his big hand with a smile and Reggie took it.

"'Reggie's' all right, now," he said.

It was a week later, at the picnic of the Acme corporation employés, that Mildred Summers and Reggie Saunders sat under the shade of a sheltering oak and talked of many things.

They had progressed rapidly in their friendship since late in the afternoon of Reggie's famous reversion to savagery when Mildred, pausing at his desk on the way out had said, "Reg—Mr. Saunders, I—I've changed my mind. I'll go to the picnic with you if you still want me."

And now Reggie was saying, "Am I still a poor prune?"

"O, did you hear me say that awful thing that afternoon?" breathed Mildred. "I'm sorry, I don't think that. It wasn't true."

"It was true," insisted Reggie, "I was just a poor prune."

"But you aren't now," said Mildred; "you're just the nerviest, bravest, nicest man I——"

"If I didn't like you so much," said Reggie, "it wouldn't be so hard to confess the truth. But I must. Mildred"—he paused to gather courage—"Mildred, I'm still a poor prune—only mostly a stewed one."

"What do you mean?" demanded the girl.

"I mean that without drink, without booze, I haven't any more nerve than I used to have. I mean that all my seeming backbone is due to drink—that unless I imbibe four or five drinks a day I'd be just the same spineless little shrimp I was before."

"But—but that can't be so, you're never drunk—and—there's never liquor on your breath."

"I guess," said Reggie Saunders, "that the lemon peel of this drink takes the smell of the booze away. And as to my not ever being drunk—well, the stuff appears to steady me and make me self-confident—it has no other effect. I can drink horse's neck after horse's neck and——"

"Horse's necks!" exclaimed Mildred with a shriek, "is that all you drink? Why, my dear boy, a horse's neck hasn't anything in it but ginger ale and lemon peel."

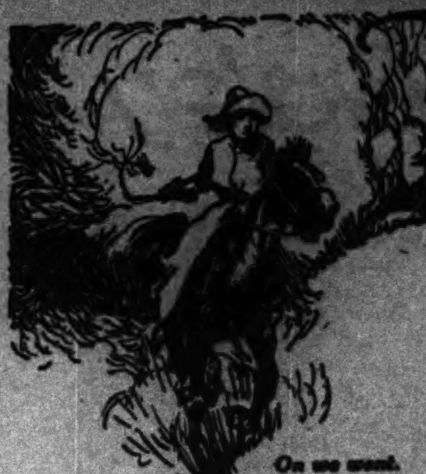
Reggie looked at her in amazement. "I never knew that," he said. "I thought they were desperately bad drinks. They sound that way. Well, where did I get my Dutch courage, then?"

"Out of your brain," said Mildred. "You really wanted to fight—and you thought the drinks would give you the courage. So they did—because you thought they would."

Reggie Saunders pondered a moment over this stupendous fact and then heaved a sigh of relief. "Thank Heaven," he said, "I don't have to drink those things any more. I was certainly getting sick of them."

And with the assurance of a man who has finally come into his own he put his arms around Mildred and kissed her.

The UNGIVEN KISS



On we went.

When He Was Unconscious and In Her Care She Could No Longer Repress Her Desire to Kiss Him, Again and Again.

MY wrist watch pointed to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but in the Cedar Point reserve, which I was approaching, kerosene lamps were already lighted. I could see them twinkling through the dense smoke. Small forest fires had been on the gain now for a week, in spite of the efforts of the rangers to shut them in. Like a sullen, dirty blanket the smoke hung unstirringly above the underbrush, burning one's lungs and eyes and at times hiding the sun.

My yellow streaked pony fretted along uneasily. Once a line of birds flew over my head in a blind, straight direction. I longed for wings to follow them. It seemed so useless to return to my boarding house. Mr. Stephens, my employer, had sent me home early—which meant that more than half of twenty-four hours would elapse before I saw him again.

It was suffocating in my room. As I leaned out of the window the atmosphere made me think of a stealthily crawling gray beast working towards one's throat. Suddenly, with harsh squawks that sounded almost human in the muffled air, my landlady's fowls flew over the picket fence and headed for the pond in the next field.

Toward dusk Mrs. Reynolds knocked and came in.

"Supper's ready," she announced, "but I guess we women'll eat alone tonight. The men are all out fighting the fires."

"They are no worse," I assured her absently.

She looked at me queerly.

"They don't have to get any worse," she remarked. "If congress had made the appropriations for these reserves that we've been asking for they'd have been out long before this—if they'd given us trails and telephones and horses. But I guess Washington is a long way off when it comes to men burning!"

"Men—burning!" I stood stock-still.

"That's what'll happen if there comes up any wind. This reserve is protected, but—what was that?"

Another fowl had squawked.

"Your chickens. They are all going over the fence——"

"To the pond," she interrupted. "Let them. They've more sense than humans. I wouldn't coop them up if I could."

"But these fires have been smoldering for a week," I reminded her. "They can't be so serious as you think."

"Not if no wind comes up," she repeated. "But we haven't had a drop of rain for three months, and the woods are as dry as tinder. It wouldn't take more'n a breath of air to fan this whole mountain into hall. And I know what that'd mean. Chunks of fire hurled through the air, and——"

"Who is out?" I intercepted mechanically.

"Everybody, besides a lot of hired hands from Butte. Working like mad to get done now what should have been done before in daylight and under blue skies."

She rose—a not unpleasant figure in her starched wrapper, with her keen, kind eyes and chiseled, yellow face.

"Better come down and eat now, Miss Ferris," she suggested, turning in the doorway.

"I have had my supper," I said after a moment's reflection. "Miss Stephens made me tea and something hot in her chafing dish. So please don't keep the table standing."

After she had gone I looked out again. The smoke hung as unruffled as ever. Nature lay lumpish, like a sleeping animal, but across the cañon the mountain glowed a sullen red. I experienced a restless feeling. "Everybody," Mrs. Reynolds had said.

Did that mean—— Was that why Mr. Stephens had sent me home earlier than usual?

Then I smiled. So far as work went, Mr. Stephens kept all sorts of hours. And as for Mrs. Reynolds, she was a dear, but an awful fidget. I had known her to get upset if a pan of biscuits proved to be a failure; and once she wasted a whole gallon of molasses because it came over from the store in a can marked "dynamite."

So far as I could see the fires were no worse than they had been yesterday. So I sat back in my chair and began to think of something vastly more important to me than all the fires that had ever crackled through these timber reserves in the northwest.

A brand new, incredible thing had happened. And only seven days ago at that!

I have fallen completely in love with Edgar Stephens. And he has no more idea of this state of idiocy on my part than he has of the gaseous tail of Halley's comet. For which I'm thankful! For if it is true, as I've read, that the comet gets around only once every seventy-six years—and considering that its last near-visit was unpleasantly recent—I may, after all, be doomed to "safety first." What Mr. Stephens finds out seventy years from today I am practically certain will never cause me to blush!

But today—if he knew—I should die of—well, I don't know of what, but the doctors would name it afterward.

Edgar Stephens, in my estimation, is the only flyless ointment novelist on earth. He can't spell anything with more than four letters in it, but he can write like a cotton factory on fire. For two years I have been his stenographer, and in that time we have turned out some dripping red, good work. I say "we" because I can spell, and an up to the minute rhetoric is exactly like a family Bible to me.

I think Mr. Stephens pays me a salary for this hand me down knowledge on my part and for taking his dictation. Sometimes it makes me feel—or it did until lately—like a small English dog that has had its nationality whipped out of it and is timid about attaching itself to Yankee bump and bristle. For everything above chamois gloves knows that women aren't meant to fiddle around forever with commas and capitals and words like "feaze" and "ouija" and other dictionary stickers. Mr. Stephens would spell them "faze" and "weja," and I think he is right.

Six months ago he came out from New York to this timber reserve in Montana. He lives like a savage in a shack that he built himself, with an annex to it for his sister Henrietta.

Henrietta's hobby is clothes. She brought out, among other things, a trunkful of silk stockings and suede shoes and stoned hairpins—beauties! And she spends half her time looking over Sing Fat's coast catalog. From the way she gets herself up you would think she had yet to see 40 and that this wilderness howled with men. It does, but not her kind. When it comes to stories, she is all brain, but in so far as "roughing it" goes she takes to the west exactly like a cat to a market basket with the lid down. She is really enough of a joke to get in a London newspaper—where it is quite probable that she would be taken seriously.

Edgar Stephens adores her. She lets him alone, for one thing. Then they quarrel for hours over his stories. Henrietta can tell from looking at the label on a piece of fur whether it comes from Seattle or Miami. Her judgment on his novels is as hard as nails. And her tart really seems to be for art's sake. I think he likes that about her.

When Mr. Stephens first told me he was coming out here and requested me to have my things ready to accompany him and his sister I rebelled flatly—like a pig on ice. I asked him what was the matter with New York? He told me. When he finished one would have thought that the whole town fronted the river on East Ninth street. Had I believed him I should have welcomed a chance of leaving on the first train, boat, truck, ferry, cab, or surface car out. But I did not believe him. The town was in my bones—down under my skin—and at that time I did not know that he had got in so much as my wrist bone. (Now I would live on the sand side of a pyramid with him!)

"You can get a stenographer out there," I ventured testily.

"Impossible," he replied briefly. He was always brief with me. "I will make it worth your while," he added, balancing a blade of his pocketknife on his finger.

At that I turned on him in a kind of fury. I expressed my mind.

"Then you will go?" he said when I had finished. And to my surprise I replied meekly that I would.

That is why I am now housed in this small room. From the first I hated this room. Its walls are done in pink plaster. They look as sickish as stale claret. There is an infuriating picture of St. Cecilia looking imbecilely upward, and the mantel has a velvet lambrequin which for some reason I have always wanted to claw down. In justice to comfort, though, I must admit that the furniture is pine smelling and clean. And Mrs. Reynolds, if I would allow her, would look after me as if I were a baby sensitive to everything but bright colors and talcum powder!

For nearly the whole of half a year now I have slung astride my horse and reported promptly at 9 o'clock at Mr. Stephens' shack. Henrietta invariably has a cup of coffee for me—with condensed milk in it. And while we drink and gossip (she is a friendly soul and deadly lonesome in this primeval forest) Edgar sits and smokes as silent as an unused room in a blind factory.

But in the six months I've been here I have learned a little of my west. Renwood Hicks, one of the men at the house, taught me to shoot and helped me buy my .32 revolver. He showed me how to hobble my horse and advised me to stick on him even if there were an earthquake! (There seemed to be a succession of them when I first learned to ride.)

But he never told me—how could he? I now reflected as I sniffed in the hot, still air. Besides, nobody tells you the things that happen. Only those that don't.

In town I am sure that I could have kept my head. But out here everything goes to your head. Before these fires started the air was like blue, bubbling champagne. Life was a kind of tingling thrill, deep within you, that kept calling and calling and wanted to be answered. Every breath was like some delicate, stinging intoxicant.

Probably that is why I have lost my senses entirely. For now, I firmly believe, I could play Nero and go on fiddling with my thoughts about Edgar Stephens if this whole reserve should burn! And it all came like a bolt from the blue. Exactly a week ago I dressed as usual in a board stiff shirt waist (the laundries out here adjoin stables and are about as efficient) and walked on time to a dot into Mr. Stephens' barnlike room, with the fire crackling like blazes at one end and Henrietta fine-seaming her brow over Sing Fat's latest price list. Mr. Stephens rose as I came in and after saying "Good morning" moved over to his dictating chair.

That was the signal for Henrietta to leave us. She went into the next room, and I flattened out my pad ready for work. My employer did not at once begin to dictate. I was used to that, so I waited, biting my pencil and staring at him. I dared to, for his eyes were closed.

Then, in a flash, it happened. At first I turned deadly cold; then the most beautiful feeling went over me—as if roses were dropping in my lap or as if the Lord himself had decreed that I should never again be lonesome or useless or unhappy.

I stared and stared. Out in the kitchen I heard Henrietta ripping the lid off a condensed milk can. She seemed like somebody in a dream. I felt as if scales were falling from my eyes. I wanted to stick them back quickly, and yet I wanted them to fall.

Mr. Stephens' face seemed brand new. I had known for two years that it was different, and indifferent, except at those rare times when something I said flashed a smile over it. Now, to my surprise (for although I am unreasonably long haired I am not a poet), I found myself recalling that smile and comparing it to sunlight filtering through a leafy break in a remote wood—gone the moment the leaves shifted again mysteriously close.

This "fine business" no doubt shocked my gray matter back to its usual prosaic arrangement. For immediately I remembered what invariably followed that smile: an impersonal quiet, a curt suggestion almost of dismissal which (and for the first time this puzzled me) had always made my body feel exactly like a lump of quarry stone.

As I sat there in rigid silence suddenly it seemed to me that I hated him—hated him for his blindness, for his tall, gaunt assurance, for his keen face and quiet, fascinating presence. No ups and downs to it, no nervousness, not one taut string in his whole body! It seemed like cruelty to animals that the man I loved should be put together in this never to be taken apart way!

Then the next second I knew that I was as far from hating him as I was from the peaceful sphinx. Instead, without moving an inch, I turned squarely around and began to worship him in the most disastrous, head-on way you ever heard of!

Once he opened his eyes and lighted his pipe. I suppose he had done those identical things two thousand times in my presence, but now when I met his brown, rather small eyes that told me nothing yet hinted at knowledge centuries old that I did not know how to read I wanted so desperately to translate their message that I nearly turned myself inside out, as it were. And from the good, everlasting things his grave face, dark as a rain washed stone, made me think of, it might have been a monument. Not that I favor cemeteries, but somehow, all at once, everything he did and said was holy.

It seemed to me at times that he could look straight through me, even with his eyes closed, chiefly because I wasn't worth enough for anything or anybody to board up solidly. Have you ever felt so little that you would fit into a dog kennel and be lost like "Clementina" in the municipal building? That's the way I kept on feeling then—until he began to dictate.

All this happened only a week ago—like the fires. And for seven solid days I've been fighting against the eternal order of things: that he is a man and I am a woman—which, when you come to think about it, is rather a handful to fight against. But I made out very well. I contrived to be ice and steel and brain and attention, and we turned off some good work.

But tonight? Perhaps it's the smoke, the choky feeling. Besides, I don't have to fight in my room. If I feel like staring at the flabby St. Cecilia and saying: "O, Lord, how long?"—as if women have calendars!—it is my own affair.

And if I swish about this caged room as much as I like—in my slippers, so Mrs. Cowan under me can't report me in the morning—that, too, is my own discomfort. But the more I swish the more I think of only two things: one is that, no matter how it sounds, it's the holy truth that I would rather kiss Edgar Stephens' lean, unconcerned face than go tamely into the whitest, harpiest heaven ever foreshadowed by the prophets and assured by the gospels! Evidently:

"I am no saint, niched in a hollow wall,
For men to worship . . ."

And, secondly, I want—tremendously—Edgar Stephens to take me just once in his arms! Is it unreasonable to want anything once?

Yet I suppose if Mr. Stephens knew of this desire on my part it would scandalize his hair straight (which it is, anyway)! And if some kind of seismic disturbance ever precipitated me into his arms I know it would mean nothing to him at the moment, except a chance to rescue me; for which, under such circumstances, I would never forgive him! But later—afterward . . . I don't believe he has any idea what some alive, halfway at least sensible woman——

I stopped short. Even in the heat I shivered, for a demoniac breeze had sprung up. The papers on my desk rustled. I sprang to the window. The low ruffle of smoke was whipped away and a patch of dark sky showed, as big as a saucer only, with one red burning star in it.

The next instant the mountain across the cañon leaped red, like some live, writhing thing. Streams of fire, driven by the wind, threw flaming brands of pitch, pine, and fir, and from the underbrush oiled spines blazed up, to the sickening crackle of the flames. Slopes of pines and firs splashed down, wasted. The limbs of the trees were covered thick with dried moss, and the fire fed on this, jumping from branch to branch. Up and down the hillsides it went, with the swiftness of an express train.

Shaking and terrified, I closed the window. Mrs. Reynolds' words stood out like flame: "Everybody is out." I thought of Edgar Stephens' shack, dry as pitch. I knew his eastern, idealistic ideas.

The next moment I was jerking into my "waders" and coonskin coat. I filled a bottle with water, saturated a gunny sack, and crammed both into a pigskin bag which

by VIOLA BURHANS

I slipped over my shoulder. Under some lingerie in the bureau drawer I found my revolver, and, grabbing it hastily, sneaked down the back way to the pump in the yard. Here I got as wet as I could, and, drenching a handkerchief, bound it over my mouth and nostrils.

I was going to ride straight into the fire. But as I unhobbled my horse I felt very pig headed—about something.

In another moment Bly was plunking, sure footed, over the bridge across the cañon. The smoke was denser along the mountain road. Once my horse staggered and fell, and I whipped a piece of burning bark off his singed coat. The next second he was up, and on we went, beating the scream of the fire in the distance and dodging pieces of lighted foliage that dropped about us.

We encountered foresters and guards with their crews of men—many of them caged in cañons; others, exhausted and scorched, stumbling through the woods to the nearest lakes and trenches.

It seemed a week before we crisped across the familiar "burn" and came in sight of the cabin, a frail dot of blackness in a hell red world. There was a muddy sizzle of water in the next field, and in this, waist high, her soused hair hanging in strings about her face, I surprised Henrietta. The moment she recognized me she waved her hands imploringly.

"Save me!" she choked, panic stricken.

"Go back!" I shouted above the roar of the fire as she started to come out. "You are safe. Keep wet. Where is Mr. Stephens?"

"Help me out! Tell me where to go. He forced me in here. My hair is burning. I am broiled!"

"Nonsense!" I snarled. It was a real snarl, for I hadn't nearly cooked just to find Henrietta comfortable in a pond. "Water is about the only safe spot tonight. Where is your brother?" I shouted again, wading in and wetting my clothes a second time.

"Gone with Mr. Daniels and a crew of men toward Riverton's mine. If he had had any sense!" she choked—"to leave me alone like this, in this snake hole——"

The wind carried me her last words, for already I had wheeled my horse in the direction of the mine, which I knew was deserted, Thankfulness pricked through me. He was a man, out fighting with the other men!

I spurred on my horse, avoiding as well as I could the burning branches overhead. The hot air bit my lungs, even through the wet cloth over my mouth, and the shaggy hair of my pony was burned crisp in spots.

It was difficult to see more than a few feet away through the heavy smoke, so I came upon Mr. Stephens unexpectedly, and for a second I scarcely recognized him. The flying gravel and dust, together with the heat and smoke, had changed him into another man—not one at the moment to love but to work and die for!

He had soaked some bagging in water and wound it around his suit. I saw that he was guarding the mouth of the mine, into which he had forced the men under his care—sheep lost, rebellious men who, if it had not been for his revolver, would have whined and wandered to their death.

My pony stopped within a foot of him, and I slid down. When he saw me he started in quite an ugly way: "Miss Ferris!" (and from the surprise in his voice I might have been a sherbet in an excellent state of preservation), "what in the name of——" He stopped. "Got any water?" he finished curtly. I replied by dashing over him what little I had.

He seemed to shrink under the splashing—as if I had thrown pearls under his feet, and told him that I expected him to be swine enough to trample upon them. "I meant for yourself. You'll need every drop tonight."

"I am drowning wet. What can I do to help?"

"Nothing. What brought you here?" And without waiting for me to reply, for which I was thankful, he added: "Got your revolver? Good! Go into that tunnel and stay there until this hell is put out. Take your horse with you——" He broke off, for at that moment a blazing branch dropped across the entrance of the mine, and as if it were a signal a man rushed defiantly out: "Damme!" he yipped, "if I'll stay in that hole another minute! What d'you mean, boss? Goin' to kill us like rats in a trap?"

"Get back!" Mr. Stephens forced him with his gun.

"There's no air!" the man raved. "We're breathing ground. Two men have died."

"You'd all die outside. You would breathe fire."

I saw my employer stagger slightly, and I calculated rapidly the number of hours he must have been breathing this fire bitten air. But the half crazed man, seeing his opportunity, fought to pass, and in an instant he was joined by two of his wool headed comrades. Then, for the first time, I realized how the strain and heat had told on Mr. Stephens. He reeled, and his revolver rang down at his feet. With an animal-like choke the men started to leap by, but I covered them with my gun:

"Get back or I'll——"

I did not have to finish. I think they took me for a man. At any rate they took my revolver at its face value. Cowed and stupefied, they crawled inside, filling the air meantime with their piteous shrieks for mercy, for air, for water. By this time Mr. Stephens appeared to be himself again.

"Thanks," he said. "Now, you get inside. The men won't try that a second time. But keep your revolver in sight."

I did not budge. "What about you?" I questioned.

"I'm all right now. Daniels left me in charge of these men. Easy enough job to pull them through if they don't all lose their wits at once."

"But they're half crazy," I asserted. "It may take us both to hold them in check again. And at least I can shoot."

"God knows what brought you out a night like this!" he said, as if to himself.

"He does," I assured him solemnly. And then I added more lightly, "Don't worry about me. I'm as wet as a wharf rat!"

"But the smoke—this infernal heat!"

I forced a laugh. "How do you stand it? How long have you been here?"

"Not long. Five or six hours, perhaps."

Six hours, matching his strength against this howling fire and those caged maniacs. Had I dared I would have forced him into the tunnel.

"Then you won't go inside?" he inquired finally.

"No."

"Not even at the point of my revolver?"

"No. I have a gun myself," I smiled back.

We were silent for a time. Then Mr. Stephens spoke: "The old rangers could look out for themselves if the men under them didn't lose their heads. If they had their way they would go it blind and dash right into this redhot wood. What do you suppose half of them are doing inside that tunnel? Clawing holes in the ground and dropping trinkets of all sorts into them for identification in case they don't pull out. Raw color, eh? We'll have to write——"

He stopped, and again I saw him stagger a little. "Don't talk," I suggested.

The redness and heat continued to sweep on down from the mountain. On the slopes slender trees dropped like jackstraws. Once a chunk of oiled spines fell on Edgar's coat, and I whipped it off. Again he seemed to shrink.

"How did you leave Henrietta?" I inquired quickly, and for the second time that night he smiled:

"In the middle of the pond. And one time I had to get her to go in! She resents this fire personally and was as mad as a hornet because I wouldn't keep her company in the pond."

"What you should have done!" I said bluntly.

He stared at me. I suppose I looked a sight, my cap scorched and my face smutted with smoke and dirt.

"I hope you are not losing your sense of humor," he remarked dryly.

During the next blistering hour we said little. Once or twice a man poked his head out of the mine, but the sight of our revolvers seemed to put a grain of sense into his brain.

Toward midnight—and like the turn of one's hand for quickness—a fresher breeze spanked our faces.

"That means the worst is over," Mr. Stephens said, his voice curiously listless.

We waited another quarter hour, and this time when the men began to crawl out to fill their lungs with the cooler air we let them go. But when I looked at Mr. Stephens I saw with alarm that he was returning my gaze with unseeing eyes. His gun sagged, and the next instant he swayed and fell.

"Get Bly at once!" I called to one of the men. "The smoke—the heat—Mr. Stephens is overcome!"

In a daze Mr. Bennet obeyed me (he was the last of our prisoners to leave), and between us we made out to hoist the only man in the world upon my burned, patient pony, and I started off toward the shack as fast as I could. It was not far, and, thank goodness, Bly instinctively took the right road, so I was free to support Mr. Stephens.

I never before realized that a man hanging over a horse could be so heavy. But I hung on, literally, for dear life. In fact, if my employer had been a camel and it had fallen to me to get him through the eye of a needle I believe I should have made out so well that from that time on rich men would have entered the kingdom of heaven with all the ease and insouciance of old travelers!

We crossed the "burn" finally and came in sight of the pond. Henrietta evidently had not moved an inch in her warm bath. But I could see as I approached that whereas before she had been as mad as a hornet now it would take at least a nestful of them, goaded by Penrod prodding, to describe her state of mind. A ranger, by some sort of miracle, had saved the schack, but I learned later that, beyond advising Henrietta to "stick in the pond," he had paid her no attention whatever. Which had probably accentuated her wrath. Her face, where it wasn't blackened by smoke, looked like a yellow mask.

"Save me!" she screamed again the moment I came in sight. "I shan't stay in this snake hole another second, fire or no fire!"

"You needn't," I assured her. "The worst is over. But your brother——" I stopped my horse.

"What is the matter?" she inquired, wading out on wobbly legs.

"The heat—nothing serious. If you can help me lift him down——"

"He would go!" she wailed, as if washing her hands of the affair.

I nodded.

"Such madness!" she snapped, taking one look at his blackened face. "This is what Edgar gets for leaving me. Such a country! Is he burned?"

"No—yes. Exhausted, I think. He has been baking in an oven for eight hours."

"Nothing, I assure you, to boiling in a pond!" she waved away my words. And at that moment I could have killed her.

"Not the shack," I said, briefly, as we somehow got him off my horse. "He needs air. Bring a pillow."

But I might as well have asked her to fetch out a barrel of flour. For the first time I looked at her closely and noted how really done up she was.

"Go inside and change," I suggested. "Your brother will be all right in a moment." She obeyed with exhausted docility, and I flew ahead for the pillow, some water, and spirits of ammonia. That was about all the shack offered. But I was not alarmed, for while Mr. Stephens was unconscious he was breathing audibly. I fixed him as comfortably as I could, unbuttoned his coat, and laid a wet handkerchief on his face.

The mountain in the distance was still a sullen, angry red, and the slopes across the cañon were burned close as if mowed. But every moment it was growing cooler, and patches of sky began to show, thick with red burning stars.

I laid my face down to Edgar's coat. His heart was beating with steady faintness. That meant that it would be now only a matter of time.

And then I suppose I knew that if I did not quickly look into heaven before he came to consciousness I could go on existing forever in my isolated hell! I shot my lips down to those of my employer and kissed his dear, lean, leathery face as much as I liked—at least, as often as I dared. It was pretty often. In fact, I don't believe that any other man has ever been kissed so often in one minute as I kissed Edgar Stephens!

When I stopped I felt quite faint and wonderful, as if I had somehow sealed myself to a lifetime of waiting for that identical recurrence in eternity. And from then on I vowed to check off every day on the calendar in holy joy that it had gone—somewhere. What was more, the calendar should hang next to the St. Cecilia. So that, even if the weary could not be at rest, the good, at least, should "cease from troubling."

When I finally stood up I felt tingling with some kind of new power. I had never felt that way before. I could not explain it. It was like coming, unannounced and unwelcomed, but yet coming into your kingdom.

To one side, my poor old scorched Bly lay in utter fag. I fetched him some hay. It was a beautiful world to me, for it had given me my memory of paradise. And in that connection I felt that there was necessarily nothing further coming to me on the other side. I did not crave wings, and queer done-for peace. I wanted what I had taken—Edgar Stephens' lips. And unless heaven had kept the mold and would again offer me them——

My thought stopped short, for Mr. Stephens stirred, and instantly I straightened to a sort of dumb, shamefaced life. He opened his eyes and looked directly into mine.

"What have you been doing with me?" he asked, fully conscious.

"I—nothing—I got you home," I stammered, wishing I could take time to claw a hole in the ground big enough to fit into. "You caved in," I added, like some kind of a stricken fool.

"Those men——?"

"Safe. The fire has burned itself out, nearly. You saved them all."

"I!" he laughed. "Where is Henrietta?"

"Getting in dry clothes. She was pretty much done up. She nearly died in that pond."

He laughed again and sat up warily on one elbow.

"Why did you do it?" he asked, jerkily.

"Do what? I didn't," I denied, gradually getting on familiar ground. "Lie down and stop talking. You've had a narrow squeak. You need rest." He sat up at that.

"I'm all right. I made an ass of myself at that trench. I've put you to no end of trouble."

"Not at all," I disclaimed, politely.

"Don't contradict," he contradicted me with that remembered mulishness in his voice. "We easterners have the spirit all right, but there must be some kind of 'yellow' or water in our blood. We haven't the endurance. Except you. Where did you come by your common sense, your steel, your——"

"I must have borrowed them," I interrupted, laughing. "Anyhow, I haven't them, naturally."

"Humph! You came out in this boiling wood——"

"You don't suppose I could sit in my room and see people cook!" I intercepted hotly.

"It didn't seem to bother Henrietta any to stand in the pond and reflect upon the 'fry.'"

"People are different," I advanced.

"Yes; very," he agreed. "Now, tell me why you did it," he returned obstinately.

I looked at him the flash of a second. There was something in his voice that frightened me more than if he had pointed his gun at me. For I knew that once Edgar Stephens wanted to know a thing it was easier to lead a cat away from a cut of porterhouse than to swerve his attention to another subject.

"I have just told you," I lied inadequately, not being bright enough at the moment to gloss over the truth so that he would not recognize it.

After that there seemed to be a pause of three centuries. I fiddled around trying to get Bly to eat more hay. Finally Mr. Stephens spoke:

"I know why you did it."

"Yes?" I returned, trying to assume that bored indifference I had read about. And I twitched like mad at a bramble that had got in Bly's hay.

"You are a blessed little liar!" Mr. Stephens said solemnly. "And I'm another. I've loved you for five months and three days, and I—I was afraid to tell you the truth for fear you'd turn me down!"

I heard those identical, unbelievable words, and I just stood there like a slab of granite. There seemed to be a beautiful singing somewhere in my soul, but I couldn't move or speak. I knew that there were about two million things that anybody with sense would do under the circumstances. But I didn't do them—and somehow I didn't care if they got done or not. I just stared and stared at the most wonderful wonder in the world!"

"Come here," he laughed finally. "I'm scorched, and I probably smell like a chimney, but before Henrietta recovers sufficiently to crimp her hair and make us coffee if you could manage somehow to get in my arms——"

He paused, waiting. It took me about one second to "manage."

Summer Outing and Vacation Suggestions

Would'nt you like to find a nice, cool, quiet spot, where you and yours may really enjoy a true vacation; some region with the mystic touch of the nearby wilderness, where there is freedom for the children to play, yet so close to the city that you may spend each week-end with them in the wonderful Great Outdoors?

You can do it. And it will cost but little. Cottages on the shores of Wisconsin's lakes, comfortable and convenient, but a few hours' ride from Chicago, can be rented cheaply.

The North Woods

Only one night from Chicago is the great, lake-starred North Woods Country, a primitive playground, 'mid lake and pine, yet with artistic cottage abode and social recreation, or secluded tent or log shack and camp fire, as you will. Cool, close, shaded and breeze-swept, this charming summer outing region of limpid lake and slumbery forest covers more than three thousand square miles in northern Wisconsin and Michigan. Resorts are most everywhere. They provide excellent accommodations; you need take only the little things.

Nearby Resorts

And within from one to four hours' ride are the nearby outing spots, offering excellent recreation and social amusement, the best of boating, bathing, fishing and all outdoor sports; ideal resorts for the overnight, week-end or short vacation trip; quickly reached at slight expense and inexpensive at which to stay; yet where the world is quiet, where evenings are cool and refreshing, and where the soft, sweet breath of clovery, meadow, lake floats in at the spacious window of the modern resort, comfortable cottage or up-to-date, two-room tent.

Would you secure a permanent summer home, where you can arrange things just as you wish; where you can build and plan for future years? You can do this also. And now you can do it cheaply.

There are hundreds of tracts of lands in the Wisconsin Forest Reserve on the shores of northern lakes, adjacent to the Chicago & North Western Ry., in which portions can be leased. This available land also includes some beautiful islands. In many parts of the Great North Woods lake front tracts both large and small can be purchased at a cost remarkably low.

The state will lease sites for the erection of tents or temporary structures for from $2.00 to $5.00 a year. They will lease five acres or more for from one to five years, with privilege of renewal for from $10.00 to $50.00 a year, according to location, area, and value, on which summer camps, cottages or clubhouses may be erected.

All these scenes are from this wonderful summer outing region. They are truly typical of what may be seen any summer's day.

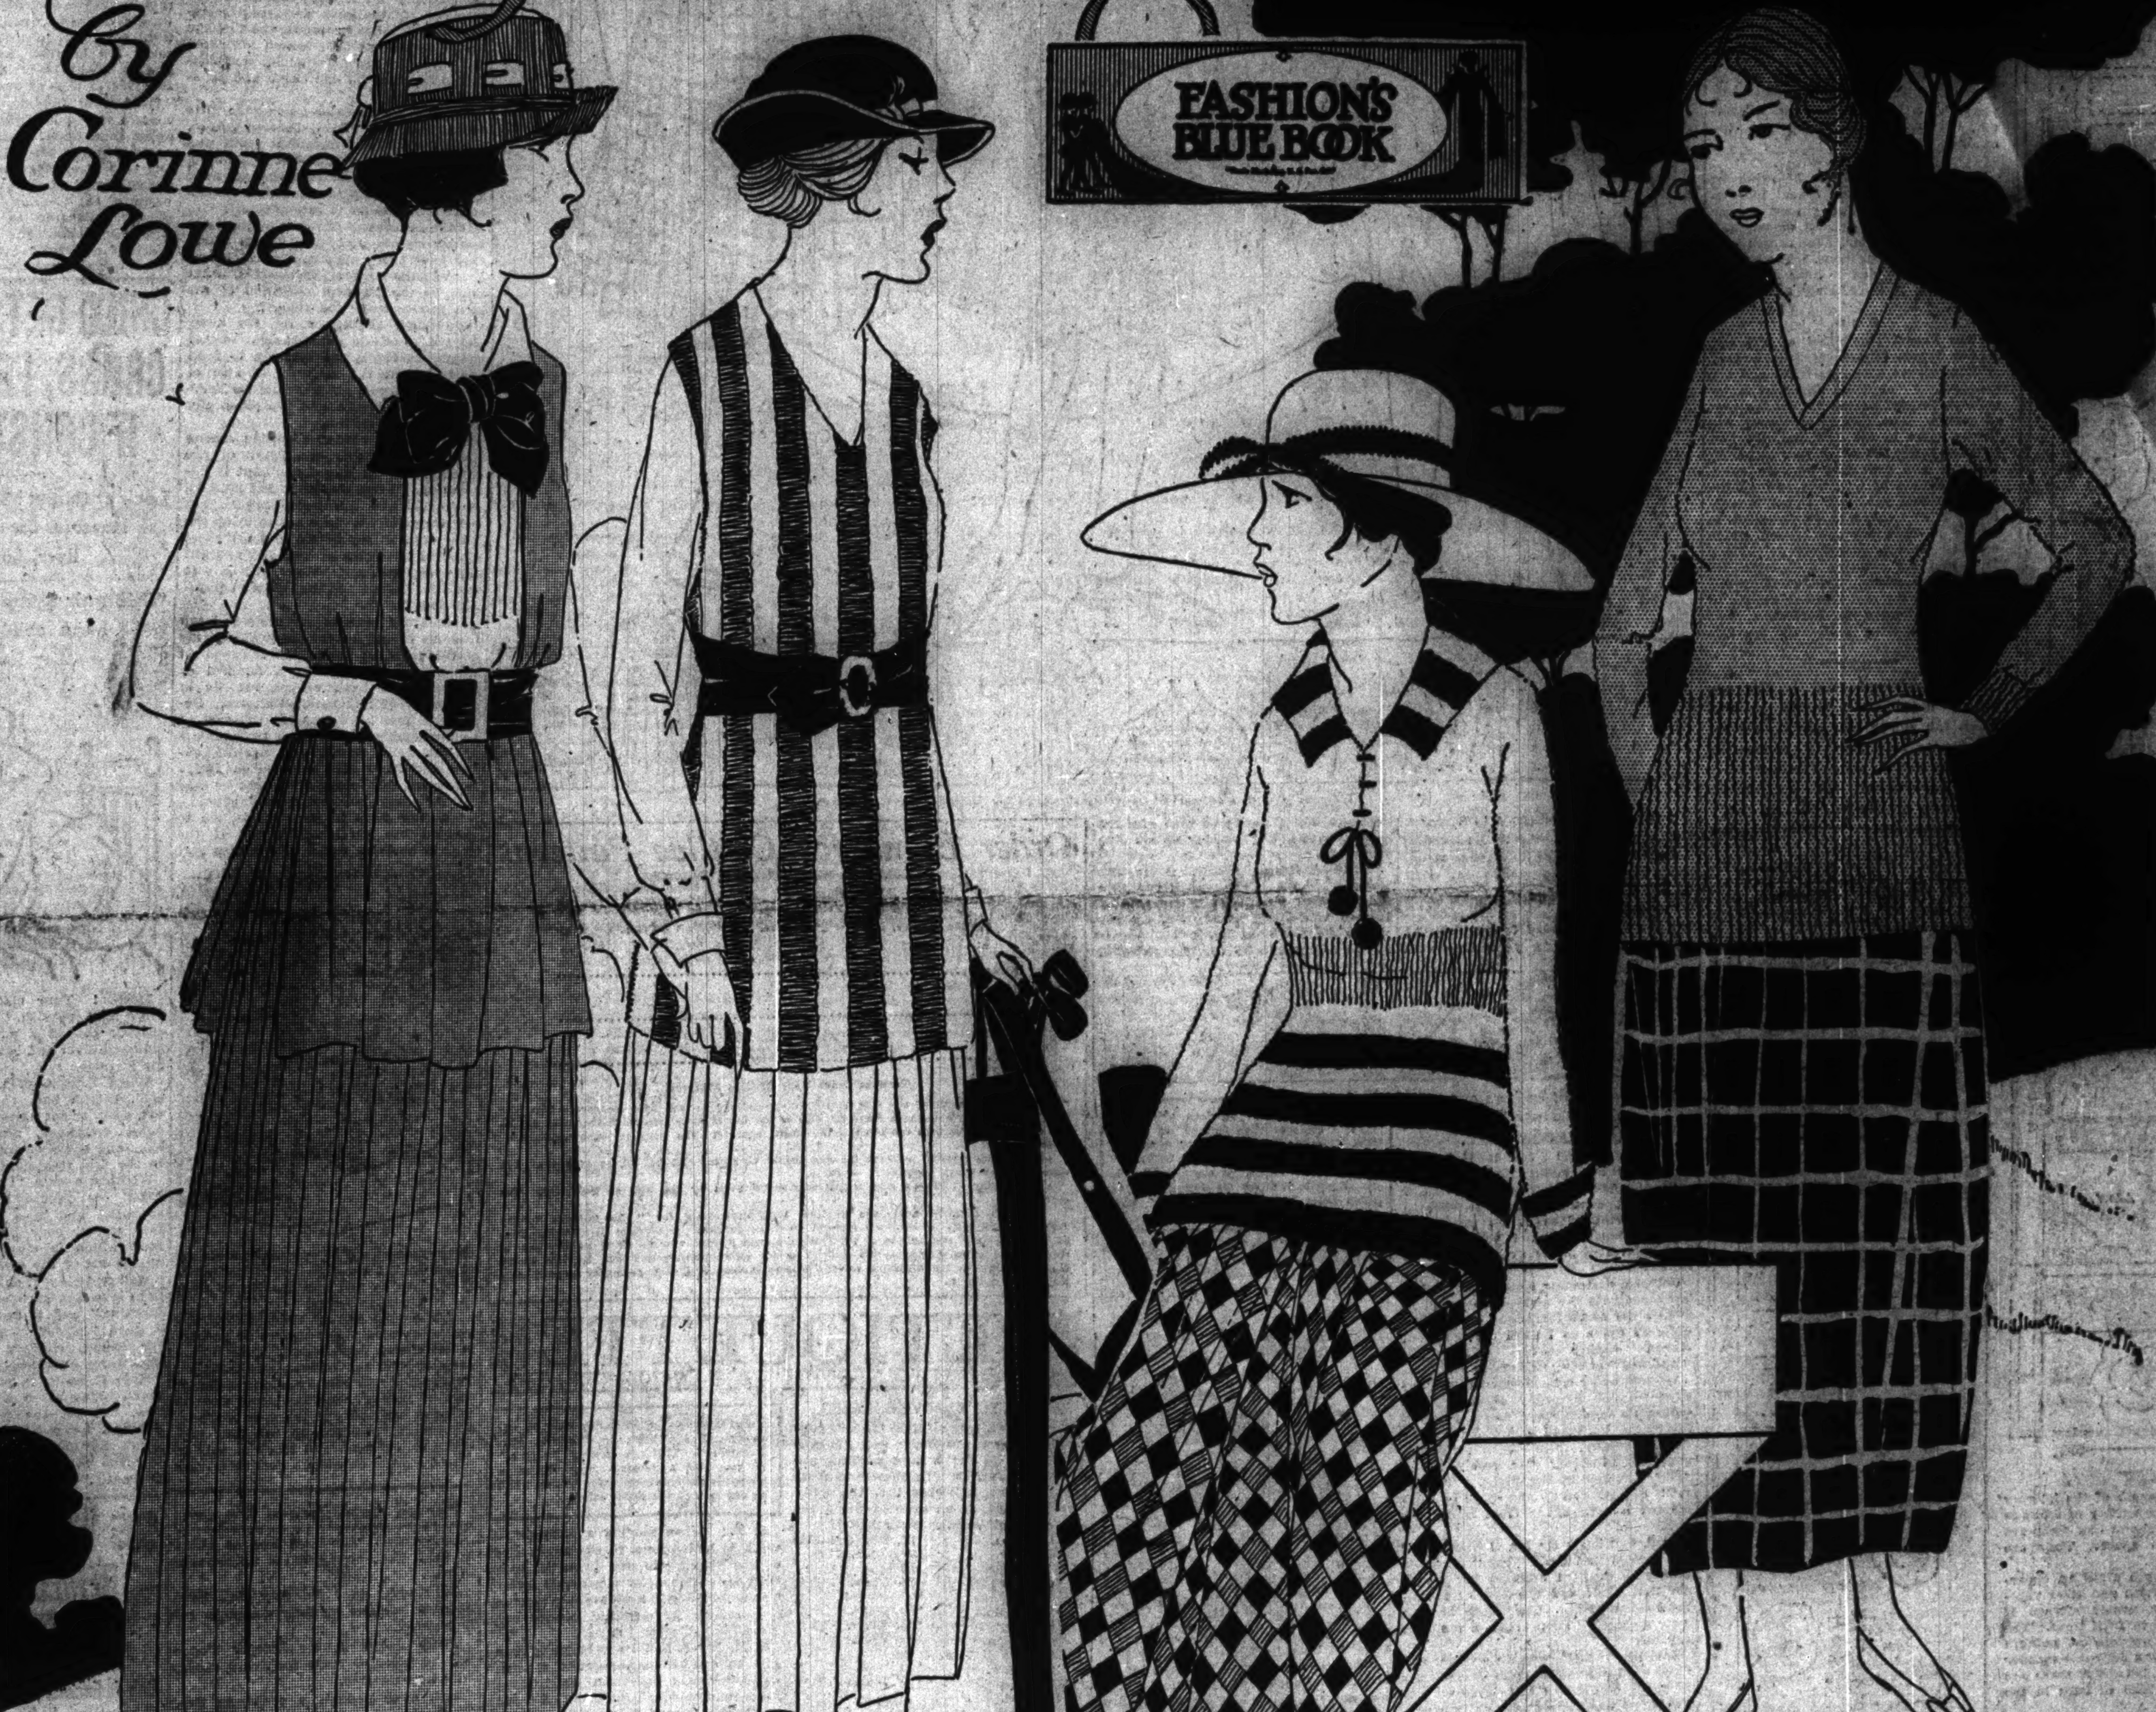
Sport Clothes are Merry and Bright

By Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK



This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Dutch discovered Long Island in 1609. The fashion writers discovered it three hundred years later. And today if you want to know what is buzzing in the way of sweaters, sports hats, and uncanny skirts all you have to do is to drop down on one of those fashionable spots where So-and-So is playing the runner-up in the series of intensive tennis matches.

Well, the principal sport at the fashionable Long Island events seems to have been catching the rainbow. In the evenings we may be plain, gray and puritanical, but in the mornings—O, la, la, la! Beside these festive sweaters and gay skirts Joseph's coat would have looked like a rainy Sunday at a New Jersey seaside boarding house. To the woman whose chief summer recreation is collecting sweaters comes this year the pure ecstasy of the botanist let loose in an Oregon mountain. There is every style and every weave. But the one which has probably been most popular all through May and June is the basque sweater.

What is the basque sweater? It is a sartorial cud left over from the eighties of the last century. Coming down over the head without opening and fitting into the waist, it is exactly like the jerseys worn by the heroines of Mr. Howells' novels. When ladies were holding their arms down at the sides in the precise way instigated by Madame Bernhardt, when the heroine of "Indian Summer" takes back the lover of her girlhood, they went in for that calamity. To know just how much of a calamity it is, let the maiden who spends her odd moments rubbing in cocoa butter on her splintery elbows take a chance on the basque sweater. No, no! little Miss Slender, don't undertake it. It isn't for you any more than it is for the sister who is trying those fatless and unappetizing sauces they give you in an "eat and grow thin" book.

The only woman who can really trust herself with this garment is either the perfect thirty-six or the more perfect thirty-eight. On such an one the sweater pictured at the right of this drawing is ideal. On such an one we found the above costume worn at Long Island. The present example is carried out in amber—one of the most fashionable colors which a sweater can be. It terminates in a rack bottom—that is, the part which comes over the hips is heavily ribbed. It may be mentioned, by the way, that the most of these basque tricks have an arrangement of ribbing—some, for example, accepting a three inch girdle line at the hands of this device. The welts of knitting occurring as they do here over the entire lower section of the blouse are, however, decidedly the least trying to the figure.

AN acid test for the figure is supplied by the popular basque blouse shown at the right. This one is of amber color ribbed at the hem and worn with a skirt of navy velours checked with light blue. Copenhagen blue and gold is a color combination irresistible in the sweater, and the next lady shows in combination with one of the new checked homespun skirts a middy sweater of these shades. The third model is a polo sweater topping off a cotton gabardine skirt, and the last is an imported version of the sleeveless satin sports coat in the fashionable shade of tobacco brown.

This basque sweater pictured is striped in clusters of five—black and light blue— which run right through the ribs of the amber background. With this sweater is worn one of the new, rather tight, rather drawn in about the ankle skirts. It is of navy velours with hair line check in lighter blue.

Vying with the basque sweater in popularity is the middy type pictured right next to this. This one elects to be in that combination so popular this year, gold and Copenhagen blue. With it is worn a skirt of homespun in one of the new astounding plaid effects. A word about these glorified homespuns. They have sprung up this season in the most rhapsodic plaid combinations. Fancy getting rose and gray, orchid and fawn shade, lavender and lovely misty blue—yet all three of such harmonies are sounded in the homespun skirts one has noted at fashionable sports events. No wonder that the plain, tight fitting skirt in this material has been so universally popular with "them!"

The particular model represented here is—to match the sweater—in plaid of Copenhagen and gold.

The third figure from the right has chosen one of the sleeveless polo sweaters finished with a wide patent leather belt to top a box plaited skirt of white cotton gabardine. And then her hat! All spring velours has been the Pied Piper which has led out millinery for sports events. It is the material par excellence and for it some invention of ribbon of cute embroidery in wool has been sought out by millinery engineers. Here raspberry velours takes a banding of light blue grosgrain ribbon and a saucy little black feather stuck through the bow.

Sports skirts of this year are not only plaited—they are com-plaited. Often when the material is thin and supple such devices run from waist to hem. The popular satin and china silk skirts, for instance, nearly all indulge in such plaits. In the last figure a skirt of white silk is so treated and is topped off by a smart sleeveless coat of tobacco brown satin.

And speaking of the sports coat, it is the one successful rival of the sweater. It may be carried out in velvet or cloth, and most particularly in satin. The costume shown could, for instance, be easily transposed into one where a white china silk skirt was topped by a black velvet coat. A charming feature of this coat is the slashing at the sides which permits a show of skirt material and a flow of cool air. A hat of old blue crepe run through with brown ribbon completes the costume.

THE SUCCESSFUL HOME GARDEN

PLANNING A 30 FOOT LOT.

IN residence districts where building restrictions prevail the width of the lot is generally thirty feet, varying usually between 120 and 150 feet in length. This five foot increase gives but little opportunity to elaborate on the plan of the twenty-five foot lot, except in the construction of the house. It was thought advisable, therefore, to show how an increased length of the lot may be utilized if greater variety of fruits is desired. The plan shows how trees are alternated to gain space. They are about 16½ feet apart.

LOT 30X150 FEET

The increased length gives an opportunity to grow potatoes and other vegetables suitable for winter storage if those are preferred to fruit trees. The vegetable garden is somewhat reduced and planned to show a desirable manner of locating various berries if there are children or others fond of such in the family.

The space between the sidewalk and the south fence is again planted to tomatoes to accentuate the fact that the one foot strip there can be utilized to gain space in the garden proper. Of course, the fence is presumed to be of wire, to give the plants the necessary sun.

The division of poultry house and runs is again indicated, as that is the best manner of keeping the flock healthy and contented.

The front has the porch at one side that we may show a different arrangement there, suitable also for the twenty-five foot lot, except that the number of shrubs must be reduced for the smaller lot.

The numerals indicate the following planting plan:

1. Spira [spiræa Vanhouttei].
2. Mock orange [Philadelphus grandiflorus].
4. Golden bell [Forsythia Fortunei].
5. Weigelia [Doervilla rosea].
6. Weigelia [Diervilla Eva Radke].
7. Vases in accordance with article No. 89, June 3.

In the outer corner a group of hardy yellow day lilies is planned, interplanted with bluebells. This showy bed is not to be advised where neighborhood pride and respect for the property of others is of a low order. They are as follows:

8. Hemerocallis Sieboldii.
9. Hemerocallis aurantiaca.
10. Hemerocallis Thunbergii.
11. Hemericallis Florham.
12. Campanula Brossekii. The bed will be in bloom from June to August.

Again only one tree is shown on the parkway, as it is assumed that adjacent lots also have their plantations; if not, two may be planted, each five feet from the lot line. Elm is advised, as it is preeminently the finest, healthiest, and most satisfactory shade and avenue tree for this vicinity.

In case the lot is only 125 feet long it is advised to plan the house as short as possible, in order to gain all possible space for a homelike, enjoyable yard. Better build one and one-half or two stories high than to have a one story house sprawling over most of the limited space. True, climbing stairs is no recreation, but if only bedrooms are on the upper floor, the little exertion will be more than offset by the greater pleasure and use to be derived from the yard.

Don't attempt elaborate landscape gardening on a twenty-five or thirty foot lot, and deprive the household of fresh vegetables and eggs, fruit and flowers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—1. Will sugar beets live if transplanted at thinning out? 2. What effect will planting sweet corn and popcorn in adjoining beds have on either? 3. Can Swiss chard be canned?—R. D. W.

Ans.—1. Yes, and grow the larger for it. Crop the leaves a little and transplant on a cloudy day or evening, watering well afterward. 2. No effect on either in size or quality of ears for table use or popping; but they will be cross pollinated and unfit for subsequent planting. 3. Yes. Write Jane Eddington, (TRIBUNE Cook Book) for the method.

Dr. F. P. B. advises the following for cabbage worms and other insects: "Take equal parts of ground pepper and flour, put in pepper shaker and shake on cabbage, etc. Worms will look for new camping grounds." The garden editor would be glad to hear from any that try it. It is certainly a harmless remedy.

Giant Pascal [the finest of all] and Winter Queen [the favorite of market gardeners] are green varieties and are blanched by "earthing up," that is, by banking the soil against all but the tops of plants. The former is spaced five inches apart in the row and five feet between rows; the latter, four inches in the row and four feet between rows. Either admits of only one row on the four foot back yard bed. In soil blanching it is customary to plant onions in spring in rows one foot apart, which are harvested progressively as the soil is needed for planting and, later, for banking the celery. The "earthing up" begins with the cool weather growth of the plants, early in September, two inches at a time, until only the tops protrude.

The subjoined map is the one which was inadvertently omitted from the paper last week. By referring to this map in connection with the article printed last week in this department the suggestions given may clearly be followed out.

THE RIBBON GIRL.

SHE stood just 5 feet 1. Hair with a glint of gold, eyes large, blue, and questioning, and face—well, I can't deny it was just covered with freckles. However, I discovered that affliction recently. It was her smile that captivated all who came within its radiance.

Between customers I often caught her looking across the aisle—she seemed to admire the men's furnishing department quite as much as I liked the beautiful ribbon display over which she "queened" at the price of $10 per.

We had never spoken—except with our eyes—till one Saturday night, when I looked up suddenly and saw her standing by me, her small face white, holding her little hand from which dripped a small bit of blood. "O, can you help me?" She held up her finger. "O, hurry!" She jumped up and down as I extracted a long sliver from under the nail.

Well, that broke the ice. I wondered if she noticed that I held that little finger unusually long. I escorted her to the car that night, and the Sunday following I called on her. One month later we were engaged. Then began a hunt for a home.

She, like myself, was an orphan, and I was glad to know she was domestically inclined. The $200 I had saved by frugal living was turned over as first payment on our home to be—"the dearest bungalow built for two," so she thought. The future held great hopes. Each night after work we spent fixing up the grounds and making plans about the interior. She had insisted that she invest her saved earnings of $150 in furniture, so now the house looked quite furnished.

The wedding day was set. How I longed to free her from the long, tedious hours behind a counter—it was constantly in my mind and I dreamed about it nights. It was now four weeks since we had begun to cherish the possession of a real home when suddenly, as a thunder clap from a clear sky, I was notified on a Saturday night that I was "canned." Ye gods! Not a cent in the bank—but four weeks to our wedding day and with only $25 in my jeans.

"This is an awful mess," I tried to explain to the little "ribbon girl," "and we shall have to postpone the event."

"Never," she stoutly affirmed. "It's bad luck; besides, you need to be married now more than ever before. Instead of postponing it, let's make it two weeks from now. We can both live so much cheaper. My ten measly bones per are going to help you now while you need assistance. Why, it may be the only real chance I shall ever have of supporting you."

Well, I just had to submit. What's a fellow to do when two soft arms get him right under his Adam's apple and the sweetest voice ever breathes "I love you" in his ear?

All this happened two months ago. The little "ribbon girl" is the happy mistress of the pretty bungalow and I have landed the best job I ever held, and I'm thanking Providence for giving her to me two weeks before schedule—even if she had to buy the beans. E. M.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

> Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

Pushing the Plugs.

My one great ambition when I was a little girl was to have children of my own and go around pushing a baby cab. Well, I am a telephone operator and I am pushing plugs instead. E. S.

She's Realizing Hers.

When I was a child about 10 or 11 years old my ambition was to be a school teacher. I would often dress in my older sister's long skirts, place the dining room chairs in order, and put a pillow in each chair, pretending that they were the pupils. Many times when the air was filled with dust it was caused by punishing my disobedient pupils. My childhood ambition has come true, for I am now teaching the fourth grade in the public schools. However, I refrain from the brutal punishment in which I indulged. Miss E. K.

C. B.: In acknowledging the announcement of an engagement it is customary to write a letter to the young woman, and, if possible, to send her a small gift. An engagement present is not the same as a wedding present, the former being sent at the time of the announcing of the engagement, and the latter at the time of the marriage.

L. O.: At a morning wedding it is correct to wear either a simple silk dress or a tailored suit with hat to match. The maid of honor precedes the bride to the altar and stands beside her during the ceremony. Her duties are to hold the bride's bouquet, to take her glove if she is wearing gloves, and to turn back her veil for her.

M. McN.: It is correct to address the outer envelope of a commencement invitation to either "Mr. and Mrs. John M. Smith" or to "Mrs. John M. Smith." In either case the inside envelope should be addressed to "Mr and Mrs. Smith" and the street and city omitted. It would do no harm to write "R. S. V. P." in one corner of the envelope addressed to your cousin abroad, but it would probably do no good either, since your letters have not been answered. Doubtless the foreign mail from his secteur has been held up. One's personal cards need not be engraved in the same type used for the invitation. In the case of your uncle, aunt, and cousin, it would be correct to address the invitation to "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" and below it "Miss Mary Brown." Separate invitations may be sent if preferred.

MRS. J. P.: It is quite a la mode to ask one's friends to come to afternoon tea and to bring Red Cross sewing or knitting. Tea and sandwiches would be sufficient to serve.

A. T.: When sending a business letter it is better form to use an envelope of the regulation size [a little larger than an envelope for a personal letter]. The envelope with a square flap is usually reserved for personal letters only.

G. H. P.: It is not proper for a young girl to attend unchaperoned a man's commencement festivities which are of more than one day's duration. Although no real harm ensued, in the "eyes of the world" she would have placed both herself and him in an unenviable position.

* *

B. S.: At a simple home wedding taking place before noon the bridegroom can wear a dark business suit, especially if the bride is being married in her traveling suit.

Beauty Cream from Lemons

How to use juice of lemons to clear, soften and whiten the face, neck, arms and hands.

Here is told how to prepare an inexpensive lemon lotion which can be used to bring back to any skin the sweet freshness of which it has been robbed by trying atmospheric conditions. Windchafe, roughness, tan, and redness are warded off and those telltale lines of care or of age are softened away.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan, and is the ideal skin softener.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from the grocer and make a quarter pint of this fragrant lemon lotion and massage it into the face, neck, arms, and hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

LACK PHYSICAL FITNESS.

IN an article the other day a physician described the low physical standard among the young women students in a large institution of learning. These girls were from representative families and under the tutelage of an institution that looked after the general health of the students and contained facilities for exercising and physical training.

The number of cases among the girls of flat feet, poor vision, diseased tonsils, crooked back, and imperfect teeth was surprisingly high, and the examining physical director and his assistants were amazed at the fact that the girls seemed entirely indifferent to these defects.

If the average of physical ability is so low among the girls of a school where they have every opportunity and incentive to take care of themselves, what must be the physical condition of the girls in the shops and offices?

Examining physicians for the army and navy, to the astonishment of the country at large, are bringing to light the fact that the majority of men of military age who are applying for service with the government are physically unfit for that service.

This is an appalling condition among the so-called flower and youth of the country, and the knowledge of it is humiliating. It is a condition that must be overcome, and can be overcome, but only by an effort. In order to bring the man power of the nation to the highest standard of efficiency every boy and girl and every man and woman will have to make an individual effort toward physical fitness.

It is a sad blow to our pride to learn that the reputation for physical prowess of the youth of the nation is based on the accomplishments of a handful of athletes who have broken records in a number of international sports. Because a few have excelled the rest of us have taken for granted that we are an unusually robust and healthy nation and have gone our various ways carelessly with never a thought or care for individual physical improvement.

This low physical standard is due to nothing but carelessness, and if the girls in business would only realise that their greatest aid to success is a strong constitution I am sure they would bestir themselves to add good health to their list of business assets.

In order to be an efficient business girl or to attain any degree of success in her chosen profession it is absolutely necessary for her to keep physically fit. This she can do only by taking constant care of herself; devoting some time to exercise, especially in the open air; giving careful attention to her diet; taking sufficient rest, and sleeping only in a well ventilated room. Particular care should be given to the weak spot in her constitution, whether it is the eyes, throat, heart, or digestive organs.

I have known girls whose work required a heavy strain on their eyes to struggle from year to year under a bad lighting system and declare that, although they were half blind from their work and probably needed specific attention, they put off having their eyes cared for because they were afraid glasses might be prescribed for them—and glasses were so disfiguring.

Disfiguring indeed! And they were content to acquire dark circles and deep, aging lines under their eyes, but were squeamish about wearing glasses to protect and strengthen their sight. It is the silliest of vanities that makes a girl hesitate at covering her eyes with glasses. Because they might detract from her appearance she is willing to sacrifice or weaken the most precious of all her possessions—sight.

CHILD GETS SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruit laxative for stomach, liver, bowels.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm children and they love it.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to affect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

PRESERVATION AND CONSERVATION.

HEAT and cold are the two natural preservatives. The evils accompanying cold storage do not discount the fact that it is one of the great modern benefits in food commerce and conservation. Dirty foods put into cold storage remain dirty and deteriorate with great rapidity when taken out, but this is not the fault of cold storage. Under ideal conditions it is an ideal method of preserving foods.

When in doubt as to how to preserve foods that grow rancid set them in a clean and cool place and they will keep within reason. Some molds work at low temperatures, therefore such foods must be covered carefully or protected from spore bearing air. Mention has been made here of cotton batting for straining the ar, but it must be protected from molds. It strains out bacteria, but molds work through it.

By heat we can sterilize dirt as well as dry out the water, reducing bulk and preserving watery foods thus. Meats and fish are cured with heat and smoke, without or with little salt.

Just now among its multiple activities the government is sending out directions for preserving vegetables by fermentation. In a preprint it says: "A circular describing the fermentation method is now available for distribution from the states relation service of the department of agriculture." In the preprint it gives the method of preserving cucumbers, and then says that you can use the same method for beets and string beans. It also promises a method better than the ordinary process for making sauerkraut.

To me this work of putting up foods in brine is the least worth while of anything that is being recommended. There has been some talk about a sort of silage method in which, as I understand, salt and vinegar would not be used. There ought to be possibilities in this method, although the alcohols developed in fermentation, which may go on to vinegars, have no high credit with the world today.

One of the soundest of the old books on foods gives reasons why salt is a bad thing for food preservation that are perfectly valid today. The food under discussion is meat, but it is my belief that salted cucumbers and other watery vegetables have no place in the diet for some of the same reasons that salt meat is one of the last resorts, since much of it without fresh vegetables has always resulted in scurvy and other more insidious diseases. Here are the statements in question:

The salt extracts a considerable quantity of the juices and by so much lessens the nutritive value and natural flavor of the meat, and as these extracted juices are obtained only when mixed with the salt, they cannot be used as food. The flesh is harder than cooked fresh meat, in proportion to the strength of the saline solution and the duration of the application.

This is not the whole charge against it, but salt also hardens the fiber or cellulose of vegetables in the same way, while withdrawing the water in which their precious minerals are dissolved. Besides having this negative result salt is positively bad in any quantity. Most people use about four times too much in foods prepared directly for the table. To quote from the same source: "The introduction into the system of so much salt is prejudicial to health, whether by lessening the relish for food or inducing a craving for fluids, indigestion, or skin disease." Later authorities give a highly reasonable explanation of why salt is exceedingly wearing to the kidneys.

If a great deal of salt is bad, any saltpeter is worse in its effects on foods and on human tissues. In fact, all artificial preservatives should be especially avoided at this time when possibilities of restricting our diet may become a reality.

Some friends sojourning in North Carolina write home about a way of preserving apples in that section with sulphur, so that they taste like fresh. Sulphuric acid, though not bottled for commercial purposes, is not a thing I want mixed with what I eat, even if diluted to only one part in a hundred thousand. The south has been rather addicted to the use of all sorts of preservatives. This may not have any connection with the fact that more black crêpe is worn there than in other sections of our country, and then again it may. Saving labor in this fashion is like deadening pain with morphine.

The United States department of agriculture has had to protect itself by sending out the following:

"There is no cornmeal and water preservative for vegetables. A report to this effect recently published and credited to the United States department of agriculture probably originated from the fact that a mixture of cornmeal and water has been used by a department specialist to start the lactic acid ferment in cull potatoes put up for feed in the form of silage. This starch has been used in the case of vegetables fermented for food, but it is not the preserving ferment, the specialists explain; it only starts the ferment. It is not recommended for household use, either. The same purpose is better served, as recently announced in connection with the fermentation process of preserving vegetables for food, by the addition of a small amount of vinegar, which keeps injurious bacteria down while the natural lactic acid ferment starts.

The present floods of literature on the subject of preserving foods are safer and sounder than that on conserving foods. Some of these people who write about saving leftovers evidently start out by saying to themselves, and all who will listen to them: "Let's make believe."

Real true conservation is best served by not having any leftovers, not having any core as the small boy said of 1 apple. To have as many as eleven, as presented in a manuscript not long ago submitted, is absurd. In fact, it is nearly impossible. To call an apple or an orange a leftover seems equally absurd to me.

A magazine for girls recently sent out a digest of one of its articles, for newspaper attention, containing eighteen suggestions "for patriotic table manners." It urged the use of spaghetti and macaroni as a substitute for potatoes. Some other people preparing an inexpensive recipe for a prize included macaroni at 10 cents a pound, without knowing evidently that the price of macaroni had advanced as much as that of other wheat products. One of the best macaronis now costs 14 cents for ten ounces, although the same sold for 10 cents from the time it appeared on the market until recently. The old price is printed on some wheat products' wrappers, while these are selling for at least one-third more.

Sixth grade girls find no difficulty in understanding food units or calories. Knowing these one can safely follow eighteen or even more suggestions about behaving in the right way towards foods, but to say "Do not have many things to eat at a meal" might be the worst sort of advice to one who knew nothing about how much different foods differ in value. One dish meals, if that dish contains all the food elements, may be one of the most satisfactory and beneficial, while a ten dish meal in which all these elements were not present would leave the eater ill fed.

In other words, it seems to me that we are wasting a great deal of white paper in giving endless bits of unspecific advice about conserving our food supplies. Year after year people have been urged in this column to send for bulletin No. 28 of the United States department of agriculture, on "The Chemical Composition of American Food Materials." I think the department is preparing to send out great numbers of this bulletin, but it always is obtainable for 10 cents by addressing the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C. Anybody intelligent enough to read a railroad timetable can learn how to use this. It is only by using something of this sort that you can know whether you are wasting half a food unit when you throw away a tablespoon of one food while you waste 100 units when you throw away or let spoil a tablespoon of another.

Superfluous Hair May be Removed says

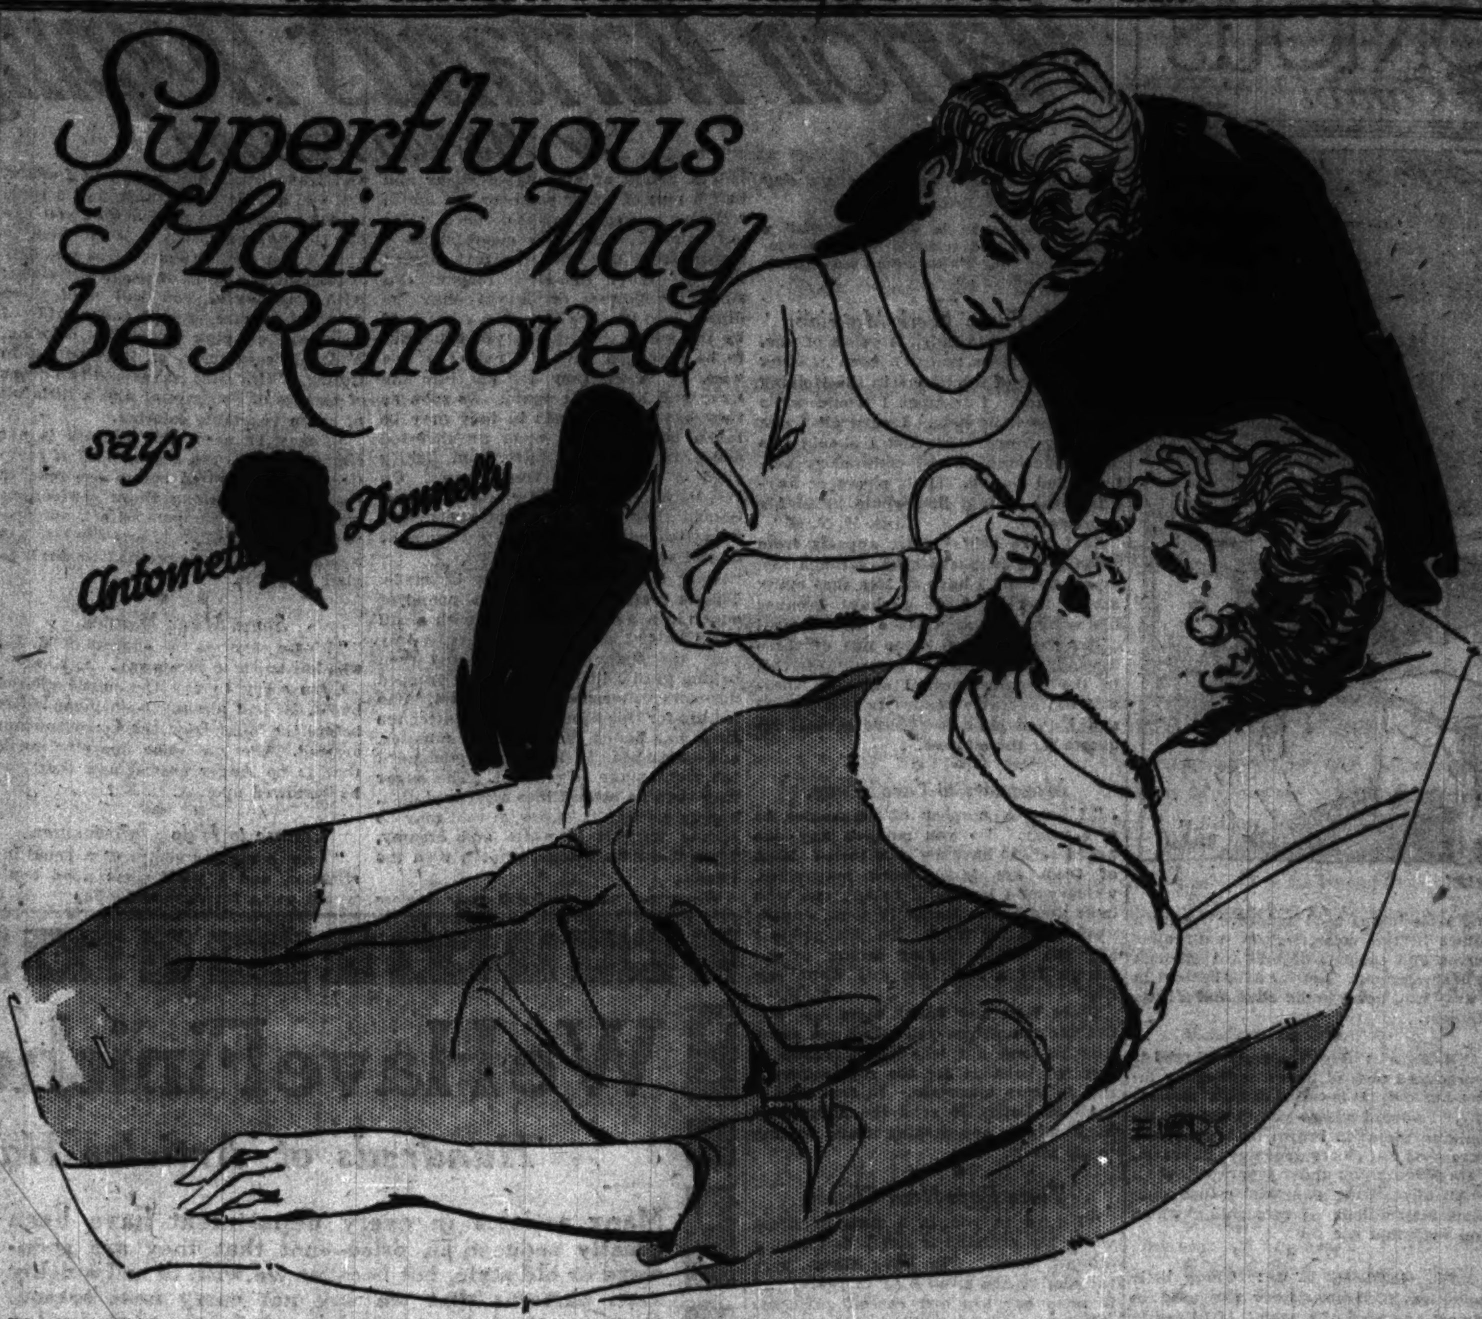
Antoinette Donnelly



The Upper Lip and Chin Harbor These Superfluous Hairs, Which May Be Removed by the Electric Needle in the Hands of an Expert.

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly series telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

YOU'VE undoubtedly heard that old joke on our sex that the reason men are bald is from overwork of the brain and by the same analysis women haven't mustaches because of overwork of the jaw!

How about the woman with the downy growth on her upper lip? Is she lazy jawed? Or is this just another proof of "nothing to man's little jokes against us wimmin"?

At any rate, superfluous hair on the upper lip causes much unhappiness among our feminine ranks. Between the eyes, too, it settles stubbornly and threateningly. On the arms and legs it grows discomfortingly ofttimes. And down the sides of feminine cheeks it sometimes assumes an appearance like male sideburns.

The only satisfactory method for removing these superfluous hairs permanently is the slow but sure one by electrolysis. By this method an expert operator can remove any number of large hairs permanently without leaving any scars or causing much pain to the average skin. There are skins, however, so tender that treatment by electrolysis is out of the question entirely. The charge for the work is around $5 an hour—sometimes a little more and sometimes a little less—but as a general thing that is the standard price for the work in beauty parlors. Half hour sessions are generally recommended because the work is trying to both operator and patient.

Because of the expense and the length of time involved in the removal of superfluous hair by electrolysis it is easy to see that it would be foolish to consider it in connection with legs, arms, or in the armpits.

The hair on the arms is usually not heavy enough to demand a depilatory. Peroxide of hydrogen may be used in milder cases. It bleaches the hair. It should be diluted with equal parts of water and the strength gradually increased. You apply it by using a piece of cotton wet with the solution. This procedure must be repeated daily for a while before the desired result is obtained. The hair gets lighter and lighter in color and finally disappears. Of course the hair follicles are not destroyed, so that the hair will grow again, necessitating another course of treatment. A stronger solution for cases somewhat more stubborn is equal parts of peroxide and ammonia. This will bleach the hair at first and after many applications tends to rot it.

If the hair is extremely heavy, and I have seen cases where it amounted to a disfigurement of the arms, a depilatory may be used, if the cost of electrolysis is out of the question.

One of the best depilatories consists of two drams of sulphide of barium and three drams each of oxide of zinc and starch. Mix these well and keep tightly corked. At the time of the application sufficient water is added to make a paste, which is thickly spread over the part and allowed to remain on for a minute or two. It is then washed off and a little soothing ointment or cold cream is applied. A variable amount of redness follows. The object is to allow the paste to remain on long enough to destroy the hair and at the same time to limit the resulting irritation. Ordinarily a slight burning or sensation of warmth is an indication that the paste has been on long enough. The application is repeated as soon as the hair reappears—about every two or three weeks.

It is really a matter of taste whether the razor used by many women on the armpit hair is more or less preferable to the depilatory. It is true, however, that the use of the razor involves more frequent treatment than the other.

Now, about the electrolysis treatment. The upper lip and the chin and under the chin seem to be the harbor for most of this excess hair growth.

A great many women have a slight growth that is scarcely noticeable to other than their own penetrating eyes. Unless it is plainly visible and enough of a disfigurement to make you self-conscious and unhappy about it, let it alone, being careful to use no ointment on your face containing either vaseline or lanolin, particularly the former, as they are both apt to produce a growth of hair. There are greaseless cold creams for cleansing purposes.

If you have the work done be sure you have an expert do it. The only danger in connection with the work of the electric needle for this purpose is incompetent work. If the work is done expertly there is no danger of scars, but if it isn't there is danger of that and more!

The number of hairs that can be removed in a half hour's or an hour's time cannot be estimated or guaranteed. The quality and sensitiveness of the skin determine this. Some skins are most receptive to the electric needle and others are leathery and difficult. It isn't a painful performance if the treatments are not long, unless, as I said before, your skin is extremely tender. The needle used has a tiny bulb shape on the end instead of a point and it drops right into hair follicle and kills the hair root.

The electric needle when used to remove the hairs on a mole is made to serve the purpose of removing the mole at the same time. The mole responds to treatment successfully if an expert does it. Formulas containing acids are not recommended for this work, for scars invariably remain, while the mole removed by the electric needle in the hands of an expert may leave no record of its former whereabouts.

The hair at the back of the neck, too, may be given the electrolysis treatment successfully. A successful theatrical star who suffered from an ugly hair line growing far down the back of her neck went daily for four months, giving up an hour every day, for this treatment, and she claims her patience and the back of her neck were amply rewarded. This just illustrates the patience necessary in many cases of superfluous hair.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

GRACE: WHY NOT TAKE AN AFTernoon off and make it your business to arrive at a becoming style of hairdress? Try a half dozen different ways of doing the hair or, if you can afford it, go to a hair dresser and have her do this for you. It's worth the time and the money because by a hair dress you can make yourself either a good looking person or a homely one.

L. K.: PULLING THE SUPERFLUous hair from the eyebrows with tweesers is not of permanent relief. It depends on the tenderness of the skin as to the number of hairs that may be pulled out at one time. With some skins the work is extremely slow. This applies too to the use of the electric needle, which is the only sure, permanent remedial process. But, let me warn you, that work should be done by an expert! Let me send you the manicuring instructions in return for a stamped, addressed envelope, as they are too long to print here.

SKINNAY: No wonder you're afraid of a "stiff breeze blowing you into the lake." You should weigh at least 125, instead of 93. But then your illness, of course, dragged you down terribly. The best thing you could do would be to go into the country for the summer. Why hesitate when you have such an alluring place to visit? Go and drink milk and lots of it. Stay outdoors as much as you can. Help with the work in the garden. That will keep your mind off yourself. Here's hoping you come back with roses in your cheeks and twenty or thirty pounds to your credit. Yes, I have shampoo for blond hair; also a good tonic for thin, falling hair. Send me stamped, addressed envelope, won't you?

ANNETTE: IT IS TOO EARLY YET to go swimming unless you are unusually hardened by cold baths. Any one lacking vitality to develop proper reaction would find it dangerous to make the plunge before the waters have been warmed considerably more than they are now. It is the best exercise in the world under right conditions, but in your sister's precarious condition it would be foolhardy for her to attempt any such thing.

* *

MRS. H.: I DON'T KNOW ANYthing about the electrolysis operator who did your work. I never heard of her before. But it seems to me the work must have been done badly to have a return of the superfluous hairs so soon. In this work, it were infinitely better not to have it done at all than have it done by one who is not thoroughly expert. You must send me stamped, addressed envelope for the instructions on oily hair treatment. It does contain a tonic and a lot of information you will find valuable.

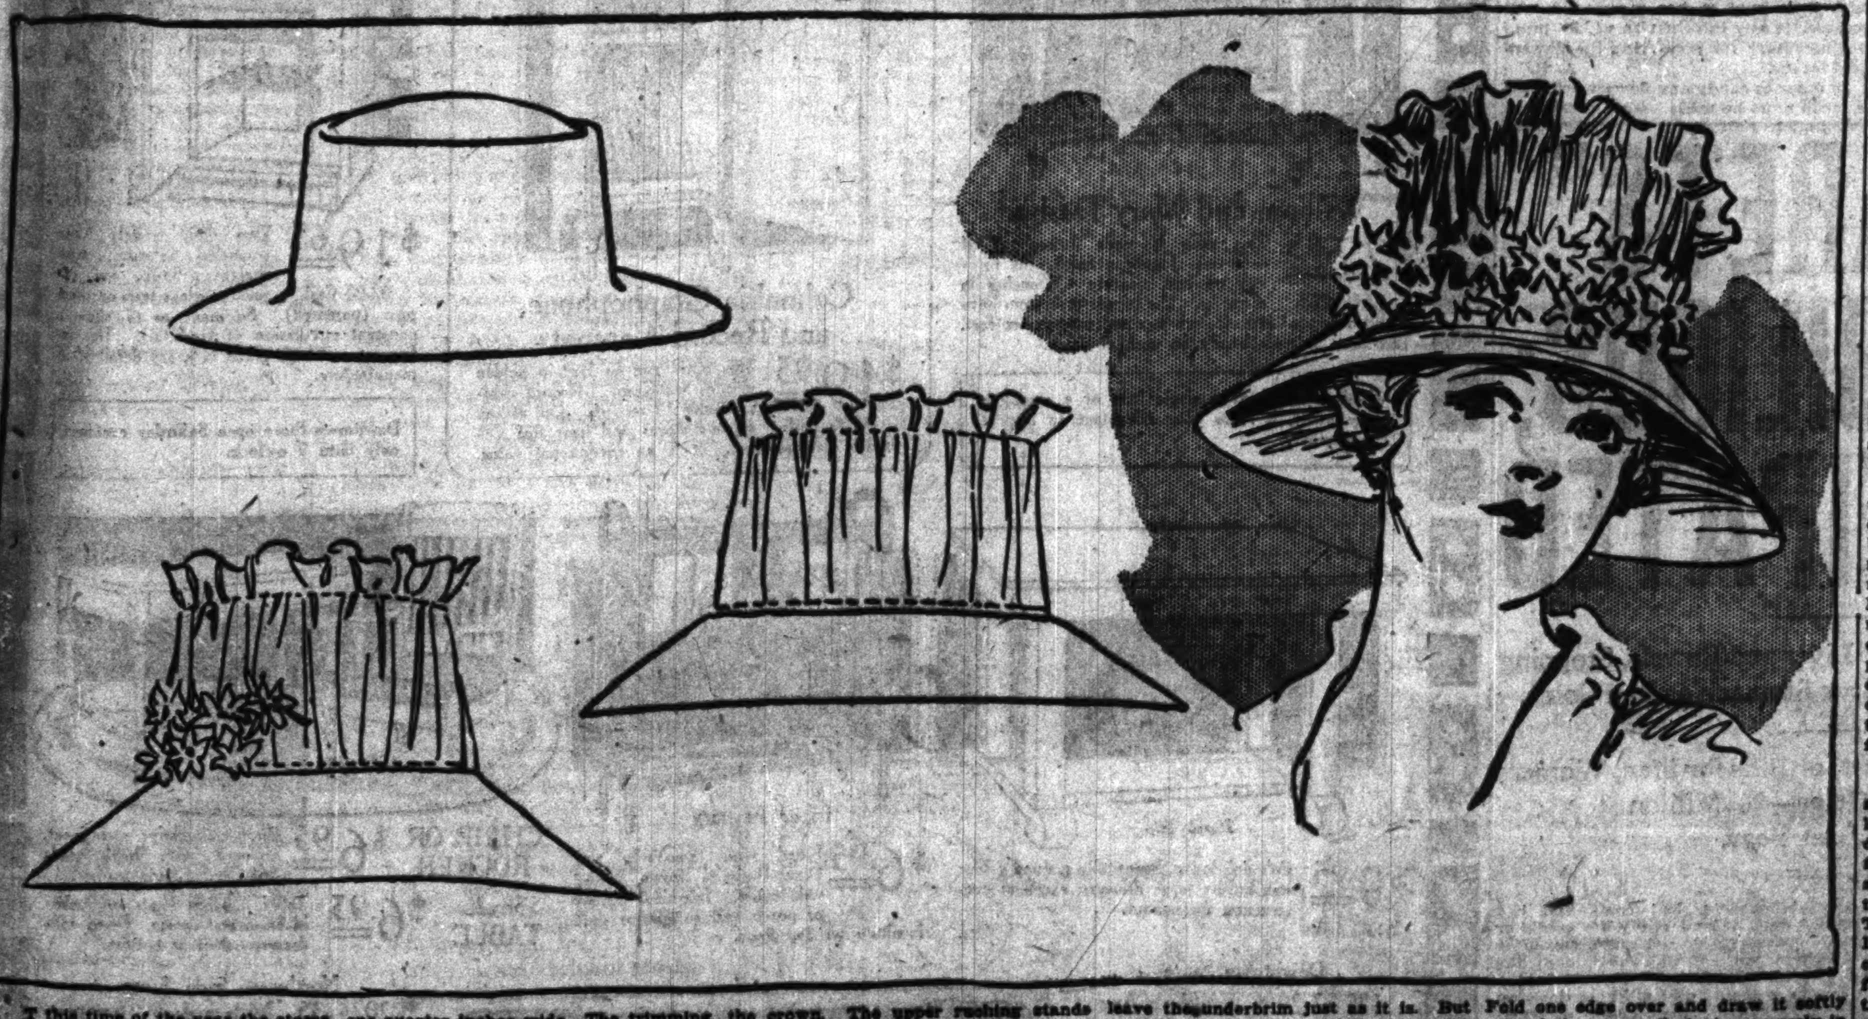
JANET: THE WIND FRECKLES some skins. Before you go out rub a little cold cream into your skin and dust over with a powder. For light freckles use lemon juice. Rub a fresh slice over your face at night, letting the juice dry on and remain for a time. The following formula, too, is effective: Lactic acid, four ounces; glycerin, two ounces; and rosewater, one ounce. Don't forget the proverbial ounce of prevention. Protect your face as much as possible from both sun and wind.

* *

MRS. B.: THE AVERAGE HEIGHT of women is 5 feet 4 inches. The average weight 132 pounds. The average male height is three inches greater than that of the female. So says the medical statistician of one of the big insurance companies. The figures were based on the average weights of over 88,000 insured women. Give me your age and height and I will tell you what you should weigh. Yes, 'twas twenty pounds in five weeks my model gained. Did you win or lose the bet?

Practical and Fancy Needle-Work

By CLOTILDE



AT this time of the year the stores offer a large assortment of straw shapes at astonishingly low prices. The average woman looks at these hats and thinks one might be a real bargain if she just knew the right trimming to put on it and how to do it. I've selected a simple little shape, which you will be able to duplicate in black, white, or almost any color, and I am going to tell you how you can use it as a foundation for a smart hat.

The crown is three and one-half inches high and the brim, which droops ever so little, as do all this year's, is two and one-quarter inches wide. The trimming consists of a ruching of changeable taffeta, gathered over two cords, and a wreath of small flowers.

A piece of silk cut crosswise—that is, from selvedge to selvedge—seven inches wide and thirty-six inches long, is needed for the trimming. See that both long edges are straight with a thread and then ravel one-half inch on each edge, leaving a fringe of the threads of a single color. Join the seven inch edges and gather the silk over two three-sixteenth inch cords at a distance of one and one-half inches from the fringe on either edge. This cording should be long enough to just fit snugly around the crown. The upper ruching stands up prettily around the top of the crown and the lower edge lies with a little fullness on the brim. Fasten securely with stitches, long on the wrong side and small, hidden in the gathers, on the right side.

If you can find just the color scheme you want in a made up wreath of flowers all you will need to do will be to fasten it in place. But if you can't, buy the flowers in small bunches, separate them by unwinding the wire stems, rearrange them to suit, fasten again with your wire, and sew them in place.

If the color of the hat you have chosen is becoming to your complexion you may leave the underbrim just as it is. But if there is a doubt in your mind as to the effect, put in a facing of the silk. Cut a strip thirty-six inches long and two and three-quarters inches wide, allowing one-half inch to ravel for the fringe. Gather the other edge and fasten in at the headsize. Tack the other edge evenly and invisibly, just inside of the fringe, to the brim.

If you are fortunate enough to pick up this shape in a nice white milan braid you can make a hat suitable for wear with your summery little dresses or white skirts and shirt waists.

You will need some white faille ribbon about five or five and a half inches wide. Fold one edge over and draw it softly around the crown, fastening securely in the middle of the front. Cut two pieces of ribbon, one sixteen and one eighteen inches long. Ravel both ends of each piece. Fold one edge of both pieces down, having them laid together with the sixteen inch piece on top. Arrange directly across the front of the side crown in a semi-box plait effect. Fasten with invisible stitches and place two pearl headed pins so that they seem to hold the ribbon in place.

Nothing is so smart on the white milan hat as white faille ribbon this year, and you can't go wrong if you arrange it in any tailored effect you fancy.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Natural Psycometrist.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

IF you were born this week you are a "natural psychometrist." That's what you are—a natural psychometrist—if your birthday comes between or on July 1 to 7. But it isn't as bad as it sounds! For a psychometrist is one with the gift for divining mental processes. In other words, your psychic powers and intuition are strong, sometimes influencing you amazingly. Your love for the mysterious makes you ofttimes a deep and fearless investigator into things occult.

You partake generously of the qualities of your prototype, the crab, which means that your characteristics are caution, persistency, and stick-to-it-iveness. In fact, you will stand by a thing to which you have attached yourself until it leads either to failure or success, and, crablike, too, you will avoid a hole out of which you have once been routed, even though you may have been acting under your psychic influence.

You are fond of water travel and more than passing fond of the theater and drama. You are rather silent and reticent at times. No one can force your speech. You are independent. Your sensibilities are fine, and because of your psychic capacity you can see clearly in a condition that seems darkness to many. You have much literary talent.

You like money for its own sake, which leads you sometimes into a grasping creature. You have an inordinate love of precious stones, which is interpreted by some as a form of hoarding, for you like to have a shining stone more for the sake of owning it than for personal enjoyment. You have exquisite taste and can dress on half of the expenditure necessary to others.

Though you might not want to admit it, you love attention. It pleases you to have people come to you for information, whether you can give it or not. You have many strange experiences in life and are subject to overwhelming spells of sadness which leave you lonely.

Like all Cancer people your maternal instincts are pronounced; in fact, the femininity of this sign is so remarkable that should you be the father of a family and the mother's birthday comes in another sign, the children will love you more than their mother. You will also be tenacious of your children's rights and courageous in defending them. You insist upon being master of your own home and do your best work when at the head of your own business, hence would be eminently successful as well as popular as a physician, but not as a surgeon. You would also make a success as a pulpit orator, a nurse, and possibly as a teacher, all because of that innate sympathy which makes you able so to appeal to your listeners. As a physician you would not follow any school, but would draw largely upon your intuitive powers for your diagnosis. In this, as in everything you do, your convictions are settled and, although you may listen patiently to advice, it does not follow that you will change your opinion.

Your colors are orange, green, and russet; birthstones, emerald and black onyx. You will be most fortunate when the moon is on the increase and should avoid entering on new business during its decrease.

You should not marry early in life; be well on the road toward conquering your faults before you think of marrying. A marriage with your opposite pole, Pisces, Feb. 20-March 21, probably will be most harmonious, for Pisces has the natural sympathy that will be such a help to you. A union with steady Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19, will also prove a congenial one, and possibly Virgo, Aug. 24-Sept. 23.

Deserves Fair Play.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young lady aged 20 years and considered good looking. For the last seven months I have kept company with a young man of 24. We are both in love with one another and expect to marry soon. He also keeps company with a young lady whom he knew before meeting me. He has tried every possible way to discontinue going with her, but it seems impossible. Don't you think telling her that he is engaged to me would break it? What would you suggest? If he loves me won't he come out and tell her? Would it be proper for me to present him with a ring on his birthday?

"FRANCES."

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

I most decidedly would expect the young man to be honorable enough to discontinue going regularly with another girl when he is engaged to you. His actions do not inspire confidence in him. You have a right to fairer play than that, and I would demand it. You might, in all propriety, since you are engaged, present the man with a ring on his birthday, but before I did this I would be perfectly sure that he was playing square with me.

Wants a Kiss.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 21 years old and have a question in my mind that is puzzling me. Whenever I meet a young man and he takes me home he insists on a good-night kiss. I think it is not right to kiss him good-night, and when I refuse I do not see him again. Am I right or wrong? Also is there any harm in going home with a fellow that flirted with you? VIOLET."

Why, Violet, I certainly hope that you, with a name that stands for modesty above everything else would not be guilty of anything so common and vulgar as flirting! I can't believe you are serious when you ask me if you should allow pick up acquaintances to accompany you home. For shame, Violet! You keep on refusing good-night kisses even if you do lose out with him. He is not worth the time he takes up with you if that is what he expects you to do. Tell him the next time that you think you have done enough for him by giving him your company for the evening.

Ought to Patch It Up.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 16. Last year I went to a social center and there met a boy one year my senior who always escorted me home. For some reason or other we had a quarrel and since then he does not speak to me, although I meet him often. As I like this boy and I know he likes me, would you please advise me what to do? ANXIOUS."

Well, "Anxious," as it takes two to make a quarrel, you must have been partly to blame for it. Therefore, if it's a question of one or the other taking the initiative in making up, why don't you go ahead and do it? Speak to him the next time you meet him. I do think it's a pity that little quarrels that can be patched up easily are allowed to go on and make all kinds of unhappiness in two persons' lives.

Mary's Birthday.

"Dear Miss Blake: My birthday is coming—tread lightly! Do you know any more like me? I have never met one born on my birthday, much less the year, May 5, 1863. One is enough any-day—don't you think so? MARY."

Whist! I have one coming, too. Once a year I am thus afflicted, so I know how to sympathize; but please send me a stamped, addressed envelope for the horoscope, as I am sorry to say I have not space to print it here.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

This Was Too Much.

One night my best friend, who was fond of playing jokes, told me to shut my eyes and hold out my hand. I felt something cold slip over my third finger. (I had been expecting this for some time.) When I opened my eyes I found a ring made of a dandelion on my finger. This was too much, and I told him to go and never come back. I found out afterward he had a real diamond in his pocket. Just a little joke cost this man the one he wanted most. F. L.

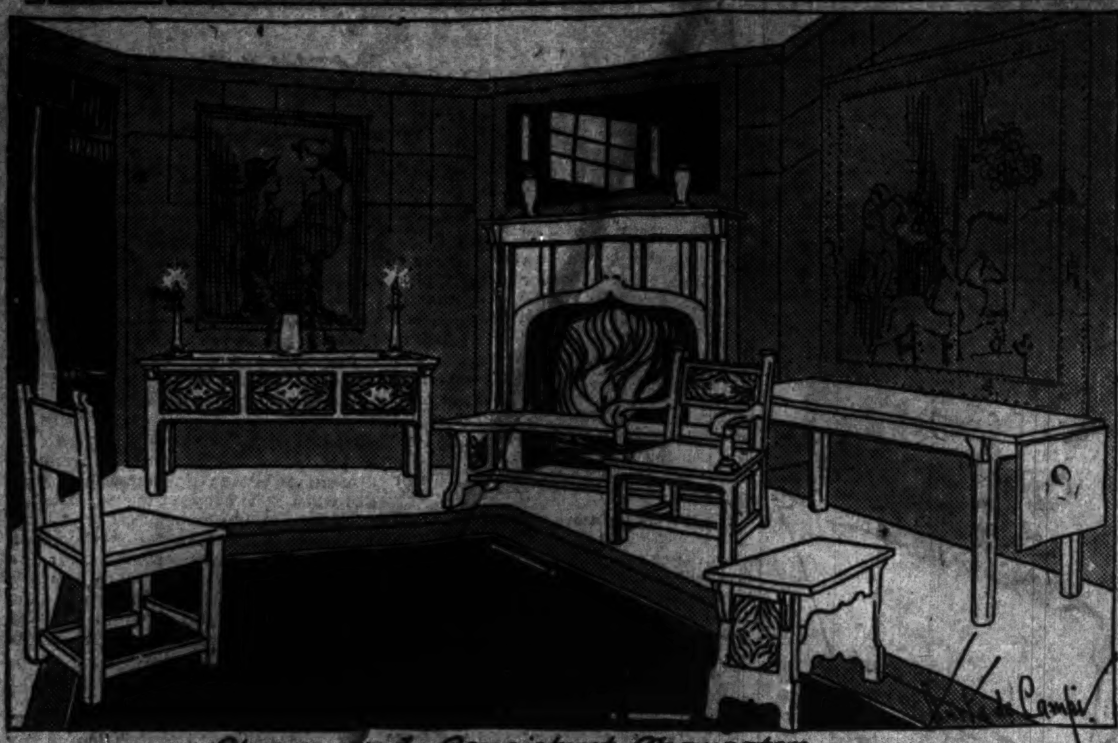
The HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



Strong and Consistent Character

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

THE most propitious time for householders to have their redecorating done is, by all means, during that period known as "between seasons." After the May and October rush decorative departments and houses lay off all the extra help, retaining only the best workers. They are glad indeed to keep these good men employed during the dull season, and the customer not only gets the benefit of a concession but is certain of better workmanship than can be guaranteed when the hiring of a lot of extra hands necessitates the acceptance among them of many that are inexperienced.

It is pleasant to have plenty of time to plan, to go about it all deliberately, and to feel that the men are not slapping the work up in frantic endeavor to be off on time for another "job." Just now, too, styles are pretty well settled: the new wall paper output is about ready for display, so that even extremists may make their selections with a certainty of being up to the minute. During this time it is safe to ask an extra discount on both material and labor.

One of the most notable circumstances this season is that high class decorators have begun to discourage the plain wall fad. While plain walls are, in nine cases out of ten, a failing in the right direction, it must be admitted that, unless relieved by decorative adjuncts, brilliant draperies, brocaded upholstery, or good books and pictures, they may prove flat and insipid. As backgrounds they are matchless—but that implies something quite worth while in the foreground.

When plain walls came into such pronounced vogue the reason was that people were disgusted with poor designs sprawling over wall spaces, poorly designed and wretchedly colored wall paper. This combination was too unutterably vulgar. But as soon as this fact was recognized by manufacturers a demand was made for better designing and coloring and that this demand has been fairly well met is practically proven by a glimpse of the new sample books.

The old flashy colors are notably absent. The public has become educated so that even the rawest clerk hesitates to offer a customer a pattern that is poorly drawn. A higher order of paper is wanted. Low toned flocks and hand prints do not fail to elicit due admiration, and in expensive grades of paper are being patterned after them in two soft tones that lend variety to a flat wall space without the effrontery of assertiveness.

Some thirty inch imported papers are beautiful. They are made in France from the identical rollers used to print the finest linens and they really possess a wonderfully decorative value. Designs in birds and foliage are pleasingly handled. Jouy pattern, and classical treatments, and foliage designs, all done in flat effect that makes them suitable for flat surface covering, are among the patterns.

Then there are some splendid hand blocked goods in acceptable colorings—they are shown in two tone treatments with soft combinations of color. For example, a delicate floral pattern, in colors, is printed on a background of small French gray leaves. This is designed for use in a bedroom without pictures, with striped silk curtains and day bed covers. It decorates the room charmingly, if other pronounced decorative features are not interjected. The floor covering in this room should be plain and the furniture and woodwork of light gray enamel.

Stripes of all kinds and all widths are shown extensively. Those best in color are the pastel shades, though stronger tints designed for novel uses are also to be had.

The established popularity of period furnishing is exemplified by this season's wide range of period papers. The Adam style, the Georgian, the Jacobean, the Chinese Chippendale, the French, English, and Italian are all represented. Velvet or damask grounds are suggested for some English and Italian rooms furnished in antique models.

For bedrooms floral stripes and chintz patterns are lovely without being loud.

Painted walls are still in high favor, but unless the wall itself is properly prepared, paint is to be used with caution. The correct method is to cover the wall first with artist's canvas, then to apply molding in well proportioned panel spacings, and then to paint in two tones of some light neutral color. Paint applied directly to faulty walls is most discouraging, as every little crack is accentuated. Paper may cover a multitude of tiny defects, while paint magnifies them. Warning is to be given particularly against painting newly plastered walls. New houses are almost certain to settle a little and the plaster to crack, and there is no way of concealing the defect caused.

On the other hand, paint is more sanitary than paper—not so much because it can be washed, for many of the new papers are washable, too, but because germs are harbored between paper and wall, especially if a disinfecting paste is not used in applying.

So much has been said about the common mistake of using papers picturing "natural" flowers that more need hardly be added on that score. Every one interested in decorative work knows that figures must lie flat in effect, and that portraits of roses rounded out and natural looking belong in frames, and not on wall surfaces; that wall covering, to be in good taste, must partake of the flat quality of that which it covers. Coloring, shading, and perspective drawing that make wall paper figures stand out are pernicious.

Where the wall shows any imperfections, patterned papers—small, inconspicuous patterns in small rooms, increasing in size according to room scale—are best. Good walls can stand either mat, paint, or unfigured paper. Among the cheaper papers that can be counted upon by the uncertain amateur never really to violate good taste are the oatmeal, eggshell, and even plain old ingrain papers. The things to be safely recommended as absolutely unobjectionable are always simple, quiet papers. Too little decoration is better than too much. An important point in making selections is unity.

Too many women go into a store and say, "I want to paper a room furnished in oak or walnut" (or what not), without bringing samples of paper in other rooms on the whole floor. They are dissatisfied when the work is done—the transition from that one room into the others is too sudden. While the clerk who sold the paper may have made a perfect unit of that one room, there is no unity between that and the other rooms. Better success would have resulted if the purchaser had brought samples of paper of all the rooms in the suite, and said: "I wish to repaper a room opening into a room papered with this on one side and a hall papered with that on the other. It is furnished with," etc. Clerks are seldom clairvoyant enough not to need something as tangible as this to go by.

The accompanying illustration shows an interior that is strong and consistent in character. The furniture of the medieval type is in grayed oak, and the deeper gray walls are hung with mellow tapestries. It goes without saying that this room is in the home of some one gifted with a fine architectural sense of affinity between the room itself and its furnishings.

Answers to Inquiries.

MISS R.: Center lights are being dispensed with and side lights and floor and table lamps used instead. Use linen chintz in tan color, figured with olive leaves and touches of brilliant gladiola pink throughout. Let the sofa be done in a gray tan, using much olive and a little gladiola.

COLONIAL: Yes, the truly colonial is reproduced now in brown mahogany instead of red. It is called antique mahogany. I should advise you to get the remaining pieces in brown mahogany and have your red pieces done over in brown. I am sending you under separate cover a small advertising pamphlet which contains instructions on refinishing, which you may find use for

MRS. GEORGE E. L.: These little novelties in lamp shades are used in almost any kind of a room. If I lived in a room with pink walls I should, I think, go crazy. Certainly have it washed off and done over in some delicate neutral tint, introducing pink, if you like, in small areas, such as lamp shades, soft pillows, etc. Good side walls colors are tints known as parchment, oyster gray, sand color, pearl gray, deep cream, etc. For the cluster light that you have, get a great big wire lamp shade and slip this on up over the whole fixture, unscrewing the button at the bottom of the fixture and adjusting the frame to the fixture by means of this button. Figured cretonne makes effective covers. See that your lamp shade is not open at any point. Let the covering not only be shirred onto the sides but made to come across the top and bottom of the lamp shade as well.

ARTIST: With the things that you have, draperies printed with sage green leaves and some mulberry colored berries or flowers on a parchment colored ground would be good. Almost every good picture department carries the cords and the tassels to hang pictures on. I could not advise you about the pictures, not having seen them. I think your selection of paper sounds pleasing.

MISS IRMA S.: Use a burgundy colored Wilton velvet rug and self-colored fawn tinted side wall done in a small pattern. Use an old rose silk lamp shade and small stand.

FRANCES S.: I should certainly use the lambrequin you speak of. In conjunction with this don't use lace curtains, but good simple voile curtains in a pale gray to correspond with your side wall. If these have not a pleasing appearance from the street supplement them with an additional pair of white curtains close against the glass. All of these lambrequins, I am sorry to say, are tacked to light wooden frames. The frames, however, need not be permanently adjusted to the windows, but may be arranged on hooks so that they can be lifted off to clean. Yes, I should think the cuffs, as they are called, for holding the curtains back, might be used with lambrequins.

MRS. W. T.: With your blue side walls have the ceiling the most delicate shade of pearl color. In the room with the oak woodwork use light buff colored paper. Hang a small framed picture above the mantel.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Bill Loses His Temper.

About four years ago my most ardent suitor called with his car to take me for a spin in the country. We stopped to pick a few violets, and in turning around to start for home the car went off the road and we got stuck.

Bill said to me: "Just sit there, dear, and I will get somebody to pull us out." So he got a farmer and paid him $3.

Now Bill and I are married and we went for a spin the other day on the same road, and, to keep from getting hit with a truck, he drove off the road and got stuck in the mud. This time he did not tell me to sit in the car. Instead he lost his temper and the air got so thick I could hardly breathe.

They Bore Their Friends.

I went with the man I married three years before he finally proposed to me. All during that time he was so stiff and formal that I was at a loss to know what to talk about or how to entertain him when we were alone. I was just in misery if we didn't have another couple with us all of the time. But after we were engaged we seemed to have plenty to talk about and now we seldom have company. I asked my best friend why the other day and she said: "Well, to tell you the truth, you and Bob are so silly when you are together that you are tiresome." Perhaps some people would call that a slam, but we haven't reached that stage yet.

Marion Harland's Helping Hand

By Marion Harland

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to the newspaper office.

Needs Fancy Work Materials.

"I AM an old lady, 74 years of age, and have recently been reading some of the letters in the Helping Hand. I thought I would write and ask a little help. I earn all I can by doing fancy work and I should like to receive crochet and embroidery patterns and thread. Quilt pieces or anything else in that line would be highly appreciated. Mrs. M. T. H."

As I have said before, appeals from those along in years always touch me, especially, and I have an idea that many others feel as I do—perhaps because the writers are at a place to which all of us are likely to come one of these days, if we have not already arrived. In the circumstances I am sure there will be favorable replies to this appeal and I shall hope to receive several requests for the address.

Magazines to Give Away.

"I have a number of magazines to give away. Do you suppose any one would care to have me send them? Most of them are fancy work magazines, which would be useful to any one who likes that kind. Probably some shut-in would care for them. Do you suppose any one has a singing canary to exchange for a new blue and white rag rug? M. K."

There isn't any doubt some one will like the magazines you offer, and there may be some one who has a canary to give in exchange for the rug, although this is more uncertain. In any case, I shall be happy to send the address of M. K. to any one wishing it and writing to me for it.

Three Boys Need Clothes.

"I turn to you in a time of great need. My husband is sickly and cannot always work. We have three boys ranging in age from 6 to 12 years, and if some one has any castoff garments which would be useful or could be made over I would be glad to get them and would sincerely appreciate the kindness of those who sent them. I would be glad to do either one in return, and I would either call and get the articles or pay postage on them if any one is kind enough to offer some. "Mrs. M. K."

Although this is not an unusual request, such pleas seldom fail to receive a favorable answer, and it is hoped this case will prove no exception to the rule and that there may be mothers who will accede to Mrs. M. K.'s request either by giving her the needed articles outright or by way of exchange for the work she offers.

Making a Couch Cover.

"I read the Corner regularly, but have not as yet asked or given anything. But now I write to inquire if any one has any pennants. We are making a couch cover of them and have not enough to complete it. In exchange I will give two slippers for the right foot, size 6 of a narrow last, one shoe, size 6, of a medium last, for the left foot. "Miss M. N."

If any one has pennants to give, will they communicate with this writer by sending to me for her adress? It seems hardly probable that there would be much demand for the slippers and shoe she offers, but I hope they may be of use to some one.

Song of Long Ago.

"I see in the Corner that some one asks for the song, 'The Buccaneer's Bride.' If you are successful in finding this I should much like to know where I can purchase two copies. We used to sing this song fifty years ago as a quartet. D. D. W."

I am sorry to report that no copies of the song mentioned have been turned in. I hope the above request may receive a satisfactory answer, and I shall give the address of D. D. W. to any one sending for it.

Crystallizing Flowers and Leaves.

"Can you tell me how to crystallize violets and rose and mint leaves? I read not long ago of a woman who made a success of doing this and by it added a nice little sum to her income. I will appreciate any information of the process necessary for preserving the flowers and leaves. A. R."

In order to candy any flowers or leaves a sirup must be made. This consists of half a pound of granulated sugar and half a pint of water put over the fire in a clean agate saucepan and boiled, without stirring, until the sirup spins a thread from the tine of a fork dipped into it. When the sirup reaches this stage the flowers or leaves may be dipped into it. The former may be held by the stems, but the leaves will have to be managed with the aid of a fine wire, by which they are put into the sirup and lifted out again. As soon as they have been dipped in they may be taken out and laid upon an inverted sieve, which should have been lightly oiled or rubbed with fresh butter. On this they should stand for several hours. Should they look as if not sufficiently saturated with the sirup, they must be dipped again.

After this a fondant must be made. This is prepared by putting a pound of sugar in a granite saucepan with a gill and a half of boiling water, stirring only until the sugar is dissolved and then boiling until a little of the sirup dropped into cold water makes a soft ball. The testing for this should be begun after the sirup has boiled for about six minutes, and continued, at brief intervals, until the right stage is reached. The sugar may then be poured into a greased dish, and as soon as it begins to cool may be stirred until it is white and creamy, when it can be worked smooth with the hands.

When you wish to finish your flowers and leaves melt half a cup of fondant and add a little water, a drop at a time, to soften the mixture, so that you can dip the flowers into it. When making violets you should add to this quantity of fondant two drops of essence of violet; with rose leaves you will need three drops of essence of rose and a trifle of cochineal or pink vegetable coloring. Add this cautiously, as it is potent in tinting. With mint leaves add two drops of essence of peppermint and a little bit of green vegetable coloring.

As may be seen, this process is not simple or easy, and a good deal of practice will be required before one reaches the point of making these confections well enough to compete with those prepared commercially. If any one else has a simpler and easier method we shall be glad to get it.

Some Music Wanted.

"Please send me the address of M. B., who has music to give away. A. L. K."

I am sorry to say the music offered by M. B. had already been given away before the letter from this correspondent arrived. Has not some one else music that is no longer needed and that can be bestowed upon A. L. K.?

Chance to Help Unfortunates.

"I am a regular visitor at a penal institution and I wish some good souls would come forward and offer to do a little something for these unfortunates. I would be able to put such helpers in touch with a good many to whom they could be of service. Mrs. J. W. D."

Who will send for this address and gain the chance to help these unfortunates?

Materials for Dolls' Dresses.

"I saw Mrs. M. B. C.'s letter, and as I like to play with dolls and dress them up I should be glad to have the material she offers for dolls' dresses. I am a little girl and I just love to sew. I pieced a little quilt for my dolly's bed last week. E. F."

It is too bad that the number of applications already received for the pieces for dolls' clothes offered by Mrs. M. B. C. make it impossible for this special little girl to get any of them. They were all given away when her letter came. I hope some one else who has similar pieces will be disposed to present them to E. F. and will write for her address.

Truss to Donate.

"I have an adjustable truss for a double hernia, and some poor soul can have it. The truss is almost new and perfectly clean. I hope some one can make use of it. Mrs. B. B. P."

There is little doubt that some one and more than one will ask for this truss.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Two little boys went to Sunday school. They were new pupils, and the teacher, wishing to know their names, asked: "What two little boys have we here?" The younger of the boys replied: "That's Temmie and dis is me."

George, whose affection is divided almost equally between his new baby brother and his dog, Fido, had just come home from school and was trying to soothe the baby. During the afternoon his teacher had explained the meaning of the word "invisible."

"Mamma," ventured George, "don't you think the baby looks like Fido?"

"No, indeed," said his mother, "the baby has no resemblance whatever to Fido."

After an interval of silence during which he studied the newcomer's features minutely George drawled: "He's got a 'semblance to Fido all right, but it's just a invisible one." H. S.

Joseph had accidentally laid his hand upon a tack, and as he raised his hand the tack stuck to it. He began to cry and ran to his mother, holding out the hand to which the tack was barely clinging. The tack was removed and the crying ceased. When asked by his mother why he did not remove the tack with his other hand, he replied: "I couldn't. I was crying with that hand."

A doctor with a large country practice frequently took his small daughter with him on his drives. One day, after a trip which she especially enjoyed, she inquired how much he charged for that visit.

"I charged $10," replied her father.

"Ten dollars!" gasped the small maiden, to whom it seemed a vast sum. "Why, I am glad to go for nothing!" she added reproachfully. C. A. P.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

A Little Muscular Persuasion.

This happened just a few weeks after I was married. My mother-in-law wanted me to keep house while she went to the country. It happened that my husband was home that day and I was busy scrubbing and working away in the kitchen when company was announced.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

Frustrating the Villain.

I was visiting my uncle this summer in a little village where they had moving pictures, but once a week. My uncle took me to the show one evening and I was never so embarrassed in my whole life when in the climax of the picture a man was hiding behind a bush ready to shoot the fellow passing by. My uncle stood up in his seat and hollered: "Look out, you darn fool, the fellow's behind the bush." A. D.

A Seat for Dolly.

One evening, seated in an elevated car, which was crowded with passengers, a little girl entered, carrying a baby in her arms. Standing in front of me, I offered my seat at once. To the amusement of the other passengers and my surprise, I discovered the baby to be a life sized doll. D. W.

Small Brother Contest.

You've heard that story about two women discussing a wedding. "Who gave the bride away?" asked one. "Her young brother," answered her companion. "He yelled out, 'Susie, you landed him at last.'" Perhaps he was your young brother, or perhaps your young brother got in his devilish work before you got as far as the altar. Or maybe the young imp wasn't your brother, but a diabolical young sister who pretty nearly queered the game for you. Write and tell us about it, anyway. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

Jane Guessed Wrong.

The game was queered for me by my [illegible] sister, Jane. She overheard me say that "Charles is coming tonight and I think he will pop if he has a chance."

Evening came, also Charles. Little Jane came into the room where we were sitting and planted herself on a stool directly in front of Charles. Elbow on knee, chin in hand, she gazed intently into his face.

Charles looked at her and made tentative "goo-goos" with eyes already somewhat prominent. The effect was startling. She jumped up, pointed her finger at him, and excitedly squealed, "O, sis, you're right. He is going to pop. Just look at his eyes!"

Well, he didn't. E. C. B.

The Bore Brought Candy.

I had two regular callers. One I found more than interesting, while the other bored me. But the latter was fond of children and regularly brought my little sister candy, so she thought he was fine.

One day, while I was discussing the two men with my mother, Susie came in, overhearing some of my remarks, and, though no names were mentioned, she drew her own conclusions as to whom they applied.

That night the man I liked called. Pending my arrival in the parlor Susie entertained him thus: Planting herself squarely in front of my "pride and hope," she demanded of the surprised young man: "Why do you come to this house any more? Sister is sick and tired of you!" Needless to say, when I arrived soon after I found no one present but Susie, who cheerily explained she had sent him home for me. F. M.

Tell Your Wife Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift corns or calluses off with fingers.

Not a twinge of pain or soreness before applying, or afterwards. This may sound like a dream to corn-pestered men and women who have been cutting, filing and wearing torturous plasters. Yes! Corns lift out and calluses peel off as if by magic.

A small bottle of freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops directly upon your tender corn or callus, and instantly the soreness disappears; then shortly the corn or callus will be so loose that it lifts off.

Freezone dries instantly. It doesn't eat out the corn or callus, but just shrivels it up so it lifts away without even irritating the surrounding skin. Women should keep a tiny bottle handy on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.—Adv.

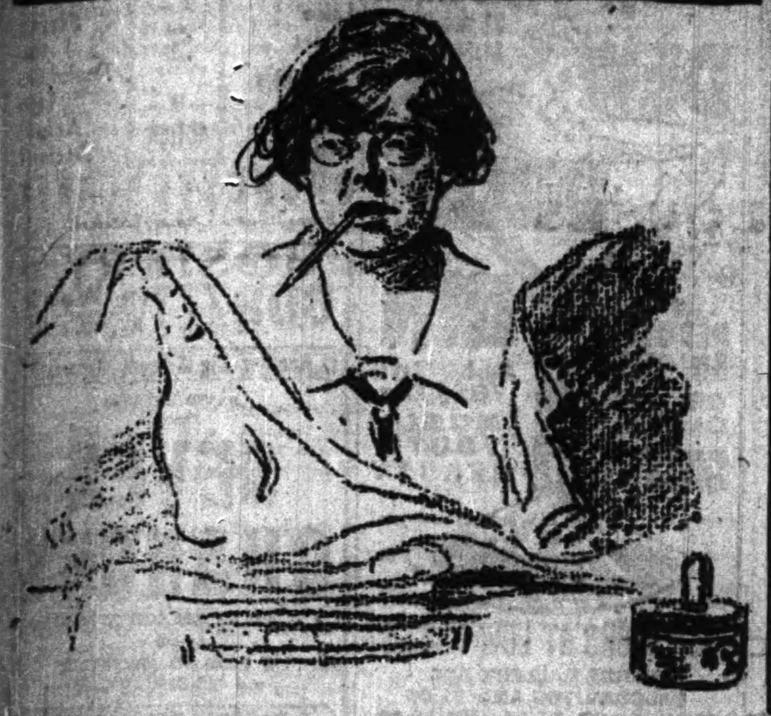
FIGHT OR GIVE

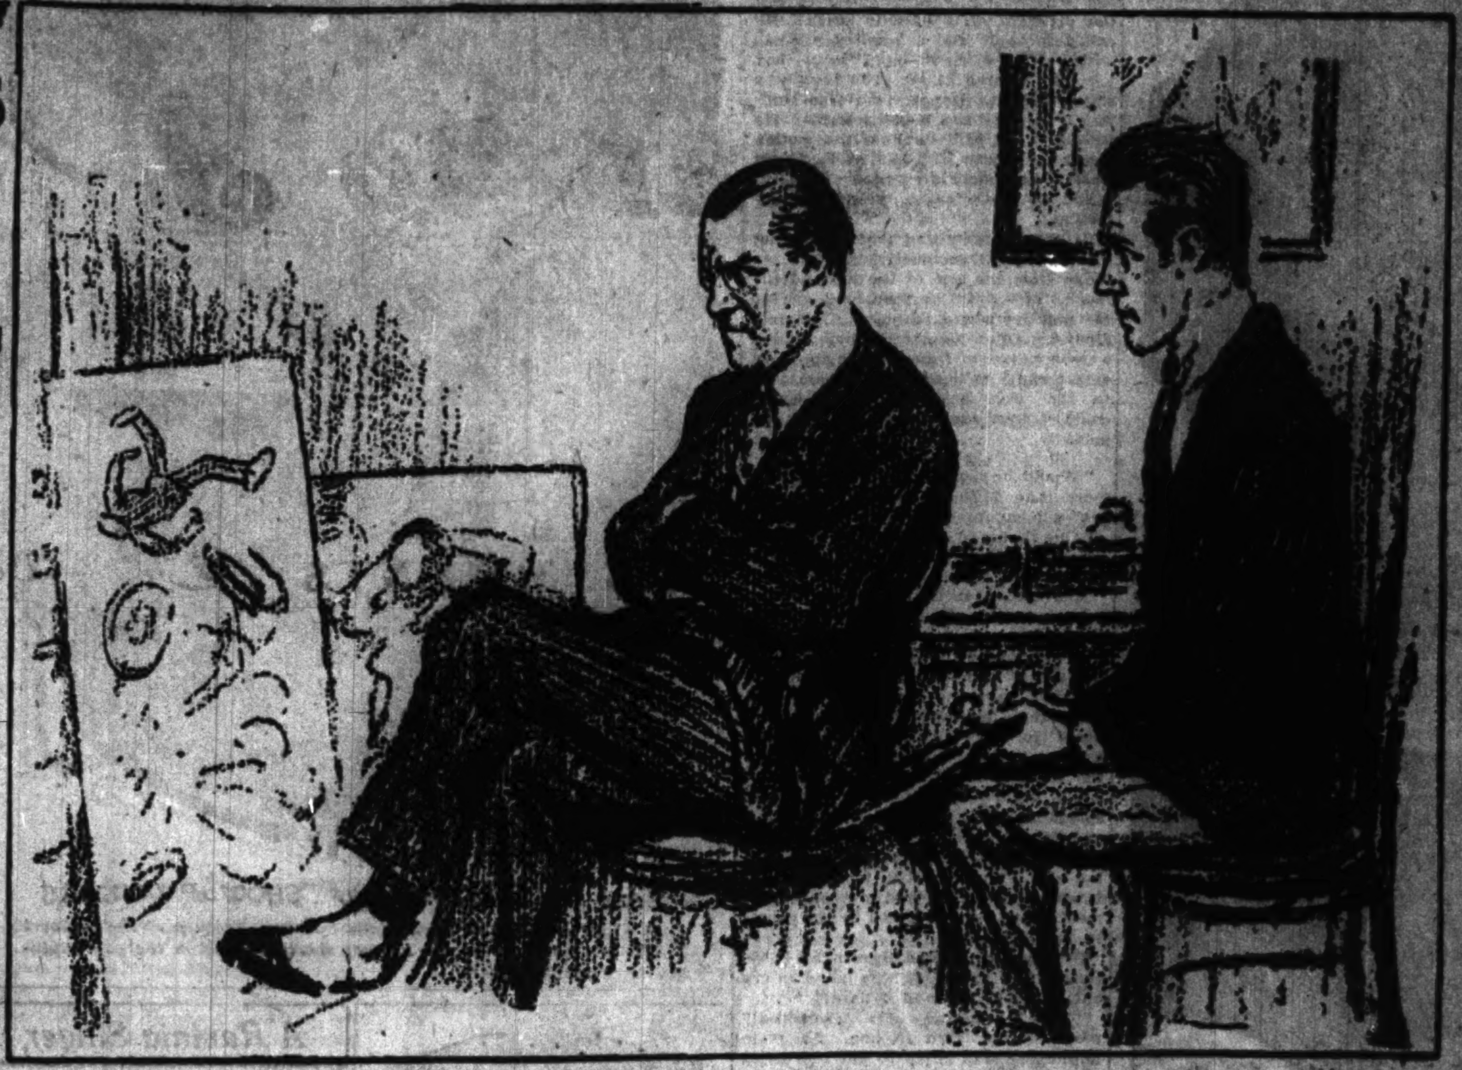
AMONG US MORTALS

DRAWN BY W. E. HILL

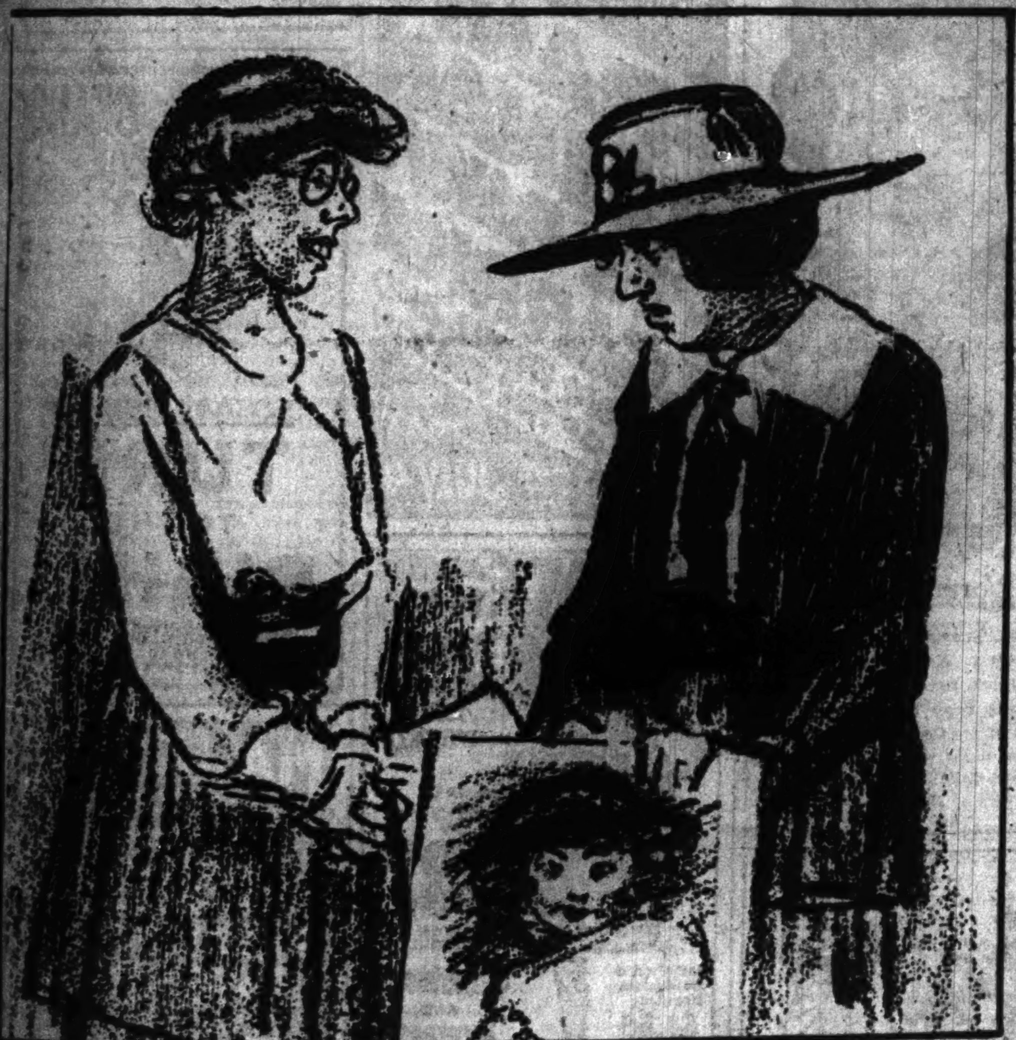
THE MAGAZINE PUBLISHING OFFICE



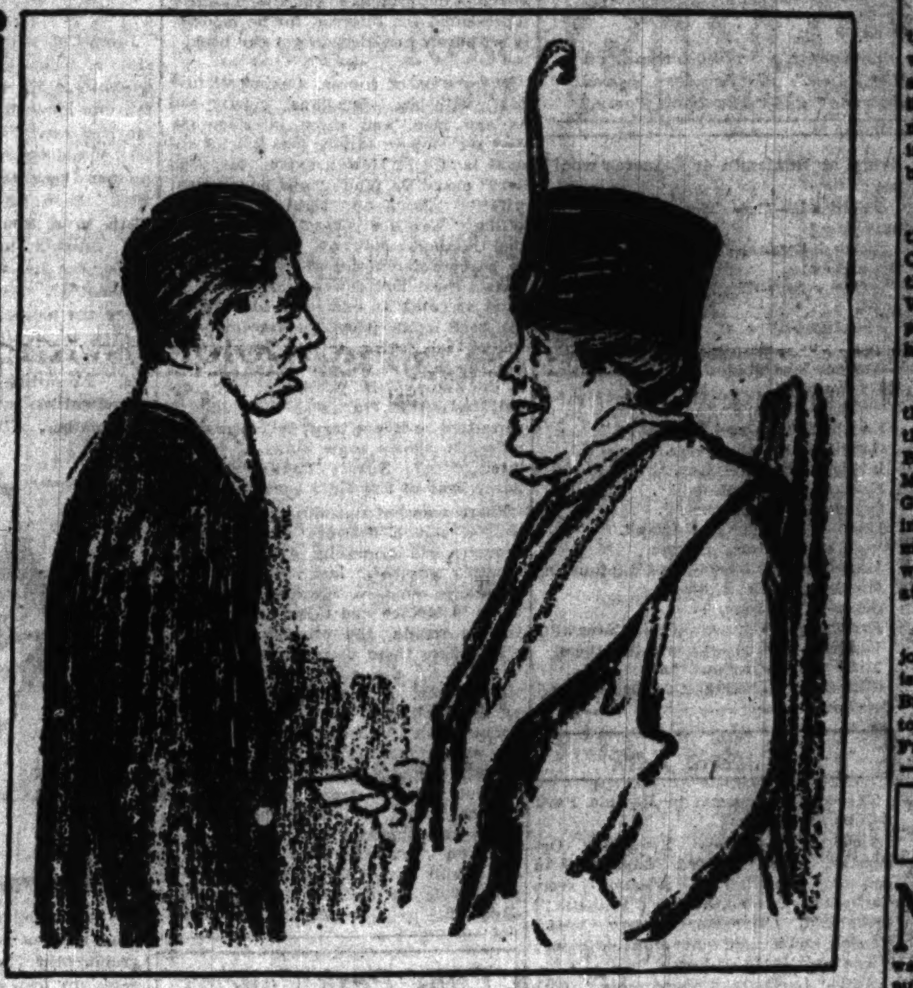
"Jack, boy," she broke in with a half sob, "go . . . go and fight . . . for your country . . . and for me!" Lady manuscript reader who would like to draft the authors of war stories.



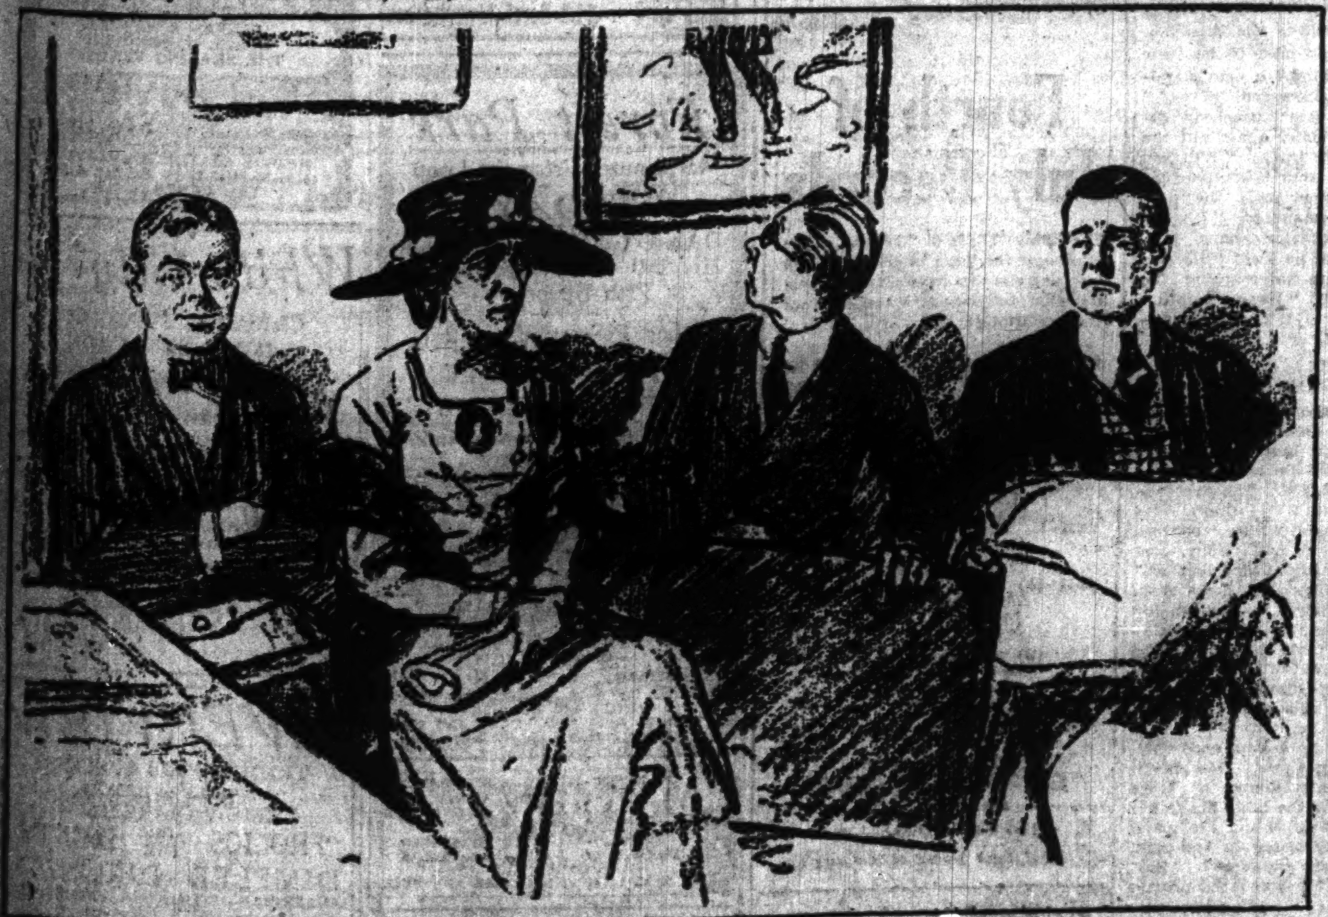
Now, this one of the exploding automobile I like immensely—it's got feeling and all that—but I'm afraid to chance it. You see it might offend our automobile advertisers, and we have to be very careful of that sort of thing. If it were a cafe scene I'd take it.



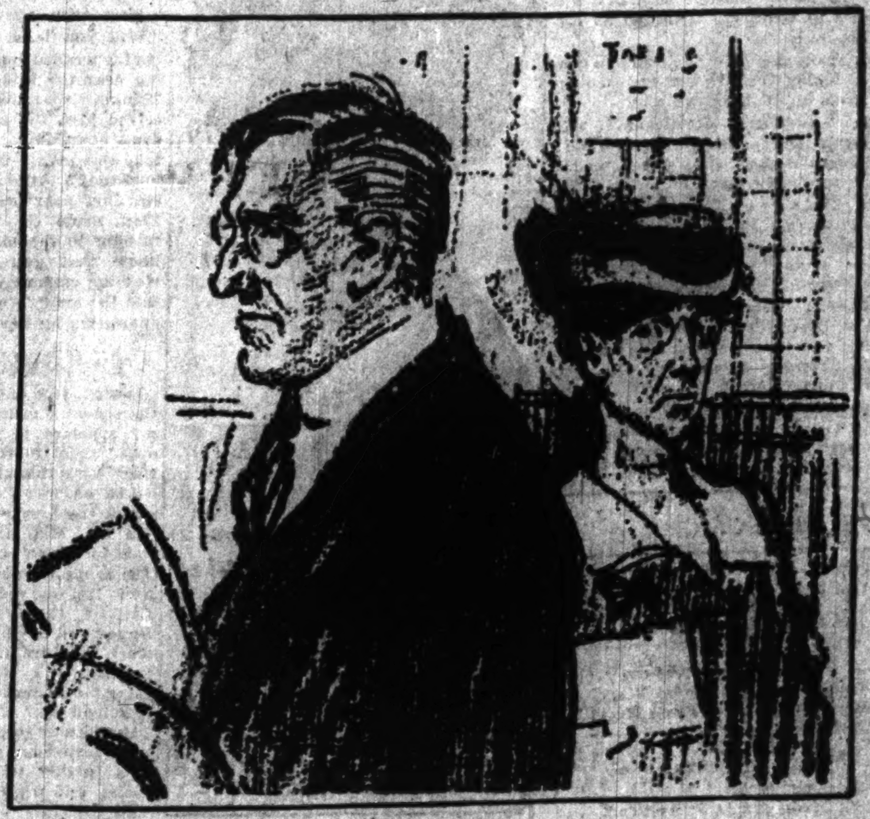
Miss Pryce, who has to do all the dirty work for the editor, softens the blow with: "Liked your work so much—but we had several of the same type on hand—and besides, we seldom buy any illustrations at all," etc., etc.



The lady who expects to land in the editorial sanctum by bombarding with all her charms the boy at the outer gate.



The line in the anteroom on a busy morning, showing the insurance agent waiting to tackle the art editor; the lady who takes herself awfully hard, with an article on "Sponge Fishing" in serial form; the art student with the portfolio of life drawings, cribbing pointers from the framed originals; and the popular illustrator who no longer knows any one but the big men in the profession.



The lady who tried to sell a humorous anecdote finds herself going down in the elevator with the editor, whom she could not see because he was out of town.

News of the Theater.

By Percy Hammond

MISS BARRYMORE, on her way back from the movies, is met by the Frohman incorporation with five plays in its hand, one of which is "Camille." Early in the autumn she will appear in that drama at the Empire theater in New York, thus satisfying a craving that she, like all actresses, has had since childhood. It is said that Charles Frohman, as he sailed on the Lusitania, spoke to Miss Barrymore of this excursion into the pseudo-classic; and that it will be undertaken with many of his memoranda to guide the players and producers. It is possible that performances will be given elsewhere than in New York.

Other items in the varied repertory which is proposed for Miss Barrymore are Pinero's "Mid-Channel," Clyde Fitch's "Captain Jinks," Sheridan's "School for Scandal," and a new romance by Edward Sheldon, called "The Bridge of Sighs." To these she will add each season a new play by an American author, and a revival of a Shakespearean drama.

John Barrymore is sued by Frederick Schopp, a stage hand, who says that in an outrageous moment during a performance of "Peter Ibbetson" Mr. Barrymore assaulted and battered him $10,000 worth. The cause of Mr. Barrymore's irritation, Mr. Schopp says, was the failure of an electrician properly to illuminate his countenance in one of the scenes, depriving the audience, thereby, of many interesting events occurring upon the player's visage. Being a diabetic of long standing, Mr. Schopp continues, he was ill able to defend himself against the wrathful histrion, and, therefore, was beaten and abraded until he was fit for nothing but an ambulance. The management of the theater says that Mr. Barrymore hit the wrong man.

The $468,000 recently bequeathed to the Actors' Fund by Hoge, the Zanesville soap man, threatens to reach another destination. Mr. Hoge's family contests the will, claiming that the nature and amount of the benefaction indicate an eccentricity not compatible with soundness of mind.

Vexed with the confusion regarding the title, "Potash and Perlmutter Film Company," A. H. Woods has renamed that drama "Potash and Perlmutter's Vampire." It seems that thousands of persons were disappointed in their hope that it was a movie.

Among those who will counterfeit the characters in this installment of the Potash and Perlmutter series are Barney Bernard, Alexander Carr, Mme. Mathilde Cottrelly, George Le Guerre, and Edwin Mordant. The most intelligent impersonation of Mr. Perlmutter given in Chicago, by the way, was that of Mitchell Harris last week at the Wilson Avenue theater.

"Somewhere in Mexico," a one-act jolter, done here at a recent benefit, is now in vaudeville, with Donald Brian again as its hero. It is said to be founded on a story about a small French boy who allowed the Germans to kill him and his sister rather than betray military secrets. The theme was Americanized by Robert McKay of Chicago, and its scene transferred to Mexico. It is so much superior to the ordinary dramatic junk of vaudeville that it will probably be a failure.

Messrs. Comstock and Elliott of New York will take possession of the La Salle theater today. Before the engagement of "Oh, Boy" begins on Aug. 12 they will refurnish the house thoroughly, aiming to give it the air of intimate elegance deemed essential to the successful presentation of their smart musical entertainments. Nathaniel Royster of New York will be the business manager of the new La Salle.

The Dramatic Mirror records an extemporaneous scene in the recent Lambs' Gambol between William Collier, the comedian, and Will Rogers, the "poet lariat" of the stage, as Channing Pollock calls him.

Mr. Rogers had started to philosophise upon the Russian revolution when Mr. Collier interrupted, more or less wittily. The cowboy quietly withdrew for the time being, allowed Mr. Collier to win the applause that should have been his, and then proceeded to finish his monologue. He apologized for not being a comedian and told of certain customs of the Zulus.

"In Zululand every child that doesn't show some sign of intelligence when it has reached the age of 3 is killed," he said. "ou may have noticed there are no Zulu comedians.

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The managers of "My Lady's Glove," the newest and dullest musical play on Broadway, have sought to be honest with the public in one way, at least. Knowing the entertainment to be shortweight as to merit, they have tried to make up for the lack by feeding the audience chocolate drops, which the chorus ladies toss from the stage.

It probably is not contended that to hit a man in the eye, or the ear, or on top of the bald spot with a bit of candy is inclined to so change the current of his deduction that he will suddenly become interested in something that has bored him to excess a moment before. But chocolate is known to be a nourishing food, and nourishment, domestic science teaches, will often soothe the most savage breast.

And if it happen that the contribution fall into the lap or between the expectantly parted lips of the gentleman's lady there is the chance that she will be pleased and for the moment diverted, if she does not choke, and the certainty that for many days she will talk of the incident rather than of the entertainment, to the advantage of the play's advertising.

In these days, when so much is being written about food, its control, and cost, there is likely to be a growing intimacy between provender and the drama. Raymond Hitchcock sees it coming, and promises, at the 100th performance of "Hitchy-koo," to give each person attending a potato from his Putnam county farm. The presentations, we assume, will be made after rather than during the performance, however. Hitchy is not one to take chances with those who throw straight.

And we can think of any number of entertainments that would seem much better with a cheese sandwich and a dill pickle than without, and not a few to which the sliced Bermuda would serve as a perfect comedy and physical relief.

"My Lady's Glove" is a dreary mixture of all the things the average American adapter injects into the Viennese operetta in the belief that he is making it "snappy." The music originally was by Oscar Straus, who wrote "The Chocolate Soldier" and has been trying to rewrite it every season since, but there is little of Straus left and a lot of Sigmund Romberg put in. Romberg is not a bad composer, but as he writes music by the day rather than by the job, he is not always at his best.

The locale, too, has been changed out of deference to the fighting allies. Originally it was Austrian. Now it is French. A silly compromise, at best. The book, by Edgar Smith and Edward Paulton, is one of those "A-thorn-on-the-rose-is-worth-two-in-the-nose" affairs, and consequently quite hopeless. A few of the ensembles have a nice Strauss swing, the chorus is an attractively gowned group, and there is a good male section that should be thinking of the trenches.

Frances Demarest, very blonde and pleasantly soprano, has an important rôle, probably one of the worst important rôles ever handed a singer, and Vivienne Segal, who was an overnight success in "The Blue Paradise," realizes nicely on her rapid advancement. Charles Purcell is a featured member of the cast. Why, no one seems to know, unless it is because this is the season for wavy haired boys.

The Lambs spell it g-a-m-b-o-l and the public spells it g-a-m-b-l-e. With the actors it is an annual stage picnic. With the public it is a yearly chance at a bargain in entertainment that frequently proves disappointing.

Last year's gambol, for instance, which sold for from $5 to $100 a seat, was worth about 35 cents. It was constructed on the theory that because a man is gifted as an entertainer in one branch of amusements he is clever in all branches, and that even if he is not it is worth money just to look at him. Which, I submit, is not true.

This year it happens the gambol was above the average. Willie Collier, Clifton Crawford, R. H. Burnside, and George Hobart had charge of it, and these lads are not only hard workers but, because of the record of the previous year, they were determined to set a new mark. There were plenty of dreary spots in the comedy sections, but no single act was utterly uninspired. At that most deadly of all spots—the 11 o'clock moment when the vitality of the audience has sagged and every one is ready to quit and call it a day—John McCormack walked out on the stage with his accompanist and sang five songs. In New York it is considered a great treat to hear John McCormack sing five songs. And when he consents to figure as the headliner of a superior sort of vaudeville bill it lifts the quality of the entire program.

There was another incident in this bill, too, that rather picked up the interest of the audience. Just before the closing number, which was a patriotic finale, De Wolf Hopper appeared with the autographed program. One such is sold at every gambol. It is signed by all the celebrities on the stage, and is usually gathered in by some friendly

Music and the Drama

ONE of the ticket-brokers in New York City seeks to make things easy for subscribers to the Metropolitan Opera who may desire to take in some or all of next winter's performances there by the Campanini singers: the latter's four weeks, following their ten in Chicago, will put them into opposition for that period with the established venture. The broker has mailed to the Metropolitan subscribers a copy of Campanini's prospectus with this suggestion:

"At the Lexington Theater, C. Campanini with the Chicago Opera Company will give a season of opera, commencing January 27th. Circular herewith inclosed. If you desire to subscribe for that, we will take the Metropolitan seats from you for the four weeks of the Chicago Opera in place of them."

Francesco Daddi's name is no longer in the Campanini roster. Daddi has been the buffo of the Chicago Opera since its first season, 1910-11. If he fail in having himself restored to favor, his parts will, in all likelihood, go to Octave Dua, whose aspiration to sing the romantic and heroic parts grows apace with his girth.

The Orchestral Association has arranged to insure, on the group-plan, the players in the Orchestra and all other employés. Each is insured for one thousand dollars, without regard to length of service.

Among the recent æsthetic adventures of St.-Louis was an open-air performance of "Aida." The box-office was not busy for the five performances, which were given in what is easily and evenly known in the local press as "the new Municipal Open-Air Theater." St.-Louis does not do well by opera, whether in-doors or in the open. St.-Louis does not do well by much in the way of theatrical entertainment: it was for a time regarded by producers as capable of taking care of four theaters of the two-dollar grade; and it now manages to do all of its playgoing at that price in one house, with only "The Follies" as a sell-out in each season's report.

The writer about music in the St.-Louis Republic thinks that the failure of the "Aida" venture was due to the inhabitants' unwillingness to pay two dollars for the front rows; while he describes a charge of twenty dollars for boxes seating six persons apiece as "an outrage and a slander upon the sanity of this community. . . . The recent experience of the Boston company, when a charge of five dollars was made for the 'best seats,' showed that the people of St.-Louis look hard at a dollar before they part with it for the passing enthrallment of grand-opera." The Republic's music-critic is the author of an opera recently sung there at a loss.

That Percy Grainger has enlisted as a bandsman in the Coast Artillery Corps is, perhaps, the most piquant item of recent news about the somebodies of music. That his job in the band is playing an oboe is less important than the incidental revelation of his having asked for his first papers: Grainger ought to make a good American, musically and otherwise—not simply because he is an admirable opportunist, with a first-class press-agent's sense of the topical, but because most of the things he does in music involve the use of brains and a sense of humor. Those who react most readily to Grainger are the sound, sane musicians: you will find Frederick Stock and John Carpenter in rapt agreement about the young Australian; and you will find musicians of like worth elsewhere of a mind when Grainger is the subject. He will, if he survive his term of enlistment in the Coast Artillery, do a lot for music in the United States.

A sensible and serviceable war-time issue comes from G. Schirmer. It consists of one collection, "American Patriotic Songs and National Airs," and a second, "The National Anthems of the Allies." They are in sheet-music size, for voice and piano, with conservative, "safe" harmonizations—and they cost a quarter apiece.

One of the two war-time opera-troupes in London has made a revival of "Maritana"; and the newspapers there have carried columns of reminiscence and anecdote about the old ballad-opera and its composer, Vincent Wallace. "Maritana" has not been on view in the United States for about twenty years, although for a generation it was hardly second to "The Bohemian Girl" in popularity. Its "book" is an arrangement of the standard fable about Don Cæsar de Bazan. The Pall-Mall Gazette said of the revival: "For enthusiasts of the good old days, it was a musical treat; for others, it was an excursion aboard Mr. Wells' Time-Machine into a country inhabited by artless, simple folk." Some of the reviewers even recalled William Castle, the tenor: he lived on his repute as Don Cæsar long after his voice went.

Patriots among the minnesingers and troubadors continue to meet what they regard as a demand for stimulating song. The week's new titles are:

"She Was Born and Bred in Berlin; but Her Heart Beats Yankee Tunes."

"We Topped Our Drive on Villa; but on Vilheim We'll Hole Out."

"Your Eyes of Blue Will Hold Me True 'Gainst German Gretchen's Smiles."

"I Hear Hindenburg a-Callin' Me; He'll Be Sorry That He Spoke!"

"Good-Bye, My Hon-Hon-Honey; I've Got to Go and Shoot a Hun."

De Koven's most ambitious flight, "The Canterbury Pilgrims," will, it is said, be provided with a special cast and sent on a tour next season by the Metropolitan Opera management. Max Rabinoff, whose Boston Opera venture is not expected to resume activities, is to be in charge.

The Society of American Musicians, which has a Chicago basis, is sloganing in the interest of the native composer, and asking conductors throughout the land to make a point of including at least one composition by an American writer in each program. Mr. Stock is going to try to do it; but he has been trying along like lines for a long time; he has done far more than most for what, perhaps, should be typed as The Cause.

Polacco, Toscanini's successor as principal conductor of the Metropolitan Opera and now out of that institution, some time since indicated his desire to remain in the United States. He is giving reason to be regarded as belonging here: his wife has obtained a divorce. Edith Mason, one of this year's somebodies in Ravinia Park, also is observing the formalities of the operatic life in the New World: her husband is asking for one from her.

F. D.

"Why is Brahms like a submarine?" asks M. D., and answers his own conundrum: "Because you can grasp him only by plunging to the very depths."

Lamb who has had a successful year in the stock market and is willing to give a part of his profits to the building fund of his favorite club. Usually, too, the bids are run up to $300 or $400, and Hopper is tickled to get that sum.

On this occasion he was in a hurry and was evidently of a mood to sell the program at a bargain price. He called for bids and a small gentleman sitting in the right hand stage box promptly offered $1,000. The blow was staggering, but Hopper recovered sufficiently to ask the bidder's name. He proved to be William Fox, the motion picture producer who has made Theda Bara a household discussion and vampiring on the screen a recognized profession.

Mr. Hopper admitted that he did not know Mr. Fox personally, but that, to judge from the size of the bid and the reports of "Bill" Farnum, who worked for him, he was a real gent. Perfunctorily he called for another bid. It was a mere matter of form, and he appeared rather eager to hand the program over to Mr. Fox before that gentleman could register sanity and take back his gold.

"Would any one present like to give more than $1,000?" he queried, in his best comedy manner.

"One thousand, one hundred dollars!" called a gentleman in the first row. And again the auctioneer reeled backward.

This bidder, it transpired, was Herbert Brenon, a moving picture director and a former associate of Mr. Fox. And then to the knowing in the audience the secret was out. Mr. Brenon and Mr. Fox have the same love for each other that the devil is popularly supposed to have for holy water. Mr. Brenon, it will be remembered, directed the picture in which Annette Kellermann did a succession of Australian splashes as "A Daughter of the Gods," and Mr. Fox not only discharged him at the conclusion of that commission but also, as we recall it, took his name from the program and the advertisements until he was forced by the courts to put it back.

Well, no sooner had Brenon bid $1,100 than the voice of Fox was heard to cry out: "Two thousand dollars!"

"Two thousand one hundred!" promptly answered Brenon. No plain millionaire was going to get the better of him so long as he had a voice and a penny with which to back it.

But here the battle ended. Either it occurred to Mr. Fox that the joke was then resting squarely on his ancient enemy, or he had begun to figure the amount of principal on which $2,000 represented the interest, for he modestly withdrew and Brenon got the book.

There was, of course, a minstrel first part, with six comedians, mostly sad as end men, and three interlocutors. And the Hopper family joke got its annual laugh. "How are you, Mr. Collier?" asked De Wolf; "and how is your wife?" "She's all right," answered Willie; "how are yours?" Will Rogers, the Oklahoma cowboy who has come to be considered the wittiest of monologists these last few seasons, tried his hand at being an end man, too, scoring his best laugh when, in reprimanding Collier for taking a joke away from him, he told the old one of the customs of the Zulus. "Do you know, Mr. Hopper," said Will, "that no Zulu child is permitted to live after it is 2 years old, unless it shows some signs of human intelligence? Nozir. That's why you never hear of any Zulu comedians."

There was but one dramatic bit, and that a sketch destined for vaudeville brought out originally at one of the monthly gambols last winter. Two American aviators, brothers, are captured in Mexico and taken before Villa. One is strong, the other a weakling. Villa offers them their freedom if they will betray the whereabouts of Pershing's men. Fearing his weaker brother may tell, the strong one makes a compact with Villa that if he will order the execution of that uncertain party he will tell all. The weakling brother is shot and the strong one then turns on the bandit and defies him. "You could have made him tell, damn you, but you can't me. Now shoot." And Villa kills him. Donald Brian played the heroic lad and John Sainpolis the Mexican.

Vaudeville Wit

McVICKER'S.

Joseph K. Watson: Years ago I married a widow who had a grown-up daughter. My father visited us often, fell into love with my stepdaughter, and married her. Thus he became my son-in-law and my stepdaughter became my mother, because she was my father's wife. Soon after this my wife gave birth to a son, who, of course, was my father's brother-in-law and my uncle, for he was the brother of my stepmother. My father's wife also became the mother of a son. He was, of course, my brother and also my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter. Accordingly, my wife was my grandmother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at one and the same time, and, as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I became my own grandfather.

What relation am I to myself?

My motto is "Follow the crowd." The other day I saw a large crowd going into a church, so I went in, too. It turned out to be a wedding. A Miss Stock was marrying a Mr. Bond. I suppose in a few years they'll have a lot of little coupons. When it came the bride's turn to answer the question, "Will you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband," a man standing near the bride answered, "I will." Thinking that his ears must have deceived him, the minister again put the same question to the bride. "Will you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband?" And once more the man standing near her answered, "I will." That made the minister angry, and, turning to the man, he said, "Do you know that you are interrupting the wedding ceremony?" "I can't help it," said the man, "the bride is deaf, so I'm answering for her."

McVICKER'S.

Izetta: One day the county board paid the school a visit. In order to show off my scholars to the best advantage I asked them to stand up and tell what they were thankful for. The first one called on was little Willie Smith. "I thank the Lord," said Willie, "because I'm big, and strong, and happy, and have loving parents and a kind teacher." The next one called upon was Izzi Cohen. Now, Izzi was red haired, cross eyed, and freckled, to say nothing of being bow-legged and having buck teeth. "Tell us what you are thankful for," said the teacher. "I ain't thankful for anything," said Izzi. "The good Lord nearly ruined me."

But Izzi is going to make a good business man just the same. One day I was invited to take dinner at Izzi's house, and while at the table his father said to him: "When I die I'm going to leave you all my money." And what do you suppose Izzi answered? "Say, pop, I'll throw off 5 per cent for prompt cash."

One day a poor man called at the school and asked me if I couldn't tell him where he could get some work. So I showed him an advertisement that a farmer had put in the local newspaper, reading: "Wanted—A man who speaks German and understands horses." He looked at me a moment, doubtfully, and then said: "I speak German, all right, but I don't know that I can understand those horses. What language do they speak?"

TOM AND BILL STICK TOGETHER.

By Mae Tinée.

YOU remember the devoted wife in Dickens' story who would "never desert Mr. Micawber"? Well, Mrs. Micawberlike is said to be the devotion of William S. Hart for Thomas H. Ince. The folowing story is told of their friendship:

A number of years ago on a cold afternoon, Mr. Hart and Mr. Ince sat together in a chilly room by a fire that was almost out. Said Mr. Ince to Mr. Hart: "Just think, Bill, next week is Thanksgiving and we have no money with which to buy a Thanksgiving dinner."

Mr. Hart sighed lugubriously and said nothing. In his eyes, however, was the light of determination. He left Mr. Ince and went forth into the world. The day before Thanksgiving he came back and dumped $75 into Mr. Ince's lap, saying: "Here, Tom, is money, now we can have that Thanksgiving dinner."

It developed that Mr. Hart had all by himself gone over into a New Jersey town and put on a wild west show, he himself being practically the entire exhibition, and had in this way managed to collect the required shekels for food.

From that time on, the two were inseparable, Mr. Ince always finding work for Mr. Hart to do and endeavoring to raise his salary to meet the offers which he has constantly been receiving from others. Mr. Hart on his part, it is said, has refused to consider any offer in which Ince is not included, his motto being: "If I go you go too—if you stay, why, I stay!" His contracts, it is said, always include a "joker," and the "joker" always has immediate reference to the treatment of one Thomas H. Ince.

You understand, I am not telling this story myself. It is a tale that was poured into my ears the other day. I thought it interesting and decided to pass it on.

There will be a Red Cross booth at the convention and one of the first donations to be received, for it was from Mary Miles Minter, who donated a "What you may call it." It's a sort of a handbag for the dainty woman to carry during the summer days. Several of the stars will donate gowns which have been worn in their successful features. These gowns will be given free to the girls whom they fit best and who wear them with the most becoming grace. Marguerite Clark and Anita Stewart were two of the first to send frocks. The opening day, Saturday, July 14, has been assigned to Goldwyn. Mae Marsh and other Goldwyn stars will be present. Sunday will be Pathé day. Mrs. Vernon Castle, Pearl White, Florence Reed, and other Pathé stars will be featured. Tuesday, the 17th, will be Butterfly day, with Violet Mersereau as the featured star. Wednesday will be World Pictures day. Alice Brady, Ethel Clayton, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley, Madge Evans, Carlyle Blackwell, and Montague Love will be present. The closing day has been assigned to Metro, which has promised to have Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Edith Story, Violet Dana, Harold Lockwood, and other Metro stars on hand to say good-by to the exhibitors and friends.

Ruth Roland is visiting about 10,000 friends and, incidentally, her husband, in Los Angeles. She will soon return to New York, however, to resume work on a new picture.

The idea that numerous motion picture stars are different in other ways from the ordinary run of human beings is all wrong. They eat the same sort of food, drink water, or maybe other things; wear rubbers when it rains and chew gum when the spirit moves them. In another part of the paper proof is offered that this is so. In the picture which is given as a supplement you will notice that one is wearing a sweater and a sports hat, just as are all the rest of the women of the civilized world.

Miss Marguerite Clark's garden in Rye, New York, will not bloom with roses and violets this year. Instead the festive potato blossom and the sweet scent of the onion will replace them.

In her third Pathé feature Mrs. Vernon Castle will have, as her leading man, Antonio Moreno.

It is said that more than 50,000 persons viewed the British war picture, "The Tanks in Action," at Orchestra hall last week. The proceeds of this picture will go to the American and British war relief.

A delight is in sight for the kiddies. "Jack and the Beanstalk," a Fox feature, will be released in the near future.

William Farnum has a really patriotic flower garden at his summer home in North Haven, L. I. There are beautiful beds of red geraniums, white tulips and blue pansies. A unique offer was made to him last week. One of the big tobacco companies is about to place upon the market a special brand of cigars. It was proposed to call the brand the "William Farnum cigar—the strongest in the world." Needless to say Mr. Farnum declined with thanks.

Arthur Maude has been appointed managing director of the newly incorporated Eagle company. This company will make state right features, headed by well known stars, and preparations are being made for a six reel feature with Constance Crawley and Arthur Maude. It is further rumored that the company will build its own studios in Hollywood, Cal.

Kathlyn Williams' vacation last week was spent by the star in writing a scenario.

Dick Willis, an energetic p. a., is responsible for the following:

HER ACCOMPLISHMENTS.

"O, how I dot on swimming!" cried the Picture's Pretty Pet,
"I'm never really happy till from head to toe I'm wet."
Then she donned her dainty costume—'twas of silk—took parasol,
And gave the boys a treat, and dipped her ankles, that was all!

"I am quite a famous rider, and I love my horse and crop,
And when I am a-horseback, well, I never want to stop."
So she wore her riding habit, took some close-ups by a horse,
But was doubled in the riding stunts by "extra" girls, of course!

"I am very fond of flying, and must buy an aeroplane;
I consider flights below two thousand feet to be inane."
Her suit was just the cutest thing they ever filmed, but lo!
Her "double" had one like it when on flying trips she'd go.

The Picture Pet had frocks which covered every kind of sport,
But never swam, or rode, or flew, because she'd ne'er been taught.
Her "double" did the reckless deeds, but press and posters blared
The Public's Picture Pet's renown as "she who did and dared!"

Miss Anna Little says, "It is easy to be a real heroine." Miss Little ought to know, because the other day when Fred Balshofer, her director, stood on an overhanging rock in Arizona and she saw the supporting rocks crumbling she grabbed his arm and pulled him back and the rock went down the canon. Will somebody page Mr. Carnegie?

At the age of three weeks "Fatty" Arbuckle was attracting the attention of the public and press. He won first prize at a baby show in Smith's Center Kas., due to the fact that the judges found him a perfect infant. At least so saith his p. a.

Employés of the American Film company in Santa Barbara, Cal., pledged $250,000 to the Liberty loan.

Mary Miles Minter is spending her evenings in Red Cross training. She is even willing to sacrifice her screen career for nursing at the front. Too many soldiers in the hospital, I'm afraid, if such were the case.

William Russell is learning to pilot an army airplane. A case of high aspirations.

One of the most important foreign deals which has been closed since the beginning of the war has been made between the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and John Olson & Co., film dealers of the Scandinavian countries, by the terms of which the latter concern acquires control of the Douglas Fairbanks, Artcraft, Pallas, Morosco, Bosworth and Arbuckle Paramount pictures for Norway, Sweden, and Denmark.

Monroe Salisbury's mother has been quite ill.

Chester Bennett, after consultation as to the condition of his eyes, was informed that a cataract is growing over each eyeball and gradually bringing on blindness, and was told that an immediate operation is imperative, and yet it was Tuesday and he must begin work on a picture on Saturday. After consulting his director and doctor the operation was performed on Tuesday night and on Saturday morning Mr. Bennett was before the camera. He had sixty-two stitches taken in his eyelids.

George M. Cohan last week presented to Miss Elsa Maxwell, chairman of the American ambulance in Russia, a fully equipped ambulance donated by Hiram Abraus, president of the Paramount Pictures corporation. The ambulance is now en route to Russia, where it will soon see service.

Miss Marguerite Beriza.

Madame Beriza will reappear on Wednesday night in Ravinia Park as Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and on Friday night as Thais in three excerpts from Massenet's opera. ◆

Q. S. V.: Right you are. I have merely given the spelling as it is given in the production. So I'm right, too, am I not? And what a patriotic soul we are with the blue and red pencil and the blue, and white paper.

THIS GETS A LAUGH FROM SOME IN VAUDEVILLE

McVICKER'S.

Millard Brothers:

Hereafter I want nothing more to do with you. Do you understand?

I doose. After this when we come together we stay apart.

That's it.

When we meet as friends we are to be enemeeses.

That's the idea. If you ever dare to address me on the street I'll kick you so high that you'll never come down again. Do you "get me"?

It's so plain that I can almost feel myself going upstairs already.

Where are you going?

My uncle left me some money in his will and I'm going down to my lawyers and collect it.

How much did he leave you?

Eleven hundred thousand rubles, ninety-four thousand gulden, and a million and a half piasters.

How much is that in United States money?

Four dollars and thirty-five cents.

I think that you're a rich man and are trying to conceal the fact from me. Come over here a minute.

Not much; you want to kick me.

Why, what an idea! Whenever we meet, just say "Hello" and I'll always be ready to extend my hand.

Just now you said you'd alwayw be ready to extend your foot.

Can't you take a joke? Just to show you that I'm a friend of yours, I invite you to come up to the house for dinner tonight.

Can't you make the invitation for tomorrow night?

Why, certainly; but where are you dining tonight?

Same place. I met your wife this morning and she invited me for tonight.

You always got your gall with you.

Yes; and I always got my appetite with me, too.

I'm afraid the people you are associating with are corrupting your morals.

I never met the lady.

For instance, I saw you go into a gambling house today.

What of it?

What of it? My boy, you shouldn't visit any place to which you would not feel justified in taking your own sister.

How about a barber shop?

And here's another thing. The exhibition you sometimes make of yourself in public places leads me to think that you're not quite in your right mind.

What's the matter now?

Didn't I see you standing outside of a baseball park a few weeks ago?

That's where you saw me standing—outside. I didn't have money enough to go inside.

That's all right; but why did you push one of your fingers through a knot hole in the fence.

I wanted my finger to see the game.

You wanted your finger to see the game? (Aside) Can you beat that? (To him) Why, you haven't got eyes in your finger.

Haven't I?

Certainly not, and anything you haven't got eyes in you can't see with.

Then according to that your finger never saw a baseball game.

No; my finger never saw a baseball game.

And your elbow never saw a steamboat?

Certainly my elbow never saw a steamboat.

And you stomach never saw a moving picture show?

Certainly my stomach never saw a moving picture show.

And your foot never saw a bathtub?

No; my foot never saw a bathtub.

You dirty thing!

RIALTO.

O'Connor and Dixon:

Say, you are not looking well.

I ain't feeling well.

A case of indigestion?

No, a case of beer.

I am surprised at you; when we passed the fruit store you stole a handful of peanuts.

Well, they were peanuts; not diamonds.

That makes no diserence; when you took them you were stealing.

I wasn't stealing, I was only practicing.

Practicing for what?

To get on the police force.

O, I see, you want to become a "bull."

No, sir; I want to become a cop.

Bull is slang for a cop. I know; I used to wrestle with a cop every day at the gymnasium.

I bet you always won.

What makes you say that?

Because you are so good at "throwing the bull."

That's enough. So you want to become a policeman; a policeman's life is not an easy one; there's lots of work, lot of danger, lots of —— (Interrupting him) Graft.

Never mind about the graft. That'll come later.

I hope you will never be caught making a dishonest dollar.

No, I'll be very careful not to be caught.

Have a care.

I'd rather have a beer.

If you were a policeman, what would you do for keeping the dog from going mad in July?

I'd shoot him in June.

Soldiers' Wives Join the Second Line of Defense

By Mme. X.

WHEREVER war's horrid mien has thrust itself a new grouping of the sexes has ensued. In each nation millions of men have left, or are planning to leave, their homes and places of business for the active prosecution of war. In each nation millions of women are organising themselves into working bodies to form the second line of defense.

This separation of the inhabitants of a country into bands of men and bands of women is reflected in many a household where the men of the family have gone to serve the country, while the women who stay at home have joined others of their sex in some of the many war relief activities or in the still more patriotic war industries now open to them in all countries.

Such a divided and bereft family is that of Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson of Winnetka. She and her three daughters have always had a large masculine element in their family life. When she bought the fine old Garland place, occupying one of the most beautiful of the bluff sites overlooking Lake Michigan, she took her four children, three daughters and a son, there and from that time on the establishment has been noted for its hospitality. It was always full of life and gayety, and young men swarmed there.

Three of these—Lieut. Raymond W. Hardenbergh, Ayres Boal, and George Massey—became, in the course of time, permanent features in the domestic landscape by each marrying one of the three Miss Johnsons. The Hardenberghs spent some years in Argentina, but two years ago returned to Winnetka, where the Masseys and Boals were already settled.

Mrs. Johnson's only son, Stewart Johnson, meanwhile had embarked on a diplomatic career and was seeing service in the capitals of some of our Central American neighbors.

Quick to Answer Country's Call.

Now comes the war and Mrs. Johnson's sons-in-law were among the promptest to answer their country's call. Their wives, as true patriots as their husbands, put no obstacles in their way, although each family had small children and each household was entirely dependent on the paterfamilias.

Lieut. Hardenbergh is up at the training camp at Fort Sheridan, qualifying to return to the service from which he resigned a decade ago. Ayres Boal and George Massey enlisted in the United States navy and, oddly enough, were both assigned to the same ship, the Lusso, by powers that knew nothing of their relationship, Mr. Massey as chief engineer and Mr. Boal as ensign.

Stewart Johnson is now serving as chargé d'affaires at Costa Rica, where at the moment he has as house guests—during a lively little revolution or temporary rebellion—the Costa Rican president and family. In these Latin-American upheavals, which are as frequent as are Latin-American volcanic eruptions, our government always recognises the nominal government until it is put entirely out of business by insurgent forces. His country has kept Mr. Johnson so busy at various diplomatic posts that he has not had time to come home to get married to his fiancée, Miss Katherine Re Qua.

The result of all this national service is that Mrs. Johnson and her three daughters are left quite manless and bereft of that element which alone makes life interesting to the average woman.

To fill up the deficiency all four women are working hard in various forms of war relief work. Every fortnight Mrs. Johnson throws open her charming and spacious house for a dance, the proceeds of which—for admission is by ticket—go to swell some excellent fund. Last evening's dance was for the benefit of the Red Cross. A pay supper at Mrs. John W. Scott's preceded it. A fortnight hence the object of the affair will be the Pershing kits—a project already attracting great support in New York, Boston, and other eastern places. Now that our troops are really on French soil they and their comfort should be our first consideration.

Aim to Save Food.

Mrs. J. M. Patterson and Mrs. Tiffany Blake are arranging a massmeeting for cooks and their mistresses in Lake Forest next Wednesday afternoon, when the ethics of food conservation—the whys and the wherefores of this vitally important topic—will be emphasised and explained to them. To ignore this question, to go on as in ante-war days, is to be extremely unpatriotic.

More and more will our eyes and our thoughts turn to France now that so many of our men and women are going there. Miss "Suzette" Ryerson sailed for a French port week before last, going with the Misses Fell and Schofield, the great exponents of the needs of the French war orphans, who have raised in this country—well, it's a great deal of money for these luckless youngsters—some hundreds of thousands of dollars. Alas, that even this generous contribution only touches the edges of the need of France's war orphans!

Miss Ryerson goes to do bacteriological work in a French hospital near the front, a department of expert labor much in need of such aid as hers. She took her degree at the University of Chicago shortly before leaving here.

A Practical Home Charity.

Meanwhile her mother, Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, is carrying on a practical home charity so beautiful and appealing in character that if she doesn't have imitators it will be because the millenium is still too far off to be realized. In her artistic, attractive, and exquisite new house, which overlooks the green groves and smooth lawns of the north end of Lincoln park, she is now hostess to twenty-two fragile, pale, wistful looking little convalescents, heart cases, from the Children's Memorial hospital, and their attendant nurses.

Although her green paneled drawing room is the most perfect expression of the Georgian period that David Adler could design, although her molded ceilings are pure Adam, although her dark floors are of a polish an ancient royal palace might envy, they are not too fine for the twenty-two little white painted iron beds she installed there before she went east.

Some of her neighbors objected to her project before the children were installed—for you have to get the consent of your near neighbors before you do a [illegible]dently Christian act—but some of these same objectors wrote her after the arrival of her pallid little guests thanking her for what she had done and saying that it was a lovely sight to see the children sitting on her balconies or being wheeled into the sunshine and shade of the park's fragrant paths. To see your duty clearly and to do it without flinching is to be every inch a Christian.

Off for Petrograd.

To start out on an overseas journey is much more of an adventure nowadays than it used to be, so that those who bid godspeed to the young bridal couple, the Laurence Houghtelings, who leave here today for Russia via Vladivostok, do it with especial fervor and friendly good will. Mr. Houghteling goes as commercial attaché (or is it secretary?) to the American embassy at Petrograd, a most important post when you consider the possibilities of our trade relations with the new Russia.

The Houghtelings will probably have Dr. Billings as a fellow traveler, as he plans to go about the same time, and when you start off on a journey which will occupy many weeks it is more than pleasant to have company on the way of friends from home.

The Houghtelings are planning to keep house in Petrograd, a lively problem in such an extremely foreign country as Russia is to us with its utterly different customs and its almost insurmountable language.

Apropos of Russia, it is interesting to hear that the Cantacuzenes stand high with the new republican government there. Our interest in this is of course due to the fact that Princess Cantacuzene was Miss Julia Grant, daughter of the late Gen. Frederick Dent Grant. Her husband is now a general on the Russian general staff and both Prince and Princess Cantacuzene are in hearty sympathy with the new order of things over there. Early in the war the former was wounded in an engagement in Galicia. As soon as his wound was healed he returned to the Russian front, serving for a time on the Grand Duke Nicholas' staff. Princess Cantacuzene has been an active worker in the Russian Red Cross since the beginning of the war.

Seminary to Be Architectural Gem.

Of course, the war is the chief concern of each one of us. We rise up with it in the morning, we talk and think of it all day, and go to bed with it at night, but still our daily domestic life and the life of the city goes on as before. And an important event in the development of Chicago as a good looking metropolis is the building now going up in Rush street, between Pearson and Chestnut streets. This is to be the Quigley Preparatory seminary, and will be one of the most beautiful and effective pieces of architecture in the city, if designs are carried out as planned.

It is to be of Bedford limestone, that most acceptable of building material. The style is to be early French Gothic. The façade of the main college will be a copy of the beautiful Hotel de Ville at Bruges. The two ornate wings will be in keeping with this main building; the one to the north will house the library and the gymnasium; the one to the south, which will thrust an exquisite spire into the air, will be the seminary chapel dedicated to St. James the Apostle, the patron saint of the late archbishop, for whom the seminary is named. The architects of the building are Mr. Steinbeck of Brooklyn and Zachary Taylor of Chicago.

The Gothic lines of the Fourth Presbyterian church on the next block to the northeast of this site spurred the promoters of this new seminary building to an architectural achievement which promises to surpass anything in this line that we have in Chicago.

Europe owes so many of its famous and beautiful monuments and buildings to the Roman Catholic church that there's not a Protestant who doesn't feel grateful to the grand old mother church for the heritage of beauty left the world during the last nearly 2,000 years. In this country, however, until of late years the church seemed to have departed from her architectural traditions. That she is once more resuming her away of beauty is evidenced not only by this Quigley seminary but by the exquisite church erected on the corner of Sheridan road and Buena avenue, and copied from the famous Santa Maria Trastevere in Rome.

Delay in Construction.

The seminary was to have been finished this coming autumn, but the contractors and engineers reckoned without taking into consideration the contrarieties of Chicago's subsoil. Instead of driving in the piles and cement posts the seventy feet first figured on, it was found that a much greater depth would have to be sounded before the necessary foundation was reached. This necessitated a delay of nearly a year in the completion of the building.

The site of the building is part of an ancient burying ground, one that in the forties of the last century stretched from Chicago avenue to North avenue. Therefore it was not to be wondered at that some unrecorded human bones were brought to light during the excavations for the seminary. During the construction of the big apartment building at the corner of State street and North avenue the Italian workmen struck and left the place in a body when five coffins and their contents were exhumed.

The Quigley preparatory seminary has been in operation since 1911 and now there are thirty-five of its graduates who are priests in this diocese. About 200 a year are graduated from it into the priesthood. It is proposed henceforth to support it by scholarships. Twenty-five hundred dollars endows a perpetual five year scholarship. These can be founded as memorials of some church member and the only return the beneficiary is asked to make is for ten years after graduation to say masses for the soul of the departed in whose memory the $2,500 is given. Five years after the scholarship is founded there will thus be established two masses which will continually and for all time be offered up for the memorialized dead.

Talk on Y. W. C. A. Work.

Today Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick is gathering together from Lake Forest and the nearby suburbs a large company to hear Mr. Whitehair, Miss McCook, and others speak on the work of the Y. W. C. A. near military camps and of the necessity for enlarging such labors for the protection of the youth of both sexes, an undertaking which in the east has been recognised as of vital importance.

Speaking of camps, the "Dick" Danielsons, who stopped for a couple of days last week at Evanston with Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, expressed themselves as somewhat dismayed at having a training camp of 40,000 of the coming draft army open next September within a short distance of their country place at Groton.

It is not the camp itself that is questioned as a neighbor; it is the escort of thousands of camp followers, which it is difficult to eliminate from these military assemblages. They are the pest of the army. Gambling, drinking, women, carousing are the apparent concomitants of such a training camp. It was the talk of the Texas camps, and unless extreme preventive measures are taken will again menace our coming army, in spite of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

Free Lessons in French.

Many of our men and women who have gone to France find themselves much hampered in their efforts to aid in hospitals and war relief work by a lack of knowledge of the language. To help remedy this difficulty Mme. Charles Bigot and Mrs. Lysander Hill, two Chicago women who speak perfect French, are going to hold French conversational classes at the Allied Relief headquarters at 60 East Washington street, where, quite without any cost, soldiers, physicians, clergymen, nurses, and others destined to go to the aid of France can at least acquire the first steps in and a certain familiarity with the language—the most beautiful speaking language in the world.

Pupils must register at the French war shop and bring pencils and note books to the classes. Mrs. Hill says that she and her sister, Mme. Bigot, "will do the rest."

Gradually society is melting away from Chicago's boulevards and avenues. On Wednesday Mrs. Watson Blair left town for New London, Conn., where she expects to meet Mr. Blair and hopes to get in touch with her two sailor lads, Watson Jr. and Wolcott. On the same day Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coleman departed for Santa Barbara, where they have taken a little vine embowered cottage half way between the mountains and the sea in lovely Montecito valley.

Gradually the city assumes its summer air when restaurants and highways swarm with new faces, for Chicago, be it known, is a favorite summer resort for southerners.

A Recent Bride Who Is Now on Her Honeymoon.

Mrs. Austin B. Clement, who, before her wedding on June 23, was Miss Corinne Dewey, is now with her husband on a delightful honeymoon in the east, motoring through the White mountains. This wedding journey, so letters from the young couple tell, is taking them through country which is beautiful enough to compensate for the loss of their originally planned trip to Honolulu, which was prevented on account of the war. Mr. Clement, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen M. Clement, has enlisted in the navy and expects to be called into active service soon. Mrs. Clement has been called Chicago's most beautiful girl.

Women of Illinois Enlist for Service Behind Uncle Sam.

TO THE WOMEN OF ILLINOIS.

Will you work for right with all your might,
With hearts that never lag,
At home in the second line of defense,
With the boys at the front for the flag?

No matter how humble your talent may be
Nor how few the moments to spare,
You can do your bit with all your heart
And show Uncle Sam you're there!

EVERY woman in Illinois will be asked to offer her services for some war work as soon as the registration cards of the council of national defense come from Washington. Already 1,500 women have registered in Chicago from the humblest tasks to the most arduous ones.

With an army of men taken out of the industries of the country, there will be nothing more patriotic for a woman to do than to offer herself to fill the place of one of those men. Just how she is going to do it still remains on the knees of the gods, but the women of the country are not going to be found wanting when the need becomes evident.

"Already the women of Illinois lead the nation in woman's preparedness for war work," was the message Mrs. Raymond Robins brought back from Washington to the state meeting of the woman's committee of the council of national defense which was in session here last week. It was a marvelously efficient convention and plans were perfected for every line of work.

In the matter of food conservation—the way of service which presents itself immediately to every woman—the convention not only promised its support of the Hoover pledge, which every woman will be asked to sign at the time of registration, but it applauded the work of THE TRIBUNE in printing the Give by Giving Up pledge which its readers have been asked to sign. Mrs. Lawrence Meeker, Miss Mary Waller, and Mrs. Fred Elijah constituted themselves newsboys for the distribution of the papers and when the copies of the paper were all given away many of the delegates pleaded to have their names put upon the pledge list.

Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Henry Harvey, and Mrs. John Winterbotham signed the pledge at a tea at Mrs. Winterbotham's, and at the convention the signers included Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Augustus S. Peabody, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. M. P. Blair, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. J. H. Lovett, Mrs. E. A. Soden, Miss Harriet Vittum, the Starrett School for Girls, Miss Virginia Chandler, Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, Mrs. Lyndon Evans, and Mrs. John S. Sley.

Although THE TRIBUNE is working with the Hoover pledge and is making the same conditions, no registration fee is required for THE TRIBUNE pledge.

Emphasis was laid at the convention on the fact that war work will be simply additional responsibility for women and in no way should it be allowed to lessen the enthusiasm for home charities or social service of normal times. "In fact, these agencies will be the more heavily taxed since they must now be father, brother, and adviser to families whose support is fighting for us at the front," said Mrs. Dunlap Smith, chairman of the home charities committee.

Mrs. Raymond Robins was on the defensive for women and children in industries. She cited the mistake, which England now acknowledges, of ignoring industrial standards as to hours of employment for women and the employment of children in factories for the war period. She warned us against the same mistake and insisted that industrial standards were necessary and fair not only for the women who take men's places but to the soldiers themselves, who should not return to find standards and wages for which they had fought for years lowered.

Lifting the sympathies of the audience at the convention from home defense to the war stricken areas, Mrs. William E. Clarke spoke for the allied relief, which on the new war basis, becomes like the Red Cross and all other agencies coöperating with the national council of defense. Clothes, food, and supplies for the women and children of the devastated area of France and Belgium are the immediate care of the allied relief. Mrs. Frank Scott told of the needs of the hospitals of France, where there are 900,000 soldiers to be cared for and restored to the country.

Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, a member of the advisory board of the American Red Cross and vice chairman of the Chicago chapter of hospital supplies, outlined the work of the Red Cross and plead that new chapters be formed wherever ten Red Cross members can gather a circle around them. Mrs. John MacMahon reported 206 such chapters in Chicago and encouraged more.

The ninety women's organizations represented at the convention include every phase of woman's activities in the country.

The following is the full committee which is putting the women of Illinois behind Uncle Sam. They will be the silent and untiring army that holds the job, fills the bread basket, and dresses the wounds of the boy at the front, at the same time nourishing his family at home—a real job, but one for which the American woman is ready if she is called.

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Frangley announce the marriage of their daughter, Hazel, to Joseph W. Schubert.

The first real military wedding of the present season, when so much is being said about war weddings and military simplicity, was that which took place yesterday afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church, when Miss Mary Louise Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Russell of 19 East Goethe street, was married to Capt. Arthur Reed Christie, U. S. A., who is officer in charge of the signal corps of the aviation school at Chicago. That dignified and solemn formality, the recessional from the altar of the wedding party, who walked under the crossed swords of the ushers, who were officers and enlisted men, was observed, and deeply impressed the guests. It also did much to enhance the charm of the girls of the bridal party, who wore simple summer frocks of pale blue and wide hats and carried June roses. Miss Doris Russell, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and Mrs. John W. Root and Miss Arielle Frost were the other attendants. Capt. Joseph C. Morrow, U. S. A., was best man and the ushers were Capt. Hanney, Capt. Ray Hill, Capt. Roy Brown, Lieut. Paul Root Davison, Lieut. Harrison Flickinger, Joseph Kelleher, John McIlvaine, and Knight Coles. The wedding of Miss Dottie Mae McCarthy, daughter of John H. McCarthy of 2975 Indiana avenue, and Frederick A. Bryar will take place on Wednesday at 5:30 p. m. at St. James' church, Twenty-ninth street and Wabash avenue. The Rev. John A. McCarthy, brother of of the bride, will officiate. The Eleventh Church of Christ, Scientist, 2840 Logan boulevard, will open its new edifice today. There will be three services, at 10:45 a. m., 3:30 and 7:45 p. m. The cost of the entire property is $172,000. The building is 90x120 feet, of classic design, with Greek detail. The exterior is of buff Bedford stone, the roof of asbestos slate, and the construction of reinforced concrete on a steel skeleton. The building is fireproof. The auditorium will seat 1,500. It is 80x100 feet and is surrounded by a colonade of Ionic pillars supporting a paneled ceiling. The chairs, doors, and furniture are American walnut. The lot was purchased in June, 1914, and the cornerstone laid just one year ago. The architect is Leon Stanhope.

Sunday Schools Make Gifts on Patriotic Sunday

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

A NATION-WIDE observance by the churches of today as patriotic Sunday will be nearly as universal as the observance of Christmas or Easter. The appeal to the churches came from many sides and was the subject of a special proclamation by President Wilson. The International Sunday School association sent an emergency call to its 150,000 Sunday schools and made many suggestions to add interest and permanent value to the day. Individual denominations coöperated with the international association by bringing local pressure to bear.

The board of Sunday schools of the Methodist Episcopal church asked for a direct gift of $100,000 for the Red Cross which might be presented in a single check as a gift of the Sunday schools of the denomination, in addition to any gifts that might come from the churches or individual givers.

The honor paid to the new recruits, it is hoped, will have a stimulating effect on further enlistments and in arousing a keener national interest in the prosecution of the war and especially in holding the nation to the ideals of morality, unselfishness, and freedom from a spirit of race hatred, while at the same time infusing a glow of patriotic fervor which is essential in leading the nation to make the necessary sacrifices.

A flag will be raised over the Berry Memorial Methodist Episcopal church, North Leavitt and Giddings streets, at 10:30 today in connection with the patriotic program. The William E. Strong post of the G. A. R. and two troops of Boy Scouts will take part in the ceremony. After the ceremony W. E. Timms of hospital corps No. 1 will give bugle calls and explain their uses to the congregation. Mr. Timms will also give bugle calls from the church tower while the flag is being raised. The Rev. Alfred Peache, the pastor, will preach on "The Greater America."

Following the request of President Wilson that all of the Sunday schools of the country observe today as patriotic Sunday proclamations were issued by the governors of Alaska, Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and Wyoming calling upon the Sunday schools of their respective states to observe the day. Other governors, while not issuing formal proclamations, expressed approval of the idea.

Two hundred thousand letters were sent to pastors by Herbert Hoover, national food administrator, requesting them to urge upon their congregations the duty and necessity of food conservation.

The Third Presbyterian church, Ashland and Ogden avenues, will observe today the seventieth anniversary of its organization with the homecoming of former members and special services.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Wheaton, Ill., will be opened today with services at 10:45 a. m., 3:30, and 7:45 p. m. The church is at Main and Center streets three blocks north of the stations of the Northwestern railroad and the Aurora and Elgin electric road. The auditorium with extension over the foyer will seat 500 and the Sunday school room provides for 300 children. The woodwork is walnut and ivory tints prevail in the decorations. S. S. Beman of Chicago is the architect.

Money is being raised among the deaf to equip an American deaf people's ambulance for service in France. The Rev. O. F. Flick, rector of All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church for the Deaf of Chicago, in making a plea for funds pays tribute to the debt the deaf owe Abbe de l'Eppe, Sicard, Clerc, and other sons of France for the sign language education of the deaf. The ambulance will be driven by John K. Cloud.

The Christ Norwegian Lutheran church, Kedzie boulevard near Milwaukee avenue, will celebrate today the twelfth anniversary of its organization, and its pastor, the Rev. J. H. Meyer, will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of his pastorate in Chicago, he having served more than seven years as pastor of Zion church before organizing Christ church. Christ church has a property valued at $50,000 and carries a debt of $18,000, which Pastor Meyer is seeking to remove. The service at 10:45 a. m. will be in Norwegian and at 4 p. m. in English. The speakers at the afternoon service will be the Rev. L. Harrisville, the Rev. L. Moe, and the Rev. Dr. J. R. Birkelund. At 7:30 p. m. there will be the closing organ recital of the season.

The corner stone of the St. Justin Martyr, Roman Catholic church, Seventy-first and Honore streets, will be laid today by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. E. A. Kelly, pastor of St. Anne's church. The Rev. J. K. Fielding is pastor. The parish was created a year ago and Father Fielding was appointed pastor and organizer. The church will cost $65,000.

Official changes among Roman Catholic priests as pastors or assistant pastors are as follows:

The Rev. Philip Kennedy, St. Jarlath's, to pastorate of St. Patrick's, Joliet; the Rev. Frances Scanlan, Holy Cross, to pastorate St. Raymond's, Joliet; the Rev. James Halleran, to assist at St. Jarlath's; the Rev. Edward E. Broderick to assist at Holy Cross. The two last named priests were recently ordained.

A newly organized fraternity of young men, the Hunters of Arcadia, will conduct the vesper services this evening at 5 o'clock at the Plymouth Congregational church, 935 East Fiftieth street. These young men live together at 4583 Oakenwald avenue and have adopted as their motto, "Make happy; be happy." They are especially interested in young men who do not have any home life and who desire more intimate social relations than can be had in big institutions. Following the religious service there will be a social at which refreshments will be served.

A conference of invited Christian Endeavor officers will be held at Winona Lake, Ind., from Tuesday to Friday. Dr. F. E. Clark, the Rev. Dan A. Poling, the president's associate, and the Rev. Ira Landrith will be among those who will make addresses.

The twenty-sixth anniversary convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America will be held in Detroit, Mich., beginning Thursday morning and continuing over next Sunday. H. B. Osgood of Chicago is the president of the international organization and the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of the Hyde Park Baptist church and chaplain in charge of Fort Sheridan, will be one of the speakers. John Ruthven of Morgan Park will be in charge of the delegation which leaves Chicago Wednesday morning. The Rev. James A. White, the general secretary, has his headquarters in Chicago. The B. Y. P. U. was organized in Chicago twenty-six years ago and last year held its silver jubilee convention here in the Coliseum.

The Rev. Frederick Pfotenhauer, president of the Missouri synod of the Lutheran church, and the Rev. G. Schuessler, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Princeton avenue and Sixtieth place, are two Chicago ministers who will speak next Sunday in Spencer park, Logansport, Ind., at a Reformation jubilee. The churches of Lafayette, Peru, and four other neighboring towns will join in the celebration. There will be services morning and afternoon and a picnic lunch at noon.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Smart Set Stays in Town to Help With War Work

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—As July arrives it is befitting to give a summer directory of our smart set. Like all social registers it should be prefaced with a little generalization on the habits and instincts of this body. The appropriate topic for such a treatise this year is the marked change brought about by war in the summer activities of the well to do. No longer are they flitting away for the hot period to hide themselves under the reefs and ledges of ocean crags and in rich social domiciles until the first blast of frost sounds their release.

The women of the smart set are interested in war work; they now have as life sized a job as their husbands; they cannot daily in the country idly; business calls them, and they are in town on Monday mornings as punctiliously as the men. They are making and distributing bandages and having that big, important mission on their hearts and minds they have taken week end places.

New York is scarcely more this summer than a big headquarters for relief work. The children and the old people are enjoying the green retreats of sylvan, sumptuous summer places. The grownups are hitting the hot, hard pavements of the big city. There will be as many of the well known among the four hundred here this month and in August as in December. Those of them who do not stay at hotels have their own homes open and this brings me to a point that I wish to make in this preface to my own private social register.

New York looks different; its doors are not barricaded, are not nailed up as in other years. You can walk right up to the most exclusive, the most massive, the most costly of them in Fifth avenue and ring. The door will be opened for you by the same butler who receives you in the winter and not by an Italian in his blue gingham shirt with white stripes in it and the sleeves rolled up—the handy person round the deserted summer house who looks as if his rich and grand mistress had grabbed him off the shift that was digging Fifth avenue in front of her mansion. Yes, indeed, it makes of New York a changed and a friendly place to have the butlers all here out of season—a most notable sidelight to register on the war.

In the Country for Week Ends.

But my major point is that this will be a summer of week ends. You will see the motor inching its dusty way along the serpentine lines of white pink on Saturdays out toward a leafy bay set with magnificent stone houses, and you will see it inching its way back again toward the hard and dusty and unventilated city on Monday morning. Mrs. High and Mighty as well as her husband, the lord of Wall street, will be contained therein, and each will have the same harassed, world driven look in the face. At Forty-second street they will separate and go their weary, responsible ways alone.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont will go to her house at Great Neck soon and will remain there until she opens Marble house at Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scribner, who returned from California some little time ago, have gone to their place at Morristown, N. J., for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman are at Ridgeleigh, White Plains, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, who passed several of the spring months at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., are at Staatsburg, N. Y., and will soon go to Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gurnee and their daughter, Miss Bell B. Gurnee, are in their houses at Westbury, L. I.

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs and her son, Herman, have opened their villa, Rosecliff, in Newport, where not so long ago they gave the wonderful fête in which they showed fashions and thereby set a pace in smart entertaining which has been striven after ever since. No suffrage fête, no church bazaar, no Greenwich village carnival but has shown its styles since Mrs. Oelrichs conceived this brilliant way of entertaining guests.

Mrs. Harold Brown, mother of him who is known as the richest boy in America, is at her villa in Newport.

Reginald Vanderbilt is at Newport at his farm by night and taking command by day of his company, the Portsmouth Home guards, which he organized and equipped.

Many New Faces at Newport.

Two of those who have figured in years past as the best dressed women at Newport are on the field of action, no doubt assembling their resources for another contest for this high honor even in a year of war and stress. Mrs. Richard Stevens and Mrs. Goadby Loew have both of them reached this dignified pinnacle and from what my correspondents write me from up there, each of them is a formidable contestant for the honor this year.

Among the newcomers as summer residents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Angier B. Duke, and Mrs. Charles Marshall, who is to have her daughter, Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., with her for a good part of the season.

One little point I should make in my social register is that Newport is greatly changed by the large numbers of people there, who came early and will stay late to be near the members of their families enlisted in the government service. Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich of New York, whose husband is a lieutenant in the reserve regiment in Newport, has a cottage for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart Cushman of New York, who looked over and declined to buy any of the rich mansions vacant and going to decay in Newport, have started in to build their own house on Beech Hill road, and meantime have a lodge completed for their use this summer.

The Washington diplomatic corps is represented by Mr. and Mrs. Colville Barclay of the British embassy. Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, with the halo of romance which surrounds them and the richness of their setting in the beautiful mansion which Mrs. Rice built while she was still Mrs. Widener, are the sensations of the summer colony. Ex-Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, are, as usual, in their beautiful home on the Ocean drive.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

How Artists Help in War Shown at Institute Exhibit

SOME of the services which artists are able to render their country in time of war will be shown in the exhibit that opens at the Art institute tomorrow afternoon. Intended primarily to stir the public, the display will make its appeal through three channels; it will aim to incite interest in the cultivation of the soil and the conservation of food, in the Red Cross, and in the purchase of war bonds of varying denominations.

Besides this admittedly practical work the artists here are combining their strength for other kinds of labor. There is an interesting society of artists in France called the Camouflage, and the new sort of war art which they have created is the work of applying protective coloring to all war materials. In a small way this same principle had been inculcated into the choice of uniforms by the American troops in our own civil war, but as an extensive art in the different departments of war it is new.

Now since men fight underground like animals it is a necessity that everything should be hidden from the seemingly omniscient eye of the aeroplane and the camera. Therefore in the trenches along the French front the motors and wagons and ambulances are all treated with camouflage, painted in the colors of the trees and rocks and shrubbery. Everything is done that can be done to deceive the eye. Men who are sent out on scouting expeditions wear jackets and caps painted in the varigated tones of the trees, and these caps and jackets are cut in such generous proportions that they hide entirely the men who wear them.

Our own organization now is vigorously clamoring to be allowed to start work in this country. They would begin first on the warships, disguising them as much as possible in protecting coloring so that they can be no possible mark for the approaching submarine. In the light of all of these martial aspirations of American artists, this coming exhibition of some of the actual work they have already accomplished will be doubly interesting.

During July, August, and September the trustees of the Art institute have ordered that the museum should remain open on Saturday evenings until 10 o'clock. This is a special favor to the uniformed men who will be in Chicago this summer, soldiers and sailors, who will be given the opportunity of visiting the galleries at least one evening a week. The institute also makes announcement of the fact that any soldier in uniform coming to the institute will be admitted free, together with any woman who may accompany him.

Nor was the museum ever a more interesting place to visit than it is this summer. The exhibit of the work of the students of the school has been indefinitely prolonged owing to the large attendance it continues to attract. The seven galleries of the second floor of the new annex are filled with students' work and special interest centers now about certain of the prize pictures to be seen. The painting which won the $1,000 prize, a traveling scholarship, is an excellent piece of work, distinguished for its fine coloring as well as for its composition. The figures are finely drawn and the facial expression on the different features is especially good.

The painting, however, which has attracted even more attention than the first prize canvas is one which was awarded a $50 prize. It is by Joseph Tomanek and is one of the most attractive in the exhibit. It is more French than American in its color rendering and general tone.

Another feature of the exhibit deserving of distinct attention is the charcoal work, especially the charcoal portraits. Old men and young men, old women and young women, they are given through this medium a considerable degree of character and expression.

Also those interested in architectural designing should not overlook the prize decorative design which is a perspective of a stairway, worked out in adequate detail.

The remainder of the exhibits now on display are more or less stationary, and the average person who will visit them the coming months will have his individual preferences. The collections in the galleries are so inclusive of the different masters of the world as well as of many more or less obscure artists who are accomplished painters one cannot help but find one's favorites from whatever period they may be.

Through the presentations of the Friends of American Art, the best artists this country has given birth to are to be found splendidly represented. In the galleries devoted to native genius will be seen work by Chase, the American artist who received the greatest compliment the Italian government ever paid to an American in the request for a portrait of himself to hang in the historic Uffizi gallery in Florence; Alexander, whose "Sunlight" suggests the pleasantest of days and times; Benjamin West, the best exponent of the earliest American art; Winslow Homer, whose "Watching the Breakers" and water colors are now hung in one of the galleries directly off a near-by corridor.

There are other paintings which one recognizes as belonging to the group of the "most popular paintings in the institute." By this is meant that more copies of them are sold at the door and in the hallway on the second floor than any other reproductions. In this category is included Hitchcock's "Flower Girl of Holland," Wendt's "Silence of the Night," "Mother and Children" by Elizabeth Nourse, the "Two Disciples at the Tomb" by Tanner, and the picture of "Alice" by Chase.

Other familiar American names are to be seen affixed to the different paintings, names such as George Bellows, Charles Hawthorne, Whistler, Sargent, Wilson Irvine, Randall Davey, George Fuller, and Childe Hassam. Not that this list is by any means comprehensive. It is meant merely to convey some idea of the scope of American work to be seen.

Among the paintings by old masters of the Dutch and Flemish schools are to be found a Ruysdael, a Frans Hals, a Rubens, a Hobbema, a Van Dyck, and a Rembrandt. Going back still farther into an age when religion formed the subject of most of the great art work of the time, one sees the too realistic pictures by that eccentric Di Paolo; inimitable bits from Perugino; strong portrait work by the Florentine Ghirlandaio, the Flemish der Weyden; and also from the eighteenth century example of the afterglow of the Venetian Renaissance, epitomized in Tiepolo and Guardi. From the school of Amiens of the late fifteenth century come seven fascinating panels from the monastery of Saint Honoré, near Amiens, and there is an "Entombment" which can be viewed many times without wearying.

Coming down from the middle ages again, there is the fine collection of French paintings from the Barbizon school, this group represented by Rousseau, Millet, Diaz, Carot, and others. Here one finds the "Song of the Lark," which long ago was decreed the most popular painting in the institute and which so far has kept this distinction unchallenged, and also the "Bringing Home of the New Born Calf," which is to be had in a number of different sizes. In the Munger collection there is one of the most spirited war pieces ever done, "The Peace in Danger," by De Neuville, and Jean Gustave Jacquet's "Queen of the Camp." Rosa Bonheur has a "Cow and Dog" in the Nickerson collection, and Henner a "Brunette."

In all, in the printroom there are some 1,000 examples, which include etchings and engravings by Rembrandt, Whistler, Meryou, Legros, Haden, Zorn, and others. Only a limited number of prints are exhibited on the walls of the printrooms and the exhibition is changed from time to time. The remaining prints are inclosed in cases and will be shown at any time on request.

No mention has been made of the sculptural work the institute owns. It is as comprehensive in its way as the paintings and will be spoken of later.

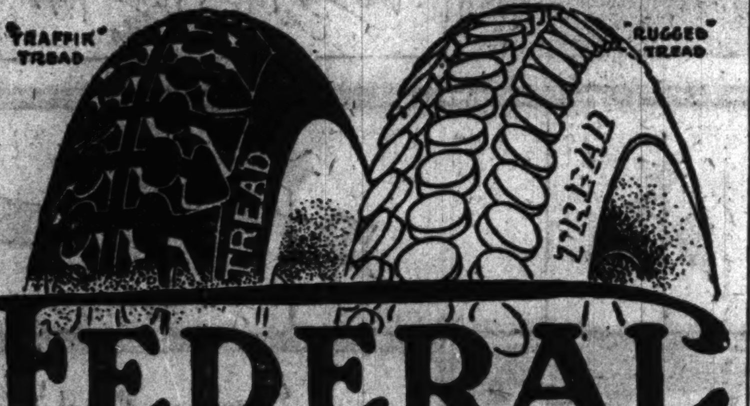
YOU CAN'T KEEP CREAM ON THE BOTTOM.

"You cannot keep a good man down,"
Remarked some noble mutt.
Malicious dornicks tossed at him
May crenulate his nut;
Outrageous slings and arrows trun
By fortune ill may pot 'em,
But you cannot keep the good men down,
You can't keep cream on the bottom.

The deftly wielded double cross
May catch you on the hip
And toss you on your vertebræ,
But don't desert the ship,
The anvil crew may lay for you
But never mind, dod rot 'em!
The big league man can't lose his nan,
Cream won't stay on the bottom.

"You cannot keep a good man down,"
As Jonah told the whale,
Within his Webster's unabridged
There's no such word as fail;
Such men come smiling from the floor
Where uppercuts have sot 'em,
As I, perhaps, remarked before,
You can't keep cream on the bottom.



FEDERAL TIRES

Double Cable Base

Tread design perhaps has little influence on your choice of tires. Yet efficient skid prevention is a big advantage.

Federal Rugged (white) and Traffik (black) non-skid treads were not designed for good looks, but for good traction and safety. And they are genuinely efficient.

They embody the best tire construction that a great plant and years of experience can produce. Equip your car with these "Extra Service" Tires. They cost much less per season.

They Laugh at this in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

Wright and Davis:

Haven't you got a brother who's a minister?

He was a minister, but he went into the hat business.

Why did he leave the church?

For seven reasons.

What are they?

A wife and six children.

Did you know that today is my birthday?

Let me congratulate you.

How old do you think I am?

I don't know, but you don't look it.

A friend of mine sent me a cake with one candle for every year of my life.

O, one of those "fifty candle power" affairs?

Sir!

I beg your pardon.

Well, if you're really sorry, I forgive you.

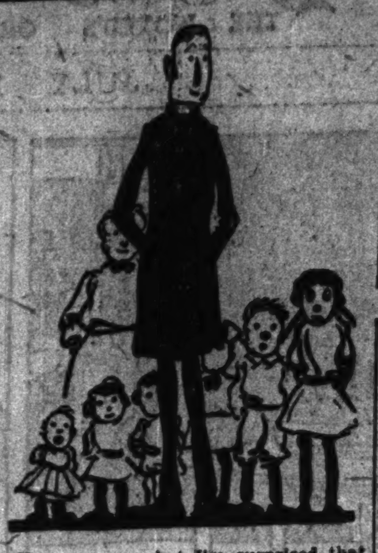
It seems that every time you open your mouth I put my foot in it.

There you go again.

My mistake.

Kid, I can't get angry with you. You're a queen.

Then lend me a ten spot.



Here you are, but I'm surprised that you take it.

If you understand anything about cards you'd know that the "queen" always takes a "ten spot."

Gossip of the Auto Trade

The most palpitating news of the moment in automobile circles hereabouts has to do with the formation of the new Harry Newman-Stratton company by Harry Newman and G. W. Stratton, and its resultant merger of three of the most important motor car distributing agencies in Chicago. Not only do Mr. Newman and Mr. Stratton unite their interests in the Hal Twelve and the King respectively, but they also take over the distribution of the Maxwell, the factory branch which has handled the latter business discontinuing its operations. And even that isn't enough, for the new organization has closed a contract with the Rainier Motor corporation of New York by which it is to distribute the Rainier worm drive half ton truck in the northern part of Illinois, Wisconsin, and the eastern part of Indiana.

Incidentally the big building at Twenty-fifth street and Michigan avenue, formerly occupied by Harry Newman, Inc., when it was "recommending" the Chalmers, is to bear the Newman name again and be the headquarters of the organization, which will have branches in Milwaukee, Springfield, and other centers of importance. Presumably the King Motor Car Company of Illinois, of which Mr. Stratton has been president, will lose its identity in the merger, though the Stratton Body corporation, so far as is known, will continue its operations as before.

James Levy, distributor of the Chalmers in Chicago, has received word of the building of fifty new Chalmers speedsters, each priced at $2,500 and guaranteed to do eighty-five miles an hour. Each car will bear on its side a plate showing the result of a test conducted by Joe Dawson and certifying over his signature to the exact speed made. No car that cannot do the specified eighty-five miles will be sent out and—Chicagoans who want such a car please note—only one speedster will be sold in each city.

It is the belief of the National builders that each of the leading makes of motor cars has one city where, year by year, it "goes over biggest." The National's town, they say, is Pittsburgh, where more Nationals are sold in proportion to population than anywhere else.

Ray Harroun, designer of the new Harroun car and a carburetion expert of considerable reputation, wants seagoing yachts to use kerosene so as to conserve the gasoline supply for automobiles and aeroplanes. "Only a few simple changes," he says, "are needed to fit marine motors for the use of kerosene. As a motor car fuel kerosene has been hampered by its odor, the need of an auxiliary gasoline tank for starting and the problem of heat regulation in improperly designed motors. These objections do not hold true in the seagoing yacht, with its engineers and its abundance of cold water always at hand. These are motors that consume barrels of fuel where motor cars use quarts."

After demanding an inspection of every make of automobile to be seen anywhere near her home in San Antonio, Tex., Miss Katherine Stinson, the aviatrix, bought a Mitchell the other day. Inasmuch as Miss Stinson is supposed to know something about gasoline engines, the Mitchell people were mildly jubilant.

President J. G. Faist of the National Rubber company, which makes Speedway tires, ventures the opinion that tires are cheaper today than they ever were before. Prices have gone up, to be sure, he says, but the vastly increased service given by the better makes more than atones for the difference.

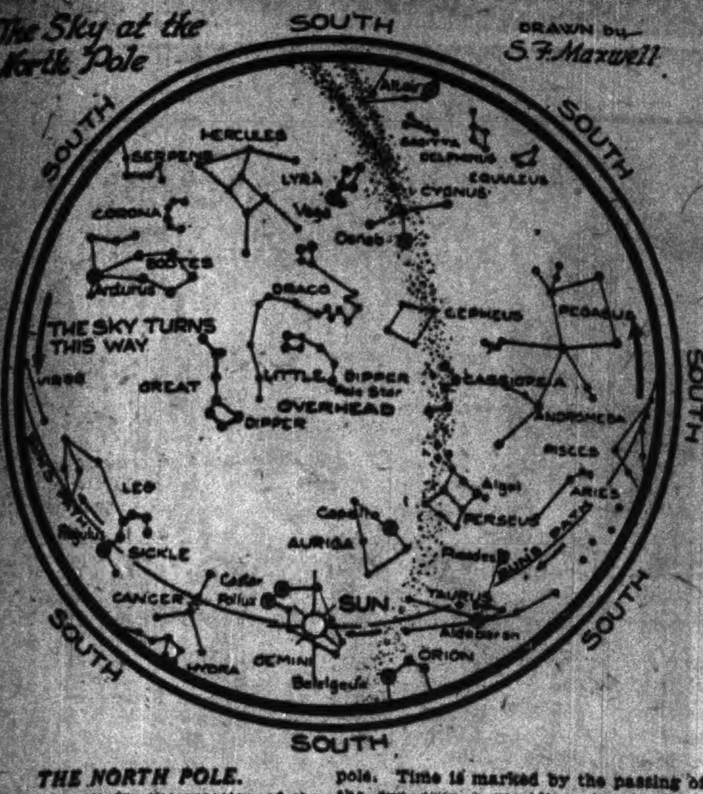
ASTRONOMY

The Sky at the North Pole

DRAWN by S. F. Maxwell



THE NORTH POLE.

If it were not for the rotation of the earth it would be impossible to designate locations by latitude and longitude because there would be no equator and no north and south poles. The position of a point on the surface of a sphere cannot be given if the sphere is at rest. It is only because the earth is spinning that we have enough facts to determine the relation of continents, cities, and surface configurations.

A line about which a ball rotates is called its axis, and the places where it pierces the surface are known as the two poles.

The north pole lies at about the center of an ice filled basin known as the Arctic ocean. After undergoing the most rigorous hardships to reach the pole, the explorer finally locates it by astronomical means. When he has found a place where the stars always keep an equal distance above the horizon, he knows he is at the pole. At this spot Polaris stands motionless overhead, while all the other stars wheel round and round, never rising nor setting. The northern half of the sky is always visible, and the southern half is forever hidden.

There can be no time at the north pole. Time is marked by the passing of the sun over a meridian, but here all longitudes are gathered together into one spot. At the pole there is only one direction. No matter which way the observer faces, south is always before him.

During the autumn and winter months it is night, but not absolute blackness, for in that time there are six or seven full moons. The moon at the pole shines for two weeks without setting. The first of dawn comes about the last of February. On the 21st of March the sun creeps over the horizon, spiraling upward until on June 21 it is at its height. From the vernal to the autumnal equinox there is continual daylight. The sun sinks from view on the 21st of September, and by the middle of October the long arctic night has again settled down.

With the small portable instruments to which explorers are necessarily limited, the position of the north pole may be determined within a circle of perhaps three miles diameter. If it were possible to transport the best modern instruments and extended observations carried out, a cross as large as a plate could be placed on the ice, bearing the inscription, "This marks the north pole."

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

JULY

Wild Roses

THE wild rose is full blown and for its moment gives its fresh beauty to the summer, fragile as the essence of life and red with the intensity of it, fragrant as life at its best and as delicate.

Time, chance, incident, or other malevolence, with a flick of the finger, knocks the petals off, and after their moment of delight they are pale on the ground.

Boorish circumstance in rough boots passes on indifferently, walking on rose petals and treading them into the clay. Life is tough of fiber for its necessary work and the wild rose is the symbol of something too delicate in beauty to endure. And yet as autumn comes with the brown leaf and yellow grass the red berry of the rose will be bright in the bushes as a memory of the time when the rose was in bloom.

Fox grass waves in the fields and hawk weed winks brightly from the thickets. The catbird still sings in the thorn, but the sands run and beauty must fade.

TO RAVINIA

FINDING one's way over a 100 mile tour frequently is a far less puzzling matter for Chicago motorists than the apparently simple task of keeping to the best roads in the suburbs. For example, Ravinia park, where the summer season of opera opened yesterday, is easy of access by automobile only if you know just how to get there. An excellent route, which takes advantage of several stretches of new pavement, is suggested by the management thus:

Follow Sheridan road to the north end of Calvary cemetery.

Turn left five blocks to Hinman avenue.

Turn right and go to the end of the road.

Turn left into Sheridan road and follow Sheridan road into Kenilworth.

At ornamental lamp post in center of road turn left four blocks to Abbotsford road.

Turn left, following Warwick avenue [which curves around to the right] to end of road [Winnetka avenue].

At end of street [North avenue] turn left two blocks to Green Bay road.

Turn right and go through Hubbard Woods and Glencoe to where Green Bay road crosses track. At this point turn right and then left into Franklyn road, which turns into Sheridan road.

Follow Sheridan road to the Lake Shore Country club.

Turn west, to Ravinia park.

Madame—Be Correctly Corseted

Third Floor—Center

That is our advice for a score of reasons, advice offered because of our years of experience in selling corsets. To be correctly corseted means better health, a better figure, the fashionable lines and corsets that wear immeasurably better—all this is possible if you have one of our corps of expert corsetieres choose from the complete display of Warner corsets you'll find here; a corset designed for practically every type of figure is included. We feel certain that if you but knew how much more efficient, how much more experienced our corps of corsetieres is than at any store in Chicago you, too, as many thousands already do, would not be content to have your corsets fitted elsewhere. For the fitting service no extra charge is made.

To see that you secure the proper corset, though, the corsetiere must have, beside her skill and experience, all the styles and sizes necessary. We carry the Warner corsets in so complete a variety that every one can be fitted correctly to accentuate the best lines of the figure.

Here are models made for the plump figure, top full to allow bust to drop into corset instead of being pushed up—back higher to hold shoulder flesh—skirts long to confine thighs—elastic sections to add comfort—material so cut as to avoid stretching—made so that they will shape fashionably, fit comfortably the figure for which the corset was designed.

Learn from our corsetieres how to adjust it yourself so you will get the most comfort and service from your corset. Our corsetieres will fit you so that the back bones are right, that they come down straight, lie flat and curve in to the figure.

They will explain to you that the corset should never be put on or taken off the figure when the laces are tied. If this is attempted the corset is apt to tear, or at least to twist. Untie or loosen corset laces every time the corset is taken off. Then, after putting the corset on the figure again, tighten and retie the laces. Is it not worth your while to spend a little time in our fitting rooms when purchasing a corset? It is the most important garment you wear, for it covers directly the organs most vital to your health.

MESOPOTAMIA.

We all remember the old lady who loved to pronounce the word Mesopotamia. She might very well figure in a parable upon the war strategy of our allies, and the report just published upon the Mesopotamian campaign fits nicely in with this idea.

There are two paramount reasons for German success and entente failure up to this time. The less considered is that the war has been fought as war by Germany. By the entente it has been fought partly as war and partly as diplomacy. Germany has made military considerations prevail in military matters. Her government, with the stern logic which characterizes German process, has laid down the principle that in war war conditions must govern, war logic prevail. Diplomacy must wait upon victory.

The entente, on the other hand, has sometimes tried to make war yield to diplomatic considerations. Its strategy has been enamored of the word Mesopotamia. It has produced a mixture which is neither good military strategy nor good diplomacy. When the maximum energies of the entente should have been concentrated on the single problem of defeating the armed power of the enemy they have scattered their forces on one temptation or another, to gain one diplomatic advantage or another, to please one popular hope or gratify another popular susceptibility.

Entente sympathizers credit Germany's success entirely to her preparation for war. That was only one of its bases. The other was the superiority of German strategy. It is true Germany is so organized and so situated that her conduct of operations could be more readily unified than that of the allies. Her government was autocratic. She dominated the will of her allies. She occupied interior lines and contiguous territory.

But the fact remains that the allies, whose problem of coördination was much more difficult because they were widely separated physically and were equals, not masters and vassals, having no grand general staff to unify and harmonize their efforts, made a bad situation worse by undertaking costly enterprises which, even if successful, could have no compensating influence upon the main result. They allowed their eyes to stray to the periphery. Germany kept hers on the center. She knew if the axle broke all would go with it.

The reason for this lies in the difference between the characters of German and entente control. We may deplore the influence of military ideals as a whole over the policy of the German empire. But if we are capable of learning from the facts of this war, we must recognize that in war making military considerations, including, of course, the economic phases of military success, must prevail. The military statesman may be a curse in peace. He is necessary in war.

But the entente governments are made up chiefly of parliamentarians, politicians, diplomats, lawyers. The training of these men has made them place great stress upon making "points," upon the sort of game that goes well only when it has conditions with it. Such statesmen pride themselves upon thinking imperially and they have throughout this war tried assiduously to place their countries in a position which would be favorable in a diplomatic contest for terms when peace came. They were much concerned to try to get possession of this point or that, without sufficiently realizing that points are going to be decided by the victor. The peace treaty is going to be written by the sword, not by the pen. The point that will decide all other points is the point of the bayonet.

We who look at war as an unmitigated evil, an irruption of the brute upon civilization, we who like to think of a world society in which law will govern, and the warfare of the lawyer therefore take the place of the bloody debate of battle, find it very hard to accept the harsh and simple logic of force. Yet we put it away at our peril and our cost. If Germany wins in France the question of whether there is a British garrison in Bagdad or a French in Saloniki or an Italian at Avlona will count for little compared to the cost of gaining it now or maintaining it. The terms of peace are going to be made not by international lawyers about the council table at The Hague but on the central battlefield where the main armies are in their death grapple.

It is to be hoped this is coming home to the allied governments and to our own, and that the result will be an end of futile diplomatic war making, of costly imperial adventures, and the most intense and exclusive concentration upon the essentials of victory.

CHASING BUTTERFLIES.

There is general glee because the Chicagoan who caught a fall at Delavan Lake, Wis., the other night explained that he "was out on the piazza roof chasing a butterfly."

Funny time for a butterfly hunt. Funny place. Moreover, a funny occupation; as theatrical folk say, a sure laugh getter. At intervals during a never to be forgotten piece, an entomologist dashed across the stage clawing the air with his net, greatly to the spectators' delight. And among Punch's most amusing cartoons was the one that showed a Tommy leaping from his trench, giving chase to a butterfly, and excusing his breach of discipline by shouting, "It's awfully rare—a dotted Iddiumpticus!"

But consider. Consider if butterfly chasing has not its honorable points even when it takes such forms as meddling with soldiers' morals, saving the country by not buying a new hat, or rushing us into bone dry prohibition at top speed. It is great exercise. It is an outlet for surplus vitality. It keeps many an enthusiast out of mischief. Otherwise—who knows?—he might be interfering with recruiting or spouting peace where there is no peace. And yet may it not at times get in the way of serious business? Some would persuade us that it is doing so at present. Here we are, locking horns with the biggest military power on earth; we have a wonderful Red Cross, a most efficient Y. M. C. A., a bewitching code of ethics, and a highly elaborate philosophy of pennywise thrift; but where is our army?

So it comes to this. We like the ebullient spirit that finds vent in butterfly chasing. We detest the spirit that would substitute butterfly chasing for more useful patriotic activity. With all that within us is we detest the spirit that takes to butterfly chasing by way of dodging sacrifice and danger. More than once we have awakened from a horrid dream in which we saw as our country's emblem not the eagle with wings outspread but—heaven forgive the nightmare!—a dotted Iddiumpticus.

FREEDOM IN BAVARIA.

Next to Prussia, Bavaria is the largest German state. Next to Prussia, it contains the most Germans—about 7,000,000. As a once independent kingdom, made a part of the German empire forty-six years ago, what freedom does Bavaria enjoy? What freedom do Bavarians enjoy? Great freedom—with a string to it.

All male Bavarians above twenty-five years of age can vote for members of the Bavarian house of representatives. They vote by direct ballot. So far all is fair and square. But no Bavarian can vote, directly or indirectly, for members of the Bavarian senate, and the senate blocks the house, for the King of Bavaria owns the senate. All adult princes of royal blood are senators. A bishop appointed by the king is a senator for life. Three archbishops are senators. The heads of sundry noble families are senators. His majesty's hereditary counselors are senators, along with additional counselors appointed by him for life.

Bavaria, then, is but a feebly limited monarchy at home. In its relations with the German empire it is a vassal state, ruled by the German emperor. Certain definitely specified liberties it retains, to be sure, among them the right to manage its own railways, the right to fix its own excise on Bavarian beers, the right to maintain its own postoffice, the right to manage its own army in time of peace. But what voice has Bavaria in the high councils of the empire?

Its freely elected delegates to the reichstag fare like other delegates. They can argue, they can philosophize, and when so inclined they can swear. Having argued, philosophized, and sworn, they give in. The real legislative power belongs, not to the reichstag, but to the bundesrath or German senate. The King of Bavaria appoints six members of that august body, whereas Wilhelm II. of Prussia appoints seventeen, controls three more outright, and can always (by wheedling or bullying the dukes, granddukes, and kings whose appointees they are) win the allegiance of enough more to command a majority.

Thus it comes about that the Bavarians are twice stepped on, once by their king and again by their emperor. This they call freedom. We don't. Certain results of German autocracy, we admit, have been excellent. It is undeniable that modern Germany has forged ahead industrially, commercially, and in many respects socially at a rate unheard of before in the world's history. But at what cost! Autocracy made the war. By its control of press, pulpit, university, and the individual conscience it made Germans applaud the war. By its conduct of the war it raised up foes the world over. And by its defense of its governmental ideals it has united democracies against autocracies till the one type of government or the other must vanish from the earth's surface. The longer Americans study the German system the more determined they are that it shall never rule America.

A BATTLE HYMN READY MADE.

Dr. Lyman Abbott suggests "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" as an international war song. Excellent! Nothing in its phraseology binds it to civil war times. Nothing binds it to America alone. It contains no specific reference to slavery, or to secession, or to the union. It is a hymn of freedom for all democracies today—American, British, French, Russian, or what you will.

But how would the south take it? The tune is "John Brown's Body," and the south has hated that tune. The words ring with devout patriotism for northern ears; to confederates, they were blasphemies. Can the south turn right about face, forget the lost cause, and adopt a northern war song? There are signs that it can.

When America declared war on Germany Betsy Ross societies sprang up all over Dixie and began stitching union flags. When the "Chathams" returned from Texas the confederate museum at Savannah displayed the stars and bars, but flung out the Stars and Stripes alongside. In another southern town the Daughters of the Confederacy were presented with a union flag by their president. In still another Old Glory appeared over a confederate veterans' home. If the south can love the union colors, why not a union war song?

There is no longer a north. There is no longer a south. There is America, first, last, and always. Save for a quaint old fogy here and there in Dixieland, the south is exuberantly loyal. Let an orchestra strike up "The Star-Spangled Banner," and southerners spring to their feet. This happens even at Columbia, S. C., where Sherman left hardly a house unburned; and we may yet hear southern voices blend with northern in the strains:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes
of wrath are stored;
He has loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible, swift sword;
His truth is marching on."

A REAL WAR SONG.

[From the Ottawa Citizen.]

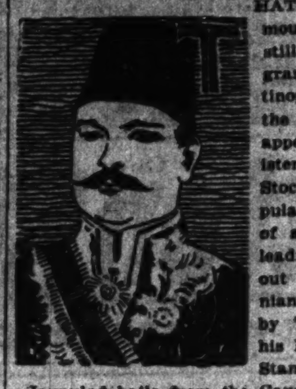
The entrance of the United States into the European conflict is heralded by the publication of a real war song, writen by a Marylander, too, Daniel M. Henderson, whose poem has been awarded the National Arts club prize. The title, "The Road to France," is incorporated in the theme with a ringing vigor that sets the pulses leaping. The first verse of the new song reads:

Thank God, our liberating lance
Goes flaming on the way to France!
To France—the trail the Gurkas found!
To France—old England's rallying ground!
To France—the path the Russians strode!
To France—the Anzacs' glory road!
To France—where our Lost Legion ran
To fight and die for God and man!
To France—with every race and breed
That hates Oppression's brutal creed!

"The Road to France" seems destined to be the first war song worthy of the times. And unless American sentiment has lost much of its former power of expression more of this much needed sort of stimulus should be forthcoming.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood Co.]



THAT the sinister and infamous Talaat Pasha is still all powerful as grand vizier at Constantinople is apparent from the fact that he has just appointed as Turkish minister plenipotentiary at Stockholm Ismail Janpulad Bey, who as chief of secret police took the leading part in carrying out the hideous Armenian massacres, planned by Talaat himself, with his Prussian familiars at Stamboul and at Berlin.

Janpulad hails from the Caucasus, acted as agent provocateur in the anti-Armenian pogroms at Baku some nine or ten years ago, but was expelled from Russian territory by the late Count Worontzoff-Dashkoff when the latter became viceroy of the Caucasus, and thereupon sought refuge in Turkey, where, after getting into close touch with the bloodthirsty Turkish revolutionists in the closing years of the reign of Sultan Abdul Hamid, he joined Enver Pasha and his fellow conspirators in the insurrections and series of coups-d'état which brought the present sultan to the throne.

In fact, he was one of the Turkish parliamentary delegation which visited London and Paris in 1909 and 1910, two cities where he was entertained and acclaimed as one of the chief heralds of the "new liberal régime in Turkey" by officials, legislators, and by the people generally, who were ignorant of his infamous antecedents. The murder of Col. Churchill in Turkey in 1914 has been rightly laid at his door.

His appointment to the post of Ottoman minister plenipotentiary at Stockholm is an insult to all the other diplomats accredited to the Swedish court, and it is also an insult to them that King Gustav, who is aware of the man's responsibility for the Armenian massacres, should have intimated to the sublime porte that this particular bey was to him persona grata. Janpulad is his clan name, and may be translated as "Steeled Soul"; that is to say, steeled against all considerations of heart and of mercy.

It is seldom that one finds such pleasant relations between a revolutionary government and its dethroned dynasty as those which prevail between the republic of Brazil and its ex-crown princess and one time regent, Isabel, eldest daughter and heiress of the late Dom Pedro, the last emperor of Brazil, and married to Prince Gaston of Orleans-Bourbon, Count of Eu.

The old emperor and his family were expelled at the time of the revolution in 1889, with a particular lack of consideration, being embarked at midnight on a steamship just sailing for Lisbon, with no baggage and no clothes save those in which they stood. In fact, the old empress, who arrived in Europe at the close of the winter with clothing adapted merely for the tropical climate at Rio, suffered so much from cold and exposure that she died shortly after reaching Lisbon.

Time, however, heals many wounds. Today the ex-crown princess entertains friendly sentiments towards the government of the republic and towards the land of her birth, while the Brazilians recall that the emperor whom they deposed was the most liberal minded and democratic of monarchs, who was often wont to declare laughingly that he was far better fitted to be the president of the republic of Brazil than her emperor.

Just before the present war began his remains—he died in 1891—were conveyed back on board a Brazilian warship to his native land for final interment under a magnificent tomb and memorial erected by his former subjects and consecrated with much state and ceremony, while two weeks ago the ex-crown princess, with her consort, the Comte d'Eu, were associated with the Portuguese plenipotentiary in France and all the members of the Brazilian legation and consulate general in the opening ceremonies of a great hospital erected in Paris and endowed by means of Brazilian subscriptions for the care and relief of wounded officers and soldiers of the armies of France. The ex-crown princess was among the largest contributors.

She has definitely renounced all her rights and pretensions to the Brazilian throne. So, too, has her eldest son, Prince Peter. Her second son, Prince Louis, however, has made no such renunciation, and some years ago when he visited South America he was on this account prevented from landing at Rio.

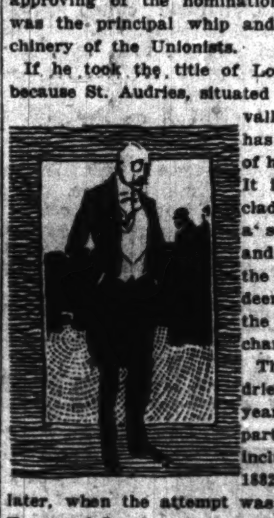
Lord St. Audries' succession to his father's peerage and two baronetcies finds him fighting for his country in the Holy Land as a captain of the Somersetshire Light Infantry regiment. He is 24 years of age, is unmarried, has an only brother of the age of 21 who is his next heir, and two unmarried sisters.

It may be remembered that on the occasion of King George's coronation a number of peerages were bestowed not only upon members of the Liberal party then in power but also upon certain of the notable figures of the Unionist opposition. Sir Alexander's elevation to the house of lords was so great a relief to his party that the then premier, Asquith, displayed a considerable amount of generosity in approving of the nomination. For Sir Alexander was the principal whip and manager of the machinery of the Unionists.



If he took the title of Lord St. Audries it was because St. Audries, situated in the lovely Quantock valley in Somersetshire, has been the principal seat of his family for centuries. It is a very stately, ivy-clad mansion, flanked by a series of conservatories and shady terraces, while the park, in which fallow deer abound, is lapped by the waters of the Bristol channel.

The late Lord St. Audries spent seventeen years in the army, taking part in several campaigns, including that of Egypt in 1882, while three years later, when the attempt was made to blow up the Tower of London, he was at the head of the detachment of guards garrisoning this ancient metropolitan stronghold, and directed their extinction of the fire, thus saving the White Tower, and, indeed, the whole place from destruction by the flames.

Lord St. Audries is descended from the same stock as Viscount Hood and as Viscount Bridport, and is in the line of succession to the latter's Irish barony of Bridport, though not to his viscounty. Sir Samuel Hood, who first saw service under his cousin, the first Viscount Hood, so famous as a great naval commander, was himself made the recipient of a baronetcy for his distinguished services as an admiral. Having no son, he secured from the crown a special remainder thereof to his nephew, the son of his elder brother, Alexander.

HEART DISEASE LEADS.

THE United States census office tells us that heart disease is now the most frequent cause of death. This is true in spite of the fact that many deaths from heart disease are reported as due to pneumonia—that disease being responsible for the terminal illness. Heart disease has only recently come to this prominent position. In the first ten years of this century heart disease was fourth among the causes of death, in Chicago ranking very little above violence, the fifth in rank. Within thirty years it had risen from ninth place to fourth place. Prior to 1870 it was not among the ten first causes of death.

This increase in the importance of heart disease is due to three circumstances: First, heart disease is becoming more frequent. More people have it than was formerly the case, or else diagnosis is more accurate and more people know they have it. For instance, what has become of the old fashioned dropsy? Some of it is known now as heart disease. Again, some of the old time asthma is now called heart asthma and recognized merely as a symptom of heart disease.

In the second place, a material reduction in the death rate of children and a material increase in the average age of the population can be expected to increase the death rate from heart disease.

In the third place, and this is the point that especially interests us just now, the decrease in the death rate from consumption and summer complaint among babies has so lowered the rates from those causes that heart disease has gone ahead of them. A better way to put it is that they have gone back of heart disease since that group has more nearly stayed still while the other groups have moved down.

The reason for the decrease in consumption is the world-wide fight against the disease. The reason for that in infant mortality is the save the baby campaigns. Of course it is easy to anticipate what I am to say. The time has come to launch the fight on heart disease. The New York health department has made a beginning. They hold that work against heart disease is important because, first, of the heavy death rate entailed by it; second, the persons who suffer from it are usually in the prime of life, and, third, it produces a prolonged incapacity and disability.

The beginning of the New York health department consists in an evening class for cases of heart disease. The fundamental ideas of this experiment are these: The time to begin the care of men with heart disease is before they suffer a break in compensation; while they are at work, and therefore can most conveniently see the doctor in the evening. The kind of care to give is regulation of the habits, control, direction, counsel, and advice, rather than medicine. Other health departments will fall in line. It is more important that the public should get the matter clearly in their minds than it is that health departments should start clinics.

Heart disease generally begins with some sort of an infection. It is commonly held that rheumatism is the most frequent cause, and rheumatism is now known with certainty to be an infection. In rheumatism the bacteria are transported by the bloodstream, which is the reason for the long known tendency of rheumatism to jump from joint to joint.

Heart disease is liable to follow any infection. It may develop after a severe cold, a sore throat, a bronchitis, an attack of scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, pneumonia, or typhoid fever. Whenever in any infection bacteria get into the bloodstream some are liable to locate in some part of the heart, laying the foundation for heart disease. This infection may harm a valve and then subside. The crippled valve permits some of the bloodstream to leak back through an orifice through which it has just passed. This leaking, of course, throws extra work on the heart muscle.

But the heart muscle normally has a great surplus of capacity. In this organ, as in all other organs, nature has builded with a lavish hand. The heart muscle must contract seventy times a minute during every minute of every hour of every day of life. It knows nothing of the eight hour day, or the forty-eight hour week, or the one rest day in seven. A two weeks' vacation with pay in summer time is not one of the privileges of the heart muscle. In view of these facts, it has been constructed on the same basis as a Corliss engine—too big for its job. It takes care of the extra work with no more disturbance than a locomotive engine shows when another passenger boards the train, or than a stationary engine shows when another belt is slipped on and the tank is filled or some other secondary task is added.

During the years which elapse between the attack of rheumatism or scarlet fever which cripples the heart and the beginning of symptoms of heart disease the man knows nothing of his disability. Unless he is examined for life insurance or for entrance into the army or navy he may not suspect that he is in any way abnormal. If he notices that his wind is not so good as it was he thinks his disability is due to his girth or to his age. After a while his muscles begin to be soft. He notices that his heart beats too rapidly or pounds or palpitates, or that his wind is very poor, or that he has no endurance, or that he cannot lie flat, or that he has asthma. He goes to a physician, is examined, and learns that he has heart disease, with broken compensation.

The latter part of this statement means that the compensatory strength developed by his heart muscle to overcome the extra work due to the leak has been lost or is no longer fully equal to the task.

Now, what drove this man to the doctor was not his heart disease. That he had had for years without even knowing it. He was driven to seek medical aid by his broken compensation.

The first step in the remedy for this group of situations is periodic physical examination of well people. Many large establishments now have such examinations. Several hundred thousand employés are now on that basis. Their heart troubles are being discovered at a stage when broken compensation can be forestalled. In an examination of the employés of the New York City health department it was found that 13.2 per cent had heart disease, but in such stages that well regulated habits would prevent broken compensation entirely or at least for many years.

When such latent heart disease is found the first instruction is to discontinue the use of tobacco and whisky. The next relates to exercise. The subject must take systematic exercise enough to keep the muscles hard. Other instructions provide against overexertion, violent exercise—in fact, against violence of any sort, overfatigue, irregular hours, broken rest, worry and anxiety, and industrial poisonings.

In these evening clinics they find a few cases in whom compensation has not broken. The great majority of the cases seek out the clinic because their excess of heart strength has become so narrow that they are uncomfortable. The function of the clinic is by the use of rest in some cases and exercise in others to build up a wide margin of heart strength.

In a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association Dr. Henry Sewall says: "I am writing with the keen conviction that no systematic effort toward the control of heart disease is possible until the practitioner of medicine assumes the point of view regarding the prevalence of latent cardiac disease that he has slowly been led to take as to tuberculous infection of the lungs."

That point of view is that every person who has ever had any of the diseases which at times involve the heart should have his heart periodically examined and his life properly regulated. While it is important that the physicians should know about it, it is much more important that the laity should understand it. Here are some cases cited by Dr. Sewall.

A well developed, robust man of less than 40 had rheumatism. His heart became affected. Under proper treatment he seemed to get entirely well, his murmur was slight and his heart did not cut up. He passed for life insurance. Since then he has had several attacks of sore throat. Each time his murmur becomes worse.

A man of powerful physique, 25 years of age, in excellent health in spite of a well compensated mitral lesion, entered a military camp and was set to digging trenches. His heart trouble lighted up into an acute attack having all the symptoms of an acute infection of the heart. He died.

A strong youth had a slight rheumatic attack. He got on his bicycle and rode several miles to a party. Returning, he had to breast a high wind. He developed an acute attack of heart disease and died. The overexertion determined a lighting up of a somewhat mild heart condition.

A professional man, 65 years of age, gave this history. At 6 he had scarlet fever. It was then that his heart was infected. At 12 to 14 he was on the verge of chorea most of the time. At 14 to 18 he tired easily when doing farm work. At 20 he passed a life insurance examination. At 25 to 27 he had frequent attacks of tonsilitis and rheumatism. At 59 it was discovered that he had heart disease. At this time he can walk 100 yards without trouble. If he goes over that he develops bronchitis or some other effect of heart inefficiency.

Sewall says that rarely will the physician find in an adult the quality, quantity, or rhythm of heart sounds found in youths. The advice is that any person who does not have a clear cut heart sound should go to bed and take extra care of himself in slight illnesses, and especially in colds, tonsilitis, and rheumatism. His argument is that the heart disease question must be met much as the consumption question is being met. First, there must be periodic examination of supposedly well people. Second, all persons with a history of an infection of a kind liable to heart involvement and all cases of "sneaking heart disease" must lead well ordered lives. Third, all such must be well shielded against overexertion. Fourth, whenever the heart cuts up there must be treatment by physical and mental rest.

MEDLEY OF QUESTIONS.

Mrs. J. G. writes: "1. Please inform me of cure, if any, for calloused and cracked soles of feet, skin very thin like parchment; patient man of 73, healthy, hearty eater; outdoors great deal, and has always worked hard. 2. Should a man this age have blood pressure taken whether ailing or not? 3. Please give me diet for baby girl 10 months, now breast fed at four hour intervals, sleeps fourteen hours day and night. When should I wean her? I do not know what to feed and how often. 4. What does an uneven pulse indicate in a woman of 26? 5. What can be done for a baby having a cold, with hoarseness? 6. May I offer the readers the following? Give your children sweets consisting of raisins, nuts, dates, figs, and prunes run through food grinder, roll in sugar, and be sure to call it candy."

REPLY.

1. Rub the feet once a day with some animal or vegetable oil. Wear cushion shoes. If this does not suffice, see a chiropodist.

2. No.

3. Begin to wean her when you read this. At that time she will be 11 months old. Start with one artificial meal a day. Gradually change from the breast. Have her completely weaned when she is 1 year old. Begin with a mixture containing 11 ounces of milk, 9 ounces of water, and ¾ ounce of malt sugar. Rapidly increase the strength of the mixture until it stands: Milk, 15; water, 5. Give zweiback or cracker and fruit juice. Put butter on the zweiback. A little later add cereals, finely mashed vegetables, and meat soup. Next add finely chopped meat or egg or a bone with a little meat on it.

At 12 months a child should be fed at 6, 10, 2, 6, and 10 p. m.; with fruit juice at 9 a. m. The 6, 10, and 6 meals should be limited to milk and cracker, zweiback, or toast, with a little cereal or gruel. The 10 p. m. meal, if one is given, should be limited to milk. The 2 p. m. meal should include some vegetables, meat juice, or broth and bread, as well as milk. Give milk from a cup.

4. My advice is that you have a physician examine your breast.

5. Be certain that this is not due to diphtheria. If you are certain of that, give a laxative, feed as lightly as possible, give water to drink, keep the child in a moderately cool, well ventilated room. Goose grease on the chest does no harm. It does no good.

AFTER OPERATION.

J. S. writes: "After an operation for appendicitis is the intestine ever left fastened to the wall of the abdomen?"

REPLY.

Yes.

UNPARDONABLE LUXURY

PAVING WILL REMEDY.

Chicago, June 25.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The vacant lot at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Berwyn avenue is used as a dumping place for ashes and other refuse, especially at the edge of the alley at its western end. The alley itself is unpaved north of Berwyn and in wet weather is a mass of mud, while in dry weather it is still more objectionable. Can you gain for us relief?
"L."

The vacant lot complained of has been cleaned. The alley is unimproved and up to grade and service is given regularly on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The owner of the building where complainant lives dumped a load of cinders in the lot and has been served with notice to remove same. The only way to remedy conditions is to have the alley paved, and I would suggest that complainant take the matter up with the aldermen of the Twenty-fifth ward with that end in view.

Superintendent of Streets.

NUISANCE ORDERED ABATED.

Chicago, June 25.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is a public nuisance next to my property. A factory grinds rust off of steel and sends it into the air. They work night and day with a rumbling of machinery, which disturbs our rest at night. Can nuisance be abated?
READER.

The matter was investigated by an inspector from this department and notice was served on the proprietor to abate the nuisance of dust from grinding machines and noise from milling machines.

Commissioner of Health.

EMPLOY AN ATTORNEY.

Chicago, June 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man has a wife and two children. He takes them to another state on account of being sent there by the company for which he works. Finds their health is not good there and sends them back north with promise he will send his wife $40 a month to support the children. His salary is $85 a month. He always neglected his family. Can she from up here have any recourse in the courts in Georgia on account of his not sending her any money to support the children?
READER.

Yes, if his employers are here. She should employ an attorney.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Chicago, June 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell me whether a landlord is compelled to furnish all window screens and all window shades for a tenant. When no lease is signed is a landlord supposed to give you thirty days' notice, and does tenant have to give such notice? Can tenant keep landlord from entering tenant's apartment whenever he desires?
READER.

1. Yes.
2. Not unless he so agrees.
3. If there is no definite agreement as to the length of the term and if rent is paid by the month, either party must give thirty days' notice to terminate.
4. Yes, unless there is an agreement to permit the landlord to enter.

A CONSCRIPT SPEAKS.

[Editor of The Tribune.]—Humanitarians, duly and daily chronicled, abhor and decry war for the edification of an hysterical public. And 9,000,000 young men are waiting for their country to send them "out there."

Nine million men in the pride of their youth, close to the ripening of their gifts, their eyes slowly clearing of the mists of adolescence. They are finishing their apprenticeship. They stand ready to deliver of their talents for the benefit of community and country, for wife and child.

And then has come the cataclysm.

War and its horrors. And a frantic mob of publicity hunters crying out against "this terrible thing," uttering chattering counsels of nonresistance, driveling of a million men springing to arms over night.

And our boys are waiting.

These are unrepresented in the public prints. They are just accomplished fact, like death or taxes. For them there is no blare of trumpets, no flare of flaming hate, no trailing clouds of glory—just waiting.

These dark days they perform their daily tasks, coming home in the soft evening to sit and think it over. Some of them are working silently but frantically to leave an extra bit in the event——

And here is their message, their creed flung in the teeth of pacifist and slacker, "Humanitarian" and just plain coward alike.

Oh, America, Our Motherland:

We have heard and responded with our bodies in your distress. Take our lives in payment of the boon you conferred in taking us as citizens of a loved land.

We are answering, nine million strong, the call of that great, gentle soul who reluctantly lifted up the sword as Liberty's voice was battered to silence against a wall of hate.

Unheralded, we leave you with the kisses of our wives and babies tingling on our lips, their brave, tearful faces burned into our memories. And we are not heroes, just men, young men, trudging out to meet God.

And may those of us who die fall with our mouths against the sacred soil of our sister republic, faithful lovers, kissing the body of our beloved. May those who come after, sprung from our loins, reap the benefit of our sacrifice, and may you, our country, continue to hold the beacon of humanity above old earth, sitting in the world's counsels, championing the right.

You shall hear our voices whispering down the winds, our breaths the fragrance of the flowers growing in the land we consecrated with our blood. Bend and listen. Can you hear it? A soft, sweet, ghostly chant attuned to the rustling leaves, the sighing breeze: "We have died for Liberty. For Liberty. We have died for all the world, for our comrades of all lands, for our children and their children, for the women of earth, that they may be born and live and breed and die—in PEACE."
A CONSCRIPT.

NOBODY LOVES A FAT MAN.

Toulon, Ill., June 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—We notice Mr. James O'Donnell Bennett is now dating his German propaganda Stockholm, in place of Berlin as formerly. This, perhaps, is as it should be, it being generally understood that Stockholm is but a political suburb of the German capital.

For two and a half years THE TRIBUNE made a strong bid for German-American popularity; its news columns and editorials alike presenting the Teutonic views as favorably as possible. It repeatedly assured its readers of the exceptional courtesies extended it and its correspondents by high German officials.

But a few weeks ago its leading editorials demanded the immediate conscription and dispatch to France of large American armies; exempting, however, those of German descent who were to be armed and organized as a home "guard." This delightful arrangement without doubt meeting the enthusiastic approval of the German-American Alliance and its imperial master in Berlin.

Mr. Bennett's dispatches have had no value whatever from a news standpoint, as he long ago degenerated into a mere press agent for the German government. When Ambassador Gerard referred to "those American correspondents who succumbed to German influence," he doubtlessly had in mind James O'Donnell Bennett.

THE SOLDIERS' MORALS.

Chicago, June 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In answer to the article by G. M. Preston entitled "Soldiers' Morals Again," in which the writer asserted that the men in the training camps were not capable of taking care of their own morals, I feel impelled to answer this fatherly person and say that were it not for the fact that his mental caliber is such that his being at liberty can do no harm to the country at large, I would call his statement to the attention of one of our fedral judges to pass upon.

If the best blood of our country which is represented in our officers' training camps is unable to take care of itself in a moral sense without the interference of meddling civilians, then God help the common soldiers and our own "common people."

Ernest Poole and his family

ERNEST POOLE has come very near in "His Family" (Macmillan) to writing the Great American Novel that every one has been waiting for ever since the Great American Life has become an entity. The major premise of that Life is that it is constantly fluctuating. We are the younger generation of civilizations, already overgrown a bit, but still developing fundamentally, not knowing where we're going, but being certain that we're on our way. Ernest Poole has chosen for the theme of "His Family" that constant change, and he has taken as a background the city which of all American cities is most fundamentally a personality that is on its way.

Roger Gale, the father of "His Family," awakes spiritually to the fact that he has not "lived in his children's lives," as his wife told him to do as she was dying. In some way she must have sensed the essential youth of life in New York, and her dying request was something more real than the mother's hope that their children would not outgrow their father. She must have known, as all thinking men and women know, that there is no life—at least in the United States—without a constantly forward looking philosophy and a constantly intimate touch with the things that are going forward.

Roger Gale finds that in not living in his children's lives he has not only lost touch with them but that there is a new city about him, literally crowding away even the memories of the city that he knew. The city, New York, a variable creature whose whims are manifold and ever changing, is as much a character in "His Family" as the moors are in Thomas Hardy. In a larger sense it is not Roger Gale's family of three absolutely different daughters that the book celebrates, nor even the growth of Roger Gale himself from the placidity of a generation ago to the keener poignancy of this generation, but the family of the city as it is exemplified in this one small group.

And the city is to the Great American Life what Roger Gale and his family are to the city. Ernest Poole has caught the elusive personality of America and has, according to any standards by which I can judge, written a book which has every right to be called the Great American Novel. Nothing but William Dean Howells' "The Rise of Silas Lapham" approaches it. Perhaps you are not interested in my theories of the G. A. N. Perhaps you've different notions about what the great book will be when it comes. Perhaps you think that no book can be great until it has been seen in the perspective of years. But I submit that if you read "His Family" you'll have the same certainty that I have of its unquestionable vitality and veracity.

One of the things which Roger Gale remembers with distinct joy in "His Family" is the trip to Europe which he and his wife didn't take, and it is such a keen and happy memory because they spent many years planning the trip, reading about the places they intended going to and sort of taking the trip vicariously. He had all of the joys of traveling and none of the discomforts. That's a fine way to travel in war times. Why not make up your mind where you'd like to trip off to this summer and then go to the public library and enjoy your journey the way the Gales enjoyed their trip to Europe? It's a wonderful scheme.

About "The Ford" (Houghton Mifflin) Mary Austin's latest novel, the author confides "The book records incidents in my own life in the struggle for the waters of Owens river, which the city of Los Angeles stole from us. That was a very wicked episode and I did not begin to do justice to the chicanery of Los Angeles. I am saving some of these things for the sequel to 'The Ford.' It was I who discovered and made public the attempt of the city to secure the surplus rights of the river in just such fashion as I have described Anne and Kenneth Brent doing in the book."

"The Junior Plattsburg Manual" (Century) is the latest collaboration of Lieuts. Ellis and Garey, who wrote "The Plattsburg Manual," only they're not lieutenants any more, but captains. The new book is for boys under military age. They're very fortunate captains, these two young men. They were instructors in the Plattsburg camp in 1916 and wrote the manual for the Plattsburgers with no thought of its ever being anything more than a book for a few. Then war was declared. The book was recommended by the highest military authorities and—well, they've got in royalties the equivalent of several years' salary.

"Can you explain the Vigilantes to me?" begs C. D. Yes'm, easily. The Vigilantes is an organization of American authors and illustrators who have enlisted their pens and pencils "for patriotic purposes." The objects of the organization are—to quote 'em—"to arouse the country to a realization of the importance of the problems confronting the American people; to awaken and cultivate in the youth of the country a sense of public service and an intelligent interest in citizenship and national problems; to work vigorously for preparedness, mental, moral, and physical; to work with especial vigor for universal military training and service under exclusive federal control, as a basic principle of American democracy." The executive committee consists of Porter Emerson Browne, Monroe Douglas Robinson, Charles Hanson Towne, Thomas C. Desmond, Hermann Hagedorn, Julian Street, and J. Harry Welling. The Vigilantes are planning a series of patriotic books, the first of which is "Fifes and Drums" (Doran), a volume of vigilantic verse by some of the thirty members of the society.

"The Life of James J. Hill" (Doubleday Page) is the official biography of the great man of the rails. Mr. Hill chose James Gilpin Pyle as his biographer. Ian Hay has left our shores. He has been in this country since last October lecturing and winning countless friends not only for his cause but for himself. It is published, like "Getting Together," jointly by the Houghton Mifflin company and the Doubleday Page company.

Eden Philpotts' third book in the series of novels dealing with the great industries of England is "The Banks of Colne" (Macmillan). It was announced first under the title of "The Nursery,' but the story deals not only with the workers in the great nursery and gardening industries, but with others employed in an oyster fishery near by, so that Mr. Philpotts thought it best to make the title more inclusive. In an interview which Mr. Philpotts gave not long ago he gave his solution of the plot and character problem. "You may think it a topsy-turvy way, but I always select the setting first and evolve the plot and characters from it. I never create a story and then look for scenes into which to fit it. The people of a novel, I believe, should grow out of the soil on which they act out their little drama."

RUSSIA-AMERICA

By John Galsworthy

The following contribution belongs to the series of messages from British authors which, at the request of the provisional committee of the Duma, have been cabled by the London Daily Chronicle to Russia for publication in the Russian press:

A wind in the world! The dark departs;
The chains now rust that crushed men's flesh and bones,
Feet tread no more the mildewed prison stones,
And slavery is lifted from your hearts.

A wind in the world! O Company
Of darkened Russia, watching long in vain,
Now shall you see the cloud of Russia's pain
Go shrinking out across a summer sky.

A wind in the world! Our God shall be
In all the future left no kingly doll,
Decked out with dreadful scepter, steel and stole,
But walk the earth—a man in charity.

. . . .

A wind in the world! And doubts are blown
To dust along, and the old stars come forth—
Stars of a creed to Pilgrim Fathers worth
A field of broken spears and flowers strown.

A wind in the world! Now truancy
From the true self is ended; to her part
Supreme again she moves—and from her heart
A great America cries: Death to Tyranny!

A wind in the world! And we have come
Together, sea by sea; in all the lands
Vision doth move at last, and Freedom stands
With brightened wings, and smiles and beckons home!

WHINERS AT HOME

By Maximilian Harden

The subjoined translation of an article in Die Zukunft written by the trenchant editor of that magazine some weeks ago, when Germany's food situation was less acute than it is now, has especial interest in this country in view of the controversy in congress over the food control bill.

THE credulous reader of French and other foreign newspapers stands upon the rock of the conviction that the German empire already is half exhausted through famine. It's our own fault. All over the world goes the German tale of horror; mobs storm the market halls, clash with troops and police in bloody potato and bread riots; haggard mothers, dying babes in arms, gather to march to the palace or city hall and shriek the plaint of misery into the ears of the sated.

Back stairs gossip revels. It pieces together a myriad shreds of woe into a weird story that makes the world first shudder, then shout with joy, for the hated empire is heard gasping its last in the clasp of the wolf.

But not alone gossip is busy. Even serious minds have become imbued with the hallucination that the German land is on the edge of starvation. Many mistakes of our own authorities and citizens have helped in spinning the tale. Governmental seizure and the rationing of the field products were too long delayed. Why? "Lest public sentiment be depressed!"

AND now that we have these measures, they are too much boasted about. Proclamations, pleas, lectures, instructions, warnings everywhere: "Don't throw away old bread. Cook the potato with the peel. Save the left-overs. Leave them in front of your door. The driver (who makes 7 marks a day) will call for them in the morning. Eat fresh bread only in the evening—no, at noon, too. No flour on Sundays. Take your bread card with you to the restaurant. Housewives, remember your patriotic duty. Remember, even the people in the Hohenzollern palace are using bread cards! War kitchens. The potato belongs to the state. War cook book."

Can one wonder that foreigners—and many of our own people—have come to believe terrible misery stalks through this land?

There's too much silly advice. Dishes the very sound of which nauseates are recommended. Age yellowed recipes for famine days are dug up from amid great-grandmother's relics in the attic. Women proudly tell their neighbors about the luscious dish to be made out of a herring's tail. ("Gott strafe England!")

What for? Our people have inestimable stores of meat before them, around them—far more than they can eat. They have their hands full smoking and pickling this meat—and you are trying to make them gum their mouths with herring mush! Eat it yourself. Don't prate it to the world. Don't feed your housewife's vanity out of the fatherland's trough!

All this silly chatter about substitutes and stinting is only hurting us abroad. Must Germania ask the censor to make these asses keep their tongues?

STARVATION! That fire-poke was to stir our hatred of England to furious flame. The soot from the ovens blackens Germany's face. If the war should last another year, we will not—as did the people of Paris in 1871—have to smother dogs, cats, and rats to keep us alive. Hundreds of thousands of Germans are today living more opulently than they did in times of peace, are living infamously well. Men who used to drink and loaf today stand in arms at the front and send their pay home. Everybody chips in for the needy. Community funds, society and private collections add to the household exchequer.

Roast turkey, apple tart, cream baisers, canned asparagus, hot chocolate with cream puffs—feasting on these delicacies is by no means a rare event in our midst.

As an appetizer, a visit to the fortune teller. ("You will receive a letter!") Afterward to the movies. ("Her Last Dance," "The Guardian Angel of the Submarine," "The Latest War Films.")

There's work for everybody; no unemployment. Foodstuffs are stored up to the attic's ceiling. Mountains of cake. Enough candy to build a children's paradise. Milk, fruit, bacon, beer, fish, vegetables, tongue, sausage, wine, cheese—loads of all. The streets are bathed in light. Coffee houses are packed full as early as 4 in the afternoon. Two dozen theaters. A hundred movie shows. Concerts. Circus. Spring jackets and übergangshüte (hats for the period intervening between spring and summer). There's a rushing business in express train dining cars. Billions are rolling through the land, stop at the border, roll back.

WERE our enemies, or the neutrals, to get a glimpse of this picture, these flourishing cities, this feverish industrial boom—all their hallucinations would quickly vanish. One great feasting swarm.

And German lips are murmuring of need! Summer will bring us the first harvests from southern Germany. In June bread may be short, potatoes even sooner. Butter, eggs, milk, rice, fats, will mount to unprecedented prices. Will things be even worse? I doubt it.

We will not starve. We must not end the war because we lack food. Measures finally decided upon by the powers that be—and not everywhere carried out with cautious prudence—are to check the tide of extravagance. Is it dignified to talk so long, so loudly, with either despairing or boasting voice, about these measures? You are still overloading your stomachs. Is beer necessary when hops, malt, barley, are becoming rare? Eat vegetables, fruits, nuts, a piece of fish or meat; leave bread and potatoes to those who cannot afford other things.

If you had to be content with one meal a day—a frugal meal—and fast every seventh day, your body, no matter how hard your work, would only benefit by it. Public opinion? The people's "mood"? Hang it, if it can prosper only on a gourmet's fare and on lies, if it slouches into despair when there are no wheat rolls, fried potatoes, and fairy tales of victories—too giddy is this mood, not too serious; more ready for triumph than for arduous exertion of strength and labor.

THIS woman lost her husband; that man there his favorite child; this couple greets its only son, returning from the front—blind. The tall young woman there was engaged to marry an Achilles; is now betrothed to a one legged cripple with a sewed up nose and crushed jawbone. Here died the sole supporter, there the sole hope of tottering age. The bridge which a bold youth in restless labor spanned across an ocean has crashed to ruin. Half the savings of a thrifty workman's life has been swallowed by the maelstrom of the world war.

THESE people suffer. THEY are in need. But their tears do not wet the market square; their hearts would shudder at the very thought of boasting that their faith remained strong upon the grave of their happiness.

Are Germans whining because their bellies might shrink? Do they seek praise for abstention because their leg of lamb no longer swims in the rivulet of butter beneath the potato hillock? Mars, God of MEN, stalks through the world, with his spear, with the wolf and the woodpecker.

The young manhood hastened ahead of him; Germany's holy spring. THESE are in need. They have seen bleeding comrades lying in the snow, freezing to death amid corpses; have seen their pals' youthful breasts slashed by murderous steel. They inhale poison gas. They stand upright in the bullet rain. They are bedded in mud or, roped onto the oily steel ladder of a stamping boat, gaze through the peek hole out into the sea. Three weeks without getting out of their clothes. No chance to wash. No warm nook.

And at home weaklings whine about war's misery! For shame!

U. S. TRADE IN FRANCE

By Sterling Heilig

NANTES-ST. NAZAIRE, French Coast, June 10.—I have seen a beautiful sight—the American flag on American ships (a regular Fourth of July display), all over a great modern French port. Old Glory is abroad again. It is the beginning of a new world. Just across the Atlantic (only water is between) America has discovered the rich and powerful old commercial city of Nantes, joined by deep waterways and unlimited dock territory to the brand new ocean port of St. Nazaire with forests of wharf—and floating cranes, grain elevators, refrigerating plants, and all the rest.

American shipping firms are snatching up facilities—while settling their families on luxurious modern French beaches (where you get wonderfully good cookery) in an ancient land of castles and romance, and the girls wear coifs. And lilacs, hawthorn, orchards and shady forests go right down to the edge of the ocean. The American vice consul never takes the train for Nantes. He always goes by automobile, cleaning up high pressure work en route; but, ever and anon, he leans back a moment, to dream over the beauty of the landscape and the story of each old world town and landmark. . . .

Also there is the deep question (and more Stars and Stripes galore) in the matter of French ports chosen by the United States government for naval and troop transport bases. How will they affect American business? Mystery, gossip. . . .

AMERICAN business transportation is snatching up facilities at Nantes-St. Nazaire; but the trouble is that the story is so up to date that we are asked, continually, not to give names—yet. For example, the big American owned cargo ship chartered by the Swiss government, and recently torpedoed flying the American flag (never mind where), is given no name or owner's name in the dispatches. I affirm that I have seen a Fourth of July display of the Stars and Stripes in Nantes-St. Nazaire harbors; but—

Going down the Loire from Nantes by invitation (with American business men and others, entertained by local chambers of commerce and municipalities), they gave us a gala lunch on the river steamboat; and (to come back to that luscious cookery) the chef who prepared it came up in his white duck suit and cap and made us a witty and worthy speech in response to the acclamations of chamber of commerce notabilities of two republics. (True, this sublime cook was the famous Prevot of Nantes, rich man who owns his own restaurant and has passed his university baccalaureate.) Well, the next moment we passed the good American S. S. California, 12,000 tons, wheat and steel, half unloaded, at St. Nazaire, and taking the remainder up to Nantes, no owner's name mentioned. We hailed the flag!

"Who owns her?" I asked.

Etienne Rio, St. Nazaire ship broker, squirmed with a vague and apologetic gesture; but he remembered my question. Later, as we toured the big port, he pointed out three cargo liners, between 11,000 and 13,000 tons, belonging to the France-Canada Steamship company, limited, which, in spite of its name, is known to all to be a powerful New York concern; and, about this moment, we rejoiced to see Old Glory dipping to us from four great five mast sailing ships around 3,000 tons apiece and modern beauties.

"They're owned by Judge Mayer of New York," he admitted freely. "The one you're pointing to is the Singleton-Palmer, 7,000 tons, the first of them to arrive here. If you'd like to go aboard and speak with Capt. Bullock ——?"

Later we did speak with Capt. Bullock, who said, very simply, "Do not quote me!" For the moment we were interested in a quantity of other Stars and Stripes. (For thirty years in Europe, I had never seen such a sight, and, historically, it would be as safe to say fifty!)

"What's that?—and that?" we asked.

Again the men of Nantes and St. Nazaire squirmed evasively. I think that Mayor Bellamy of Nantes squirmed; also Mayor Brichaux of St. Nazaire (and president of its chamber of commerce), and Eugene Guillet de la Brosse, the millionaire miller, and Maurice Tournadour, editor of La Mouette, and Deputy Delaroche-Vernet of the Loire-Inférieure. And this is what they answered:

"They are two powerful American concerns receiving railroad material from America; and they always have three or four big cargo boats in port here at the same time. You had best not name them at this moment."

Once again I spotted the beloved. "What's that?"

"It is for the Crédit Spécial, the inter-allies, or the French government, just as you please to call it," was their satisfying answer. "They unload 50,000 tons per month, always occupying five or six berths, discharging day and night."

"And that?" (Again I picked the emblem.)

"That is the Intendance. All the bales of cotton you see piled up in the streets are brought by those ships from America. There are three, four, five, six always in port."

IF you find this tantalizing and stimulating, how would you feel in the cluttered up streets of St. Nazaire, where the good American passes from mystery to uplifting (and back again) while bumping up against mountains of crates marked: "For Export—Synthetic Phenol," "Poppy Brand Evaporated Milk," "Disc Harrows," "Corned Beef, L., McN. & L., Chicago," "Walter A. Wood Mower & Reaper Co.," "The Youngstown Tube & Packing Co., Canajoharie, N. Y.," and—how remember them? I'm getting mixed.

This American stuff overflows the warehouses; yet new warehouses are being run up daily. It overflows the docks onto the sidewalks, and over the sidewalks into the streets. There are breastworks of packing cases of "Spare Parts" and "Transport Wheels," and big machinery crated up, with city names like Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Baltimore. And mountains of cotton bales like old photographs of New Orleans and Memphis!

I have mentioned the deep question (long a mystery) of the United States navy's base in France and where the American troops are to be landed—and the effects thereof on those and other French ports as to big American business.

All through the earlier part of the war Nantes-St. Nazaire received almost the entire British army. It was not certain that Paris could be held; and a more northern port might be dangerous. So Nantes-St. Nazaire handled practically everything, naval base, troop transports, artillery, tractors, motor-lorries, sanitary service, mules and horses from America, all, all. Then, when the victory of the Marne had grown to certainty that even Calais could be held, the British moved up to Havre and Boulogne; but Nantes-St. Nazaire had given its measure!

The British regret the rich and capable district today for many reasons. Nantes-St. Nazaire is not only a vast modern port district, but a shipbuilding center, which turns out dreadnaughts and cruisers like the Diderot, Condorcet, and Lorraine, but could transform and arm the passenger liner Provence after having originally built her engines. They took us to the steel works of Trignac. It was like Bethlehem, Pa. Up the Loire at Nantes other shipyards were building destroyers and cargo boats in full war; and certain Nantes rolling mills, transformed to munition factories, are turning out giant shells with lathes from Cincinnati so accurate (and the French steel so good) that the elastic "curls" of shavings often measure 200 inches, without effort to keep them from breaking. I picked up one in the refuse. It measured 160 inches.

There is not a job of repair, assembling, refitting, or building of the heaviest machinery, maritime, military or railroad, which cannot be done at Nantes-St. Nazaire. Half way down the Loire they have a vast sulphuric acid works, all concrete, even to the car jetties for unloading pyrites from boats. Also, Nantes is a rich old commercial city with facility and capacity of push and finance.

HOW does Nantes-St. Nazaire feel about landing American troops after the question of the American navy's base in France? How is the sentiment with respect to Brest, La Pallice (Rochelle), and Cherbourg? Nantes-St. Nazaire is ready to act if called on in no matter what capacity. For the rest, the Sacred Union makes all Frenchmen brothers: so there is great courtesy, reserve, discretion, French politeness, and even mystery, in attempts to discuss these matters.

American business men and shippers' agents on the spot are more outspoken. I do not mean our greater shipping magnates or their confidential lieutenants on hurried visits to Paris or Nantes, although they have been known to talk at times. But the talk is in the air, and it comes from our own Americans. A census of the summer hotel beaches near St. Nazaire would reveal many fluttering and joyous American families. . . .

And the idea, I think, is this, as for Americans at least. Let Brest have the United States navy's base, and La Pallice or Cherbourg receive the American troop transports, or both, or either, as the governments may decide. Big American business interests scarcely care to be dominated by home authorities abroad. Bordeaux, the other great remaining port, far south, has not only the long haul railroad handicap, but must (long after the war) remain dominated by powerful local interests and the French Transatlantic line—whose American and much other traffic formerly went to Havre. After the war Bordeaux will remain powerful and extremely French by acquired momentum. Havre will take back much and remain extremely English. Brest will always be dominated by the French navy. La Pallice is a great oil port, both American and French, with refineries all around it.

So I rather think you will hear the American language talking in big figures, more and more, from now on, in the great free, central port district of Nantes-St. Nazaire. It is a word to the wise for American interests. The more I see the more I see they are awake. . . .

I TOLD you I traveled with American and French chamber of commerce men and others. One such American, at the toasts of the sixth banquet, rose and flourished the bill of fare at Mayors Brichaux and Bellamy.

"I could swamp your cities with American business," he said. (I think I may tell his name: it was Charles Prince of Boston.) "All I would have to do," he said, "would be to spread these menus of the things you give to eat at Nantes and St. Nazaire before our people!" (adding: "If this in war time, what in peace?")

At Nantes, as I began to say, there is a restaurant famous over all France. It belongs to the illustrious Prevot, already mentioned, rich man, bachelor of letters, and sublime cook, who goes daily into the kitchens, supervises the dishes, and does the fine touches with his own hands. This is what Prevot gave us for one lunch—I will not attempt to describe a dinner!

Hors-d'oeuvres, highly seasoned trifles to start with, all dolled up in pink mayonnaises and canary colored glazes, like a mousse (or boating up) of cold turbot, prawns, shrimps, or whipped foie gras in tiny pastries, or chopped cold hard boiled plovers' eggs and truffles, caviar, or even sliced raw tomatoes (for their beauty) in a sauce that every one can't make. O, anything. They scarcely count. (Muscadet wine, white, not in commerce. Loire wine.)

Baked shad, stuffed with a stuffing of bread crumbs, shad roe, chopped mushrooms, and herbs, faintly perfumed with oysters, and not the slightest trace of forcemeat, as may happen to fish stuffing in Paris. (A glass of that peculiar golden wine of Anjou called the Roche-aux-Moines.)

Cold lobster with Prevot mayonnaise. (Another half glass of the golden.)

Leg of lamb done at the spit before wood fire. (Certain red wine of Madoc, whose chateau and date Prevot will not tell any one. It gives a psychological zest, arousing discussion . . . and every one can think he's right because the answer is not given!)

Grand style asparagus, Sauce Hollandaise. Those who like a slight grating of nutmeg can do it, here's the grater, for historical verisimilitude, because, I say, Prevot is great and large. (Corton of Burgundy, 1906.)

Crémets of Angers, that divinely thick whipped cream and liqueur ambrosia in little earthen pots, famous since Henry IV., which will not bear transportation and whose secret has been jealously guarded in the district. Long, thin, and particularly sweet strawberries whose perfume marries with the crémets. (St. Marceaux champagne, 1912.)

Desserts. Coffee. Liqueurs.

"Simple war time fare," says Prevot, "but healthful."

They say that at the beginning of the war Prevot came near to getting drafted into the troop kitchens like many another. "If you had 150 men to nourish, how would you go about it?" inquired a colonel.

"It is simple," answered Prevot. "Let us suppose a soufflé of woodcock. Picked and cleaned I place my woodcock in a bimetal saucepan, with a bottom of thin bands of bacon garnished with mushrooms, shallots, and a trimming of a trifle of ham with its fat. When the whole has taken a beautiful color, I throw in the yellow of an egg; I dilute a little consommé in white of egg beaten to snow, to which I add half a glass of Madeira; and I put it all back on a gentle fire for fifteen minutes—or even more, according to inspiration. I zest my sauce with a few good truffles and a suspicion of lemon juice, sprinkle with fine butter and a trifle of parsley, and the simple dish is ready for the brave defenders. . . ."

"Just so, just so," said the colonel. "I'll come back and have that soufflé some day!"

Prevot, glory of Nantes, was not called to feed the army.

New State Laws Curb Lights and Boost Auto Fees

These new measures affecting automobiles in Illinois have become laws within the last ten days through the affixing of Gov. Lowden's signature:

License Fees.

Rates for state automobile licenses to be increased 50 per cent next year; another 50 per cent increase to be made Jan. 1, 1920.

Glaring Headlights.

Headlights must be dimmed or extinguished within 200 yards of an approaching vehicle everywhere in the state. This goes into effect today.

"Kid" Drivers.

Fine of from $10 to $25 provided for any person under 16 who drives an automobile, and for any person who permits the child to do so.

Car Thieves.

Fine of $200 for any person who tampers with a motor vehicle standing at a curb.

Fine of $200, six months in jail, or both, for having in one's possession a car in which the manufacturer's number has been removed or defaced.

Garage Men.

Garage owners given right of lien on automobiles, permitting their seizure for unpaid bills.

By Sheppard Butler.

THE Illinois motorist finds himself this morning confronting a comfortable, homeopathic prescription of new state laws, all designed directly or indirectly for his own welfare and none of them by any means of the drastic kind that cause automobile clubs to rise in their majesty and pass voluble resolutions of protest.

Of the measures to which Gov. Lowden's busy pen has affixed his signature within the last ten days the one least expected hereabouts seems to be that which goes into effect today compelling the dimming of headlights whenever a driver is within 200 yards of an approaching vehicle. Chicagoans—even those who make it a point to keep in touch with the general assembly—knew of no such proposed law.

Representative Guy Guernsey, however, had not only suggested it but had introduced the bill and seen to it that it was passed. Coroner Hoffman and Sheriff Traeger have approved it enthusiastically as an aid in their crusade—particularly active just now—against the "wild motorist."

Of course it should be welcomed generally, for it involves nothing new in driving practice. Your courteous motorist always dims his lights for an approaching car; the "smart aleck" who doesn't should be compelled to for safety's sake.

Just how the law is to be enforced on country roads, where there are no officials about, is another question, but it should prove useful for sheriffs and their deputies on such guarded stretches as the already notorious "speedway" to Niles and Wheeling. In the smaller Illinois cities, too, unless municipalities should be excluded from its provisions, the law will provide automatically a dimmer regulation, for there are few urban streets on which one is not usually within 200 yards of a vehicle of some sort.

The nearest approach to a drastic statute is the one which doubles Illinois license fees for motor vehicles, the full increase to come in 1920 with an intermediate 50 per cent raise next year. This was greeted dubiously by some of the motoring organizations when it was proposed, but has been pretty generally accepted as the only practicable means of raising funds to meet the $60,000,000 good roads bond issue, on which the voters will pass their opinion in 1918.

When the plan for getting some real roads in Illinois reached its crucial stage at Springfield Gov. Lowden announced that he would not approve the measure unless the motorists agreed to foot the bills. That the motorists would agree was taken for granted to a large extent, but, consulted or not, they have voiced no particularly loud protest.

What the change will mean to the motorist's pocketbook is indicated in the following figures:

	Present rate.	1918-1919.	1920 and after.
16 h. p. and less	$ 3.00	$ 4.50	$ 6.00
To 25 h. p.	4.00	6.00	8.00
To 35 h. p.	6.00	9.00	12.00
To 50 h. p.	8.00	12.00	16.00
Above 50 h. p.	10.00	15.00	20.00

With the proposed federal war tax to be paid by automobile owners, this means that motoring hereabouts is to be decidedly a more expensive luxury than it has been. But everything, from gasoline to lamb chops, is going up, so what's a dollar or two as between friends? Maybe we won't be able to afford automobiles at all by 1920.

BUY NOW

If You Don't, There'll Be a Lot of Disappointed Automobile Men—This Is Their Week.

THIS is "Buy Your Car Now" week throughout the United States. When President Wilson wrote a New York business man, "This is not only not a time to allow slowing up of business, but is a time when every sensible process of stimulation should be used," the automobile manufacturers and dealers of the country decided that he meant them.

Sunday, July 1, to Sunday, July 8, therefore, has been set aside as a time for bringing into play all available arts of persuasion to make folks see that there's no time like the present for investing in a new juggernaut. That many of the makers, incidentally, have chosen today as the occasion for sharp price increases has no bearing on the case. You see, they need the money, and they have statistics to prove it.

The End of a Perfect Day.

Sixty-four motor car drivers were fined $5 and costs at St. Louis one day as a result of a roundup by the police department's flying squadron in the west end. Of the arrests, forty-five had no tail lights, five had dazzling headlights, four had no lights, and ten were speeders.

Questions and Answers

By High Speed

I intend to start next month for Wheeling, W. Va., and I should like to ask you to publish the best route from this city. I had planned to go through Indianapolis, Columbus, and Zanesville. What is the distance?

A. R., East Bloomington, Ill.

You have selected the right route. Drive through Gibson City, Hoopeston, Ambia, Oxford, Montmorenci, Lafayette, 118.1 miles; Frankfort, Lebanon, Indianapolis, 66.7 miles; Greenfield, Knightstown, Cambridge City, Richmond, Eaton, Dayton, 106.6 miles; Harshman, Springfield, Columbus, 67.8 miles; Granville, Newark, Zanesville, 62.9 miles; Cambridge and Bridgeport to Wheeling, 72.4 miles.

Please give the best route and the conditions of the roads between Chicago and Sullivan, Ill., also between Chicago and Lima, O.

D. I. GASSER, Chicago.

Cottage Grove avenue, Ninety-fifth street, and Michigan avenue south through Roseland, Riverdale, Dolton, Thornton, Chicago Heights, Steger, Sollitt, Momence, Kankakee, Clifton, Ashkum, Gilman, Onarga, Buckley, Loda, Paxton, Rantoul, Champaign, 151.5 miles; Pesotum and Tuscola to Arcola, 33.3 miles. Here you shoud make inquiry as to the best road to Sullivan, which is but a few miles away. In going from Chicago to Lima, O., follow the Lincoln highway all of the way, passing through South Bend and Fort Wayne. The distance is 247 miles.

What is the distance from Chicago to St. Louis? Please publish a route that will be over all hard roads, with no dirt stretches and few hills.

A. McA., Wheaton, Ill.

The distance is 284 miles. I regret to inform you that there is no way of reaching St. Louis by automobile without traveling roads that are mostly dirt, with but few hard sections. The most direct and therefore the most advisable route goes through Joliet, Dwight, Bloomington, Springfield, Carlinville, and Alton.

I am contemplating a tour through Canada and would like to know if the dominion authorities are strict. Would a passport be required? Would I be obliged to procure a license for my car? What are the Canadian speed limits?

T. M. JENNIFIELD, Chicago.

Under a recent ruling of the Canadian authorities passports are no longer required from tourists. All that is necessary is to be prepared to furnish identification when demanded. The Canadian license fees run from $10 to $30, according to horse power. Unfortunately Illinois is one of the few states that has no reciprocal agreement with Canada, and therefore its motorists are not exempt from the payment of license fees, which must be taken out at the border. The speed in Canada must not exceed fifteen miles per hour within the city limits nor twenty miles per hour elsewhere.

Will you be so kind as to publish as soon as possible the best route from Chicago to Buffalo, N. Y.? Please give detailed directions for getting out of the city.

A. B. S., Chicago.

South in Michigan avenue to Garfield boulevard [Fifty-fifth street], east through Washington park, across the Midway and through Jackson park; then South Shore drive to Eighty-third street, Burley avenue, Buffalo avenue, Ninety-second street, Ewing avenue, Indianapolis avenue, Sheffield avenue, Calumet avenue, across Ridge road and to Dyer, Ind. At this point take the Lincoln highway and go through Valparaiso and Laporte to South Bend, 101 miles. From South Bend drive through Goshen, Kendallville, Bryan, and Wauseon to Toledo, 163 miles; Norwalk to Cleveland, 120 miles; Ashtabula to Erie, 102 miles; Northeast and Westfield to Buffalo, 93 miles.

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

SAXON "SIX"

A Car at $1150 or So
Or Saxon "Six" at $935

What Does the Extra $200 or $300 Buy?

If you are thinking of buying a car costing $200 to $300 more than Saxon "Six," ask yourself—"what will I get for this $200 or $300 over the Saxon "Six" price?"

When you dig into the matter this way you uncover some interesting facts.

In point of performance you can't buy a better car than Saxon "Six" for $200 or $300 more.

That has been pretty clearly proved. As a matter of simple truth Saxon "Six" has—in public—demonstrated its ability to out-perform other sixes, eights, and twelves of far higher price. It is doing so daily in private use in the hands of thousands of owners.

And not in one phase alone, but in many—in acceleration, in flexibility, in speed, and in high-gear work.

Certainly for $200 or $300 more you can't buy a better looking car.

The design of Saxon "Six" is unusually smart and graceful.

The finish is of top-quality and has a deep lustrous richness that is remarkably impervious to wind and weather and mar.

The windshield is slanted to blend with the sweep of the body lines.

The seats are slightly tilted, to insure you greater riding comfort.

Now take the features of Saxon "Six." They are of the finest quality.

We doubt if you can find a car selling at $200 or $300 more than Saxon "Six" that will match Saxon "Six" in point of fine-car attractions.

For instance. One of Saxon "Six's" important features—Fedders radiator—is also found on 8 cars selling for more than $3,000. Saxon "Six" costs $935.

Again, another of the important features of Saxon "Six"—Timken axles—is also found on seven cars selling for more than $1,700.

One more. Still another important feature of Saxon "Six"—Spiral bevel gear—is also found on 12 cars selling for more than $1,350.

And there are 7 other of the big features of Saxon "Six" such as, Timken bearings, Timken axles, Continental motor, Stromberg carburetor, Remy ignition, Fedders radiator, Spiral bevel gear, found on 30 cars selling for more than $1,150.

Now consider the matter of upkeep cost.

Here you will find all the evidence favors Saxon "Six" as against a car costing $200 or $300 more.

You will find the cost of running Saxon "Six" quite visibly less than the cost of running a car priced several hundred dollars higher.

Saxon "Six" is constructed lightly and balanced so accurately that it rides the tires easily and so a set of tires has much longer life.

Its motor has been so refined and developed, and vibration and friction have been so largely eliminated that you get full mileage from each atom of gas and oil.

And yet despite its light construction Saxon "Six" has great strength and endurance.

This is proved by the record of cost for replacements. The most accurate check has been kept upon purchases of all parts for Saxon "Sixes" during the past two years.

It reveals the individual average cost per Saxon "Six" for this two-year period to be but $8.50. Only $4.25 per year.

So you see—considering every angle—Saxon "Six" not only will give better service and longer service than a car costing $200 or $300 more, but it will cost you less in upkeep.

And the price—is $935 f. o. b. Detroit.

All Together Now Folks, Gott Strafe Carbon!

By William H. Stewart Jr.

CARBON is one of the worst ailments of the engine and the most insidious. Its presence is not suspected and the evils which follow are attributed to many other than the real causes. The motor seems to be sluggish, does not respond readily to the throttle, particularly on a hill, and the driver blames the gasoline, the carburetor, the cooling system—even the manufacturer. He gets out the starting handle and cranks the motor over to try the compression. He finds it weak and blames the manufacturer for making an engine which cannot hold compression a reasonable length of time.

Before long the engine begins to miss explosions and he blames the coil or the spark plugs. He opens the switch after a long run and the engine refuses to stop. Then he remembers that he heard a distinct knock which he thought might be a loose bearing, but now he knows there is something wrong inside or the engine wouldn't overheat so badly after the careful handling he had given it. So he condemns the car and all its kind and asks his friends what the trouble is that so many ills can occur to one engine at one time.

Carbon is the answer. It gets under the exhaust valves and gums up the piston rings so that the motor loses compression. It short circuits the spark plugs and the engine misses explosions. It accumulates in masses in the head of the cylinder, gets red hot, and fires the mixture before the proper time. This causes knocking, which is especially pronounced on a hill. When the switch is opened the motor keeps on running, as it was not using the electric spark at all.

There are many causes of carbon and one must be on his guard against all of them. The usual trouble is too much oil, but the wrong grade of oil will give carbon as will a poor grade. Too rich a mixture from the carburetor is another cause. If the piston rings are badly worn oil will be drawn up into the combustion chamber on the suction stroke—more carbon.

The remedy is to avoid the causes given above. Use oil made by the manufacturer of established reputation and use the oil he recommends for your car. See that oil level is correct and that mixture from carburetor is right. If red or yellow flame is shown at compression cocks the mixture is too rich. In spite of the best care, however, carbon will persist in forming. To help keep this down inject a small quantity of kerosene in each cylinder once a week. Have motor hot when it is poured in so that the kerosene will vaporize. Close compression cocks and crank engine over a few times, either by hand or self-starter. This compresses the vapor and forces it into the carbon. The effect of the kerosene vapor acting all night is to soften the carbon so that some of it will be ejected when the motor is again started.

If such precautions have not been taken and cylinders are found to be carbonized, the deposits may be too thick to be affected by kerosene alone. The old method was to use scrapers which were inserted through the valve openings. The carbon was scraped off, but fell in masses on the head of the piston. Unless blown out it was carried into the muffler. If not thoroughly removed ridges of carbon were left, which became red hot and caused preignition just the same.

The best method, aside from removing cylinder head and positive scraping, is to have the cylinders burned out with oxygen. This can only be done when special apparatus is available. The engine is started and the gasoline supply is shut off. The engine stops, having used up all the explosive mixture in the combustion space. This is to avoid an explosion when the oxygen is first introduced into the cylinder. The plugs are then removed, a burning match dropped into the cylinder, and the stream of oxygen turned on. This spreads to all parts of the combustion space, burning the carbon. As long as sparks are coming out the workman knows that there is still some unconsumed carbon. This process is quick and quite efficient, dismantling of motor being unnecessary.

In Japan.

The status of the motor car in Japan today is about where it was in America in 1900, one of the trade papers reports. In a population of 60,000,000 there are only 1,341 automobiles, nearly three-fourths of which are registered in Tokio, the capital city and metropolis. There is one small but alert motor club, and Japan's one and only automobile magazine, Jidosha, expired two years ago after a heroic struggle to survive motoring apathy. And—this on good authority—there is but a solitary gasoline sales pump in the whole country.

Autos Are Barred.

The importation of automobiles, traction engines, and parts thereof into the Federated Malay states has been prohibited, except under license. The prohibition on the importation of automobiles into the Straits Settlements and the duty of 10 per cent on automobiles in the Federated Malay states were recently announced.

The LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

Movable Headlights.

Adjustable and reversible headlights are among the newest wrinkles of the moment. As supplied on Dodge Brothers cars, their light may be turned in any desired direction through the loosening of a lock nut. Throwing the rays straight back illuminates the rear wheel for any necessary repairs. If a tire is to be changed on a front wheel the polished front door is swung open and used as a reflector to throw the light where it is wanted, as indicated in the picture.

Spare Wheels for Fords.

Ford owners may now carry a spare wheel, with its attendant convenience in the matter of making quick tire changes. Removing a single nut removes the wheel with the incapacitated tire. The spare wheel, with a tire ready inflated, is slid into place, the nut tightened, and everything is shipshape. An extra wheel with four new hubs to replace the regular Ford hubs is offered for $30.

Time by Electricity.

A self-winding dash clock, which is kept going by electric current from the storage battery or four dry cells, is to be had for $15. The clock is wound every minute by tension of the main spring created by electric current. The watch movement is seven jeweled, mounted on a hard rubber composition base that acts as both insulator and absorber for any vibration. Removing the bezel exposes the regulator and setting device, by which adjustments can be made, if desired. The clock is designed with the idea of avoiding danger of dirt or dust penetrating. The current consumption is said to be so slight that the clock will continue to run after the current has become too weak for starting or lighting. The clock, designed to be set flush in the instrument board, comes in either nickel or black, with black or silvered dial.

More Engine Power.

A device designed to increase the efficiency of motors attaches to the intake manifold after tapping it, and from it extends in a flexible tube to the radiator. The radiator is also tapped and a copper tube extends into the neck of the radiator so that it can conduct moist air through the instrument to the cylinders. The device keeps the mixture constantly damp. Water in the moist air is instantly decomposed into 88 per cent oxygen and 12 per cent hydrogen. The liberated oxygen combines with carbon in the cylinders, forming carbon monoxide, and an explosion of gasoline vapor, carbon monoxide, and hydrogen results, blowing out the carbon. This induction of moist air also makes the mixture a better conductor for the spark than dry air. The price is $10.

The EXPERTS SAY—

When any part gets rusty, put kerosene on it, but wipe off the kerosene after it has stood a while. Kerosene is useful in removing rust, but it will also cause rust. After removing the kerosene, put oil on the parts or wipe them with an oily rag.

It seldom occurs to the motorist that he ought to strain his lubricating oil, but this should be done, nevertheless. Most people rely on the strainer in the funnel and many give the matter no thought at all. The result is that foreign matter carried into the pump may clog it or cause it to fail, besides clogging the strainer in the pump.

Do not neglect to inspect your valve clearance at least once a month. If the valve lifters are out of adjustment power is being lost without its being noticed. Wait until the motor cools and adjust them to 1-64 of an inch. If they are too wide open they become noisy; if too far closed the motor loses compression. In either case there is a serious loss of power.

The blades of some fans have a bothersome habit of working loose, through defective riveting at the hubs, and for this reason a new fan should be rather carefully watched for a time. A loose blade can do a good deal of damage and when one blade goes the rest of the fan often is injured, if running at high speed, because of the lack of balance.

Do not neglect a slight leak in the gasoline line because it isn't leaking fast. The vapor, being colorless, accumulates without your seeing it, and a disastrous fire may result. If tightening the joints does not stop the leak, rub some soap in the threads.

Hudford Company,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:-

Replying to yours of Dec. 8th would say that we have received the last five Hudford Trucks which you made for us and they have been in operation for several weeks and are very satisfactory indeed.

In relation to the first truck which we purchased from you and which has now been in operation for about one year, having covered about 18,000 miles, would say that the mechanical upkeep on this truck for that period has been approximately $7.50.

We also find that the gasoline consumption and tire wear has been about 40% less than that of any other one-ton truck which we are operating.

Sincerely yours,
HILLMAN'S Per-
Genl. Manager.

NOTE: — THE HUDFORD referred to in this letter is the type of TRUXTUN Unit that converts only Ford cars into commercial trucks. TRUXTUN Units are also made in other types for converting pleasure cars, other than Fords, from pleasure cars into profit-making hauling and delivery wagons.

With the rapid growth of business in TRUXTUN Units in the wonderfully progressive Middle Western Territory which revolves in and out of Chicago, the establishing of a Branch House has become essential to the proper distribution and right kind of service which goes with TRUXTUN Units.

FACTORY BRANCH HEADQUARTERS
Will Be Opened at 2429 Michigan Avenue on Tuesday, July 3rd to give to users of TRUXTUN Units that intimate kind of detail service that keeps the wheels of hauling moving "all of the time," instead of "some of the time."

Model A
makes any FORD into a 1-ton Truck, f. o. b. Philadelphia and Detroit.. $390

Model B
makes any FORD into a 1½-2-ton Truck, f. o. b. Philadelphia and Detroit $490

With a stock of TRUXTUN Units always available to avoid trying delays in delivery, with a stock of parts on hand to take care of ordinary wear and tear and unavoidable accidents of the road, with a corps of TRUXTUN experts both in the selling lines and the mechanical end to see that the right type of TRUXTUN is sold for a particular purpose and, once sold, that the TRUXTUN stays sold to a contented user, the Chicago Factory Service Branch of TRUXTUN Units is established on a basis of permanency. And permanency is the motto of the TRUXTUN interests—in the character and men standing sponsors for the product—in the design and construction of their units with and in an absolute determination to give to TRUXTUN users that quality and degree of SERVICE that by very reason of its efficiency will make TRUXTUN users permanent TRUXTUN boosters.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Best Way to Get Into Michigan Is by the Back Door

By John DeLong.

THAT old paradox, "the longest way around is the shortest way there," may be aptly applied to the routes running from Chicago to Detroit. A majority of motorists, when they have a Detroit tour in view, almost invariably take a look at the map and then either drive to the City of the Straits by way of Coldwater or by way of Battle Creek and Jackson. In most cases they manage to reach their destination, but usually with broken springs blocked up or wtih memories of perfectly good dollars paid to farmers for hauling them out at various points along the way.

Some day, perhaps, the Michigan folks will wake up and construct a fine system of connecting roads over which motorists bound for Detroit and intermediate points may drive quickly and with comfort. But at the present time the Wolverine commonwealth is woefully lacking in good roads linking Chicago with Detroit. Both of the main routes have been in bad condition for several months. They are a trifle improved at the present time, but I would not advise one to use them when there is a fine route running across Indiana and Ohio. The South Bend-Coldwater route measures 291.2 miles; the South Bend-Kalamazoo-Jackson-Ann Arbor route totals 293.7 miles, while the one described in this tour suggestion and outlined on the accompanying map is 324.4 miles long.

Thus it will be seen that the route recommended in this article is approximately thirty-three miles longer than the shortest of the two main routes, but I believe a conservative driver would be able to make better time going this way than he would by following either of the Michigan routes. At any rate, he would have a much pleasanter trip and there would be much less wear and tear on car and tires.

The two main routes were not any too good last year, but the heavy traffic of winter and early spring just about rendered them unfit for comfortable touring. During the time when the railroads were unable to furnish enough box cars to meet the demands of the Detroit manufacturers thousands upon thousands of pleasure cars and trucks were driven overland, with the result that the roads were badly cut up. During last spring there were very few motorists who did not have to be towed out of the mud from one to three or four times. The section between Battle Creek and Ann Arbor is particularly bad. The Coldwater route is not much better.

Motorists who traveled both of the main routes as late as the middle of last week reported that the rough roads compelled them to cut their speed down as low as eight or ten miles an hour.

On the other hand, uniformly good roads are to be found on the route outlined herewith. Starting from Chicago, it runs over concrete or asphalt practically all of the way to Schererville, where the Lincoln highway markings are picked up and followed for 113 miles, or to Ligonier, Ind. The highway runs through Valparaiso and La Porte to South Bend, from which point all of the Detroit routes, as well as those running to eastern points, radiate. From South Bend the motorist bound for Detroit, Toledo, and the east drives through Elkhart and Goshen to Ligonier, where he leaves the Lincoln highway, which drops down to Fort Wayne and continues on to the Atlantic coast.

From Ligonier gravel or stone roads are followed all of the way through Wawaka, Brimfield, Kendallville, and Butler to the Ohio state line, which is crossed just before reaching Edgerton. Continuing, the tourist goes through Bryan and Archbold to Wauseon, where the northern swing to Detroit is started. Still on fine gravel roads that may safely be driven in all kinds of weather, the Detroit tourist rolls along through several small villages to Adrian and thence on through Tecumseh, Macon, and Saline to Ypsilanti, the junction point of three Detroit routes. From here on the motorist finds a veritable snap, for the thirty miles between Ypsilanti and Detroit consist of concrete.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

This is the day which many American builders of motor cars have chosen for putting into effect a variety of price increases made necessary, they aver, by the rapidly mounting cost of production. Some of the price changes are negligible; others mount to the addition of $200—a considerable difference to almost any buyer of an automobile. Several of the manufacturers whose prices do not go up today have announced increases to take effect within two weeks.

The newest of the Hudson models, which has just made its appearance, is an innovation indeed for the comparatively conservative Hudson designers. This is a three seated sport speedster, built like a low, squat motor boat and decidedly rakish in its characteristics. It is offered regularly in a dull gun metal color finish, but will be furnished to order in any tint the customer may fancy. Only a limited number are to be built this year.

With the retirement of Lafayette Markle from active participation in the affairs of the L. Markle company, Studebaker distributor for the Chicago territory, comes the announcement that H. R. Levy has been advanced to the general managership of the organization. When the Markle concern was organized in 1913 to take over the distribution of Studebaker cars in this territory, Mr. Levy was made chief salesman and elected a vice president of the company. In 1914 he was made sales manager of the retail department. As general manager of the company he now fills the position made vacant by the retirement of Mr. Markle. A. G. Belda, as assistant to Mr. Levy, will have charge of service and advertising. Edward Gerhart continues as superintendent of the service department.

A new cross country record between Seattle, Wash., and Vancouver, B. C., has been established by a 1915 Paige roadster, which covered the 167 miles in three hours and forty-two minutes running time. The car was driven by George M. Price of Seattle.

The Chicago branch of the Moline Automobile company, builder of the Moline-Knight, has occupied a new three story building at 2247 Michigan avenue, and has been holding housewarming festivities. A Car It's A Pleasure To Own

WHEN you exchange your money for an Auburn Six you can be sure of this: Three months, six months or a year later you will still be convinced that you not only got your money's worth, but more.

The used-car market is the best proof of this. Though you can buy slightly used cars of dozens of makes, cars that have been traded-in after three or four month use, by disappointed owners, you will have a hard time to buy a slightly used Auburn Six.

Auburn Six buyers keep their cars. They always have the feeling that they have bought wisely and they obtain full enjoyment out of their cars.

Your Auburn Six will prove a good looking, roomy, comfortable car, with plenty of power at all times. It is economical and dependable.

This is Auburn's seventeenth year. The company has never been in difficulties, never had to re-finance or re-organize. It has never put out an unsuccessful model. Its stability is the best guarantee you can have of Auburn quality.

FURNITURE BUYERS TAKE NOTICE

THE CHICAGO FURNITURE EXCHANGE,
3451 to 3453 Indiana-av.

Is the real place to buy your furniture—not second hand, but high grade furniture that is new, only having been used by manufacturers as samples in their display rooms, and you can buy it in most cases cheaper than second hand furniture; and for your pocketbook's sake do investigate. Here are just a few of the many bargains for this week: Very elegant and massive genuine leather 3-piece parlor suite, in mahogany or walnut, $40, regular price $95. Very fine William and Mary dining room set, 7 pieces, large table, 6 leather seated high back chairs, $45, and others much cheaper. Full size brass bed, springs and mattress, $22. Large dressers, $15. Library tables, all woods, $10 to $14. A great selection of rugs, some 9x12 velvets at $16 each. Floor lamps, complete, $12.50. About 100 pair fine lace curtains at $1.75 per pair. Large, easy, genuine leather rockers, $13.50; others as low as $6. Full size cabinet talking machine, a wonder, for $33. New mahogany piano, $140. Player piano, 88-note, a beautiful instrument, $210. All instruments guaranteed by the manufacturer, whom I promised not to advertise his name, and many other bargains too numerous to mention. We are open evenings, and free auto delivery to all parts of city and suburbs. We crate and pack the goods for out of town customers.

TRADE SCHOOLS.

THE PRICE YOU PAY FOR INSTRUCTION.
The Greer College of Motoring is not a "cheap" school. Our courses cost more than some. We do not offer something for nothing—neither does any one else. Cheap courses mean cheap training. Cheap training means low pay and strong competition for a job.
Which will you be? Why save a few dollars at the beginning and lose hundreds in the end? The cost of material alone for one department is over $15 per student in our school. Get the facts before you enroll.
We train men along practical scientific lines. Our instruction makes first class repairmen, chauffeurs, truck drivers, demonstrators, salesmen, garage owners, men trained for 18 divisions of the work.
DAY AND EVENING CLASSES.
Complete day courses $75; other special courses $25 to $150. Evening courses $25 to $60. Liberal time payments. Jobs secured without extra charge.
Write or call for free booklet today. We have very important information for you.

For the Family Seeking a Most Attractive Location, or for the Sportsman, Two Beautiful Islands in Northern Wisconsin.

Two islands in Lake Kawaguesaga, about three miles from Minocqua, Oneida county, Wisconsin, are offered for sale for $3,000; $1,500 may remain on mortgage at 6 per cent if desired.

One island contains about 18 acres and the other has about 9½ acres with a deep channel between.

The larger island stands up high and commands a magnificent view. It has a fine variety of timber, including considerable pine. About 4 or 5 acres were cleared a few years ago for a building site, but not used.

Lake Kawaguesaga connects with Minocqua Lake, and this connects with Tomahawk Lake by the stream known as "Tomahawk Thoroughfare." There is no better fishing ground in Wisconsin, and the section is well supplied with a variety of game, including an abundance of deer.

The islands are only a night's ride from Chicago, either by the C., M. & St. Paul direct to Minocqua, or by the Chicago and Northwestern to Woodruff, less than two miles from Minocqua.

The pure water and bracing pine air of northern Wisconsin render this spot as healthful as any on earth.

Louisiana.

GROUND FLOOR

The New Orleans Great Northern Railway opens for farm settlement the immense acreage of the great lumber company lands along its lines in Mississippi and Louisiana.

Growing towns, churches, schools, lumber companies, shipbuilding, turpentine distilleries, pine oil, and paper mills have sprung up all along the line of the railroad, but timber being the chief asset, the land itself, regardless of its great agricultural worth, has been carried on the books at a mere nominal value.

As the timber is being cut and the stumps and discarded tree trunks and limbs in the logging field are being ground into pulp for pine oil, turpentine, and the manufacture of paper, an immense acreage of virgin land close in to the railroad, towns, factories, churches, and schools is being left for farm occupation.

Unless the railroad settles these lands with farmers it will fail to provide for a chief source of revenue when the timber is gone, and the railroad, with its future means of support materially at stake, will therefore afford every aid in the matter of prices, terms, and co-operation in obtaining settlers on the land.

Write Walter S. Ayres, industrial commissioner N. O. G. N. Ry., 304 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill., how to obtain first hand a desirable farm out of this great body of cheap virgin land.

Landseekers

[NEXT PRIVATE CAR EXCURSION TUESDAY, JULY 10TH.]

ON MY LAST EXCURSION there were 50 buyers. Among them were farmers, a number were farm renters, and some were farm hands and wage earners. They came largely from the high priced land districts of other states, including Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, and Indiana, and were desirous of getting farm homes of their own. Many remarked that our crops looked much better than theirs did "down home." Michigan's clover stands are especially fine this year. They became convinced of the fact that as much money can be made, acre for acre, on land in the Swigart Tract, by growing Michigan money-producing crops as can be made on $150 to $300 corn land in their states. The green fields and growing crops look especially attractive to the wage earners who are tired of working in the shops, factories, and offices. Most all purchased land and went home with renewed ambition and a new outlook on life and a determination to begin their new work as soon as possible.

MOST EVERYTHING IS GROWN in the Swigart Tract, including clover, vetch, alfalfa, corn, wheat, oats, rye, millet, especially fruits, vegetables, and root crops. Of course some things grow more successfully than others, and by that I mean some things are more profitable to grow than others. Often 6 or 8 acres of potatoes will pay the entire cost of a 40 acre tract the first season, and last year, with the high price of potatoes, 5 acres of potatoes would have paid for more than 80 acres of my land at the price I am selling it. With excellent water to be had, usually at a depth of from 30 to 40 feet, and with our abundant clover and root crops, stock raising and dairying are also very profitable.

POULTRY IS ONE ROAD to a good independent living. We have a number of choice 10 acre tracts located close to town which have been selected especially for poultry, truck, and fruit growing. In our Fruit Belt 5 acres of any of these tracts developed into an orchard and properly handled will make you a good living, and the remainder devoted to poultry will bring a nice profit. Who has not tasted the delicious flavor of a Michigan strawberry? If you have not, then you have missed tasting the best that grows. Michigan strawberry growers have their pockets already filled and are now looking forward to harvesting the raspberries, cherries, peaches, plums, pears, and apples. Should they not be contented and happy?

I SELL IN TRACTS of 10, 20, 40, 80, and 160 acres, or more. I have more than 50,000 acres to select from. My prices are from $15 to $35 per acre, with a large selection at $18 to $20. My terms any one can meet. On 10 acres, as low as $5 down, $4 monthly; 40, 80, 160 and larger tracts for general farming and stock raising, from $25 to $100 down and $10 monthly on each forty. If you die before paying up fully your wife or children get the land without further payments. Our expert farmers show you the best farming methods for our district. In buying from me you are surrounded by every aid and protection that is known to the largest, up to date land organization in this country.

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY! If you will only investigate you will buy! Write today for free literature which describes the land and tells about the soil, climate, crops, rainfall, transportation, roads, schools, churches, etc. Get it now and read it carefully and then let me prove it to you by going on one of my excursions.

THE NEXT PRIVATE CAR EXCURSION occurs Tuesday, July 10th. Round trip fare from Chicago, $11.75; fare from Toledo, $10.89. Board and lodging, $1.50 per day, extra; gone two days; automobiles furnished free; accommodations for both men and women. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

PERHAPS YOU HAVE SUFFICIENT MONEY SO THAT YOU WOULD LIKE TO BUY AN IMPROVED FARM? We have about 50 splendid improved farms located in Southern Michigan, about 75 miles south of Grand Rapids, selected for their fine quality and cheapness in price. They range in size from 20 acres up to several hundred, and the prices are from $50 to $125 per acre, depending upon the improvements. Some of these farms can be purchased with live stock and farm machinery complete and crops already in. There are no better farms in Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, or Indiana than these, and they can be bought at about half the price that similar farms are selling for in these states. Any one wanting a fine improved farm should not fail to investigate these before buying. Write for our improved farm list. Below are two samples:

Texas.

FOR SALE—NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, feed, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad, like the Santa Fe, would only recommend what it considers a good thing, and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1103 Railway Exchange, Chicago.
